Nathaniel Burt, of the board of selectmen of 1678, resigned in July because he was not a freeman, and his brother, Jonathan Burt, was chosen in his place. The record as to this matter begins: "It was ppounded y^{r} being some scruple made concerning the Selectmen's Acts, because the Major part of y^{m} are not freemen according to order, whether y^{e} Town would not rectify y^{e} same."

The General Court, in obedience to the royal proclamation of April 27, 1678, ordering all subjects to take the oath of allegiance, directed the various magistrates to administer it forthwith; accordingly John Pynchon performed that duty to the following inhabitants of Springfield on December 3, 1678, and January 1, 1679: —

James M. Hultz, Many Years Resident of Butler, Meets Death at Archbold

James M. Hultz, aged 53, a truck driver residing at Auburn Junction and his companion, George Shults, aged 22, of Chicago, were instantly killed Friday morning at 5:30 when struck by a west-bound Twentieth Century Limited on the New York Central railroad at Archbold, Ohio. Both were carried in the wreckage nearly 300 yards before the crack flier could be halted. The limited was delayed two hours by the accident.

Chief of Police Charles Davis of Auburn, received word from Archbold and he went to the home of Mr. Hultz and informed his wife of the accident.

Mr. Hultz was working for the International Motor Corporation of Detroit and left home Thursday morning for Fort Wayne. Mrs. Hultz said after learning of her husband's death that when he left home he intended going to Chicago, but she thinks his orders were changed for him to go to Detroit. He had driven all night and was apparently homebound at the time his truck was struck because he had a load of Detroit merchandise on board.

From information which, Chief of Police Davis received Mr. Hultz's body was badly mangled, especially the head. The young man with him had nothing to identify him by. Mrs. Hultz, however, knew him.

Mr. Hultz had been working for the International Motor corporation only three weeks. Before that he had been trucking logs. The family moved from a farm west of Butler a year ago in December and since that time has resided at Auburn Junction.

Mrs. Hultz thinks her husband must have been asleep when struck. He had only a few hours rest when he started on his last trip. He had driven the day before and she thinks he drove all of Tuesday night.

A son, Truman Hultz, resides in Fort Wayne and is employed by the General Electric company. He was notified and left for Archobold to take charge of the bodies.

Besides the widow and the son, there survives a daughter, Marguerite, living at home.

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of

ELVA RENSCH

Our loved one is not gone away,
But rests in peaceful sleep,
To awake upon another day,
Her time with God to keep.
Her life was long, her life was vast,
Her countenance was cheery;
To face each day and face each task,
But never did she weary.
Now she rests in peaceful slumber,
Her tasks on earth are done;
Among the angels she will number,
For her rich rewards are won.

The Twenty-Third Psalm

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures:
He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil:
for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies:
thou anointest my head with oil;
my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life:
and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

"We'll never know exactly how many people escaped through the Underground Railroad, but its significance is not in the number of people it served. Its significance lies in the fact that it was a symbol of resistance and ignited the debate over slavery. We've lost a lot of sites already and it is only through the efforts of groups like the one started here that we will learn what happened," said Miller.

As an example of what can be done, she referred to the groups in Ohio that, by organizing their efforts, have identified 500 sites. Miller said that the kind of material used in documenting a site as part of the Underground Railroad includes family letters, newspaper clippings and church and court records—anything that builds a case for the site.

GILBERT EVERTS - Tory Son of JOHN EVARTS & SUBMIT STONE

b. 3 Jan 1742 at Guilford, New Haven, CT.
m. 14 Jan 1765 to REBECCA CHAPIN at Salisbury, Litchfield, CT.
d. Beekmantown, Clinton Co., NY

There is a legend that the name EVARTS changed to EVERTS with Gilbert. The reason given is that the family was divided during the Revolutionary War into TORIES (or ROYALISTS) & PATRIOTS, similiar to the division of families that took place during the American Civil War (1860-1865),where brother fought against brother.

Before 1776, Gilbert moved to Castleton, Rutland, VT. with other Tories, including some family members.
When the Vermont Court met in April 1778, all real and personal property was declared forfeit to the state by reason of treasonable conduct for supporting the British army. Gilbert's farm, sheep, corn, leather and household goods were confiscated by the state.

After the Revolution, Gilbert left Castleton and went to Salisbury, Addison Co., VT. where he still owned land granted to him some twenty years earlier.

From the History of Clinton and Franklin Counties, NY, Gilbert appears on the 1811 tax roll in Clinton Co. as Gilbert Evist. He owned a house and farm on 228.5 acres, valued at $655, and owed a tax of $2.40. He died in Beekmantown, Clinton Co., NY.

The strange part of this family's history is that Gilbert's father, JOHN EVARTS, is listed in DAR #114109 for his patriotic service. His brothers, John, Luther and Daniel were soldiers in the American Revolution.

SOURCES: Vermont History, Vol XXIX, No. 2, April 1961 "An Unknown Vermonter: Sylvanus Evarts, Governor Chittenden's Tory Brother-in-Law" by Gwilym R. Roberts. From the Vermont Historical Society, pages 95 and 96.

The Chapin Book of Genealogical Data of the Descendants of Deacon Samuel Chapin, Compiled by Gilbert Warren Chapin, Vol. 1 First Seven Generations, Part I, Published and copyrighted by the Chapin Family Association, Hartford, CT. MCMXXIV, page 171 which states:

> "Gilbert Everts settled in Salisbury, Addison, VT. in 1786, being one of the original grantees under a charter obtained from Gov. Benning [ton] Wentworth by his father, JOHN EVARTS in 1761. Gilbert was a Royalist and his political sentiments were opposed to the Revolution. He thought the American people were too weak in population and wealth to throw off the British yoke. His father, JOHN EVARTS, was a Patriot and was active in town affairs in Salisbury, CT., in aiding the American cause."

moved his house just over the line into Williams County, Ohio, where his son George now lives. He was married Jan. 11, 1821, to Nancy Smiley, a native of Washington County, Pa., daughter of George Smiley. To them were born twelve children, but nine are living—William, Ann, Jane, Sarah, George, Kate A., Rachel, John F., and Nancy. One son, Jacob, was killed when twenty-one years of age by a horse falling on him. Robert died when twenty-four years of age. Mr. Casebeer and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal church from their childhood. Mrs. Casebeer died May 4, 1870, and he subsequently made his home with his children till his death, Sept. 4, 1881. They were among Troy's most esteemed citizens; charitable and kind to all, and will long be remembered by many for their many virtues and honorable, upright lives.

John F. Casebeer, section 21, Troy Township, was born in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, Sept. 11, 1839, a son of John Casebeer, who settled where our subject now lives in 1840. He was reared a farmer, and received a good education in the district schools of his township. He remained at home till after the breaking out of the war of the Rebellion, and in June, 1863, enlisted in Company E, Eighty-sixth Ohio Infantry, and was appointed Corporal, serving till discharged in February, 1864. Since his return from the war he has engaged in agricultural pursuits, and now owns a fine farm of seventy-two acres, all well improved. He was married in August, 1866, to Harriet Weitz, daughter of Adam Weitz, of Edgerton, Ohio. To them have been born six children—Lulu, Curtis, Frances, Howard, Daniel and Hattie. Mr. and Mrs. Casebeer and their daughter Lulu are members of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Gilbert G. Everetts, deceased, was born in the State of Pennsylvania, Aug. 25, 1816, a son of Cyrus M. Everetts. He remained in his native State till the fall of 1851, and then came to De Kalb County, Ind., and settled in Franklin Township, but soon after moved to section 7, Troy Township, where he improved a farm and lived till his death, which occurred Nov. 2, 1874. He was a most estimable gentleman, and had many friends in the township. He was a Justice of the Peace twenty years, and always counseled dissenting parties to settle without law, when it was possible to do so. He was a Trustee of his township many years, and in all public affairs used the same thought and carefulness that characterized the management of moved his house just over the line into Williams County, Ohio, where his son George now lives. He was married Jan. 11, 1821, to Nancy Smiley, a native of Washington County, Pa., daughter of George Smiley. To them were born twelve children, but nine are living—William, Ann, Jane, Sarah, George, Kate A., Rachel, John F., and Nancy. One son, Jacob, was killed when twenty-one years of age by a horse falling on him. Robert died when twenty-four years of age. Mr. Casebeer and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal church from their childhood. Mrs. Casebeer died May 4, 1870, and he subsequently made his home with his children till his death, Sept. 4, 1881. They were among Troy's most esteemed citizens; charitable and kind to all, and will long be remembered by many for their many virtues and honorable, upright lives.

John F. Casebeer, section 11, Troy Township, was born in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, Sept. 11, 1839, a son of John Casebeer, who settled where our subject now lives in 1840. He was reared a farmer, and received a good education in the district schools of his township. He remained at home till after the breaking out of the war of the Rebellion, and in June, 1863, enlisted in Company E, Eighty-sixth Ohio Infantry, and was appointed Corporal, serving till discharged in February, 1864. Since his return from the war he has engaged in agricultural pursuits, and now owns a fine farm of seventy-two acres, all well improved. He was married in August, 1866, to Harriet Weitz, daughter of Adam Weitz, of Edgerton, Ohio. To them have been born six children—Lulu, Curtis, Frances, Howard, Daniel and Hattie. Mr. and Mrs. Casebeer and their daughter Lulu are members of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Gilbert C. Everetts, deceased, was born in the State of Pennsylvania, Aug. 25, 1816, a son of Cyrus M. Everetts. He remained in his native State till the fall of 1851, and then came to De Kalb County, Ind.; and settled in Franklin Township, but soon after moved to section 7, Troy Township, where he improved a farm and lived till his death, which occurred Nov. 2, 1874. He was a most estimable gentleman, and had many friends in the township. He was a Justice of the Peace twenty years, and always counseled dissenting parties to settle without law, when it was possible to do so. He was a Trustee of his township many years, and in all public affairs used the same thought and carefulness that characterized the management of his personal affairs. He was a devoted member of the Disciples church and was a liberal supporter of the gospel, and also of all charitable institutions, thereby laying up his treasures in heaven. He was married in Pennsylvania to Adeline Enzor, who died, leaving two children, but one of whom is living—Franklin. Nov. 24, 1853, he married Mary C. Haynes, daughter of Asa P. Haynes, who brought his family to De Kalb County and settled in Troy Township in the early part of 1837. To Mr. and Mrs. Everetts were born ten children, seven of whom are living—Martin C., Abraham L., Andrew A., Joseph W., Reuben C., Mary A. and Gilbert C.

Abraham Fisher, farmer and stock-raiser, section 5, Troy Township, was born in Stark County, Ohio, Oct. 9, 1822. His father, Jacob Fisher, was a native of Westmoreland County, Pa., and moved with his parents to Stark County before the war of 1812. Abraham Fisher learned the trade of a tanner and currier in his boyhood and followed it twenty years. In the fall of 1855 he came to De Kalb County, Ind., and settled in Troy Township, and in March, 1857, moved to Butler and established a tannery, in partnership with John Oberlin. He subsequently exchanged his tannery for eighty acres of land on the northeast quarter of section 26, Franklin Township, where he lived till 1864, when he returned to Troy Township. He was married Jan. 11, 1844, to Elizabeth Shane, daughter of Abraham Shane, a General in the war of 1812. General Shane was a Civil Engineer, and was employed by the Government to survey a part of the State of Indiana, and subsequently surveyed the country as far West as the Rocky Mountains. To Mr. and Mrs. Fisher were born six children, three of whom are living—Albert W., Jacob F. and Cullen R. Jacob married Elizabeth Shoemaker: Albert married Eliza Leason, and Cullen married Ella North. All are residents of Troy Township. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are members of the United Brethren church.

George Heller, blacksmith, Troy Township, was born in Lancaster County, Pa., Sept. 23, 1822, a son of Philip Heller. When he was six months old his parents moved to Stark County, Ohio, and from there when he was eight years old to Holmes County, where he grew to manhood. He learned the trade of a blacksmith of his father, and has made that industry his means of obtaining a livelihood. In 1854 he moved to

Had brother, Isaac, who was Stella Platt's grt-grandfather.
SOURCE: E-mail from Stelplatt@aol.com on 24 Apr 2001.

Robert's parents left OH before Robert, and their other children left also, so Robert had nothing to keep him in OH. Family kept moving west. They were in Fayette Co., IN., for a short time, then Dallas Co., IA.
Most of the children moved to Colorado in the early 1860's when that area opened up, then to Dakota Territory. Three daughters married and stayed in IA. SOURCE: E-mail Stelplatt@aol.com 25 Apr 2001.
Stella has a letter written by Rosalia's son, Charles Freeby, to her grandfather in 1928, and he was in Shipshewana, IN, then. Her sources come from cemetery records in the LDS library in Salt Lake City; from the Ind census, and USGenweb for DeKalb Co., IN. Marriages were on the USGenweb. Regarding Cyrus, she has an abstract of will dated 2 Oct 1848 and 10 Sep 1849. He was in Bulter Twp. (RW I, p. 33). It reads as follows:

Everts, Cyrus. To wife Christiene, one-third entire estate.
To Gilbert C. Everts, Rebecca Sally Yount, Catherine Platt, and Rosalie Jane Everts, $10.00 each.
To Cyrus M .Everts, remaining two-thirds estate for work done and debts paid for father. He to provide testator with the "necessities of life such as a horse to rid, wood suitable to burn at all times together with bread, meat and clothing...and expenses money."
Executors: William Young, Cyrus M. Everts. Bondsmen: William Young, William Stair, Thomas Brink.
Witnesses: Thomas Brink and William Stair.

Notes for CYRUS EVERTS:
E-mail from Stella at Stelplatt@aol.com Sept/Oct 2000: Looking for Catherine Everts Platt, DeKalb Co., IN. b. in 1825 Richland Co., OH.; m. 1843 and went to IN. sometime after that date. Her father was Cyrus Everts and mother was Christine. Other children were Gilbert, Rebecca (Yount), Rosalie and Cyrus. Her information came from will of Cyrus Everts. Stella is looking for Catherine's husband, Robert Platt, as his father was her ancestor.

I told her I thought Cyrus son of Gilbert Everts and Rebecca Chapin and that he m. Christine Rhodes. Lived in Huron Co., OH. as of 14 Nov 1833. (I found a Robert Platt on 1850 census for Richland Co., Butler Twp., OH. and 1850 DeKalb Co., Franklin Twp., IN. and Fayette Co., Orange Twp., IN.)

On 14 Nov 1833, Cyrus Everts of Huron County, Ohio purchased "the East half of the SE quarter of Section 18, in Twp. 25, Range 17 in the District of Lands subject to sale at Wooster, Huron Co., OH., containing 81 acres and seven-hundredth of an acre for $101.33 3/4 at the rate of $1.25 per acre.
SOURCE: Land Record #2466, Record Group #49, from National Archives.

Cyrus settled in Ohio.
SOURCE: Chapin Book of Gene. Date with Brief Bio. Sketches of the Desc. of Deacon Samuel Chapin, by Gilbert Warren Chapin, Chapin Family Assn., Hartford, CT. 1924, p. 171.

Children of CYRUS EVERTS and CHRISTINE RHODES are:

ii. GILBERT EVERTS.
iii. REBECCA EVERTS.
iv. ROSALIE EVERTS.
v. CYRUS EVERTS.

Generation No. 2

2. CATHERINE^{2} EVERTS (CYRUS^{1}, GILBERT^{A}, JOHN^{B} EVARTS, NATHANIEL^{C}, JOHN^{D}, JOHN^{E}, WILLIAM^{F} EVARTS/EVAIYET, THOMAS^{G} EVAIYET) was born February 27, 1825 in Richland Co., OH.[4], and died December 01, 1893 in DeKalb Co., Franklin Twp. IN., age 68[5]. She married ROBERT PLATT February 27, 1843 in Richland Co., OH.[5,6], son of RICHARD PLATT and MARGARET DICKSON. He was born 1826 in Indiana[7], and died 1877[7].

Notes for CATHERINE EVERTS:
Married 1843 and went to IN. sometime after that date.

Notes for ROBERT PLATT:
Had brother, Isaac, who was Stella Platt's grt-grandfather.
SOURCE: E-mail from Stelplatt@aol.com on 24 Apr 2001.

Robert's parents left OH before Robert, and their other children left also, so Robert had nothing to keep him in OH. Family kept moving west. They were in Fayette Co., IN., for a short time, then Dallas Co., IA.
Most of the children moved to Colorado in the early 1860's when that area opened up, then to Dakota Territory. Three daughters married and stayed in IA. SOURCE: E-mail Stelplatt@aol.com 25 Apr 2001.
Stella has a letter written by Rosalia's son, Charles Freeby, to her grandfather in 1928, and he was in Shipshewana, IN, then. Her sources come from cemetery records in the LDS library in Salt Lake City; from the Ind census, and USGenweb for DeKalb Co., IN. Marriages were on the USGenweb. Regarding Cyrus, she has an abstract of will dated 2 Oct 1848 and 10 Sep 1849. He was in Bulter Twp. (RW I, p. 33). It reads as follows:

Everts, Cyrus. To wife Christiene, one-third entire estate.
To Gilbert C. Everts, Rebecca Sally Yount, Catherine Platt, and Rosalie Jane Everts, $10.00 each.
To Cyrus M .Everts, remaining two-thirds estate for work done and debts paid for father. He to provide testator with the "necessities of life such as a horse to rid, wood suitable to burn at all times together with bread, meat and clothing...and expenses money."
Executors: William Young, Cyrus M. Everts. Bondsmen: William Young, William Stair, Thomas Brink.
Witnesses: Thomas Brink and William Stair.

Comments on "ARRIVED BY WAGON" and "HISTORY OF THE EVERTTS FAMILY"

"Arrived by Wagon" appeared in the Steuben Republican on May 14, 1975, written by my grandmother, Elva Evertts Rensch. Much of this was drawn from her own memories and experiences, but she also drew heavily from a work by her cousin, Gertrude Evertts Campbell. "History of the Evertts Family" was prepared by Gertrude Campbell for the Evertts Reunion of 1939. Long ago, I was given a copy of this paper, and as I have never seen it published anywhere, I am including both articles, as both cousins should be appreciated on their efforts to record the past.

It may take careful study to separate Elva's memories from those she and Gertrude shared.

It may help those researching the Evertts or Everts family to know that the immigrant ancestor was John EVARTS.

Arrived by wagon

My great grandparents, Philander and Mary (Polly) Parsons Haynes were married in Vermont and then started west on their wedding journey. For several years they were near Cleveland, Ohio where Mary Celesta my grandmother, was born on November 19, 1835. They stayed there that winter, then they came on west. You know, in Vermont they wanted to live near a stream, and they also wanted one in Indiana.

They came in covered wagon. You know where the Eddy Cemetery is; they settled in a one-room house right across from there while grandpa was hunting a place to buy. I call him grandpa Hayes, but he was my great grandpa. While they were living there, travelers coming through on the wagon trail, their child took sick and died. They buried the child in the Eddy Cemetery because it was on a hill and sandy ground. This was the first white person buried there. Then in 1839 they moved to the old homestead of 80 acres. It was first owned by Timothy McClure and the family bought the farm from him and moved there. The children's names were Mary (grandma), Matilda, Andrew, Seymor, Frank and Esther.

The first house didn't have a floor, they used a blanket for a door and there was one room. My grandmother could remember the Indians coming to the house, lifting the blanket at the door and trying to talk with them. There was an Indian village with wigwams along the East bank of the creek near the old creek road. Grandma told how the Indians all disappeared all at once in the night. She also told of her mother making soap. If there was a big batch and it wasn't cooked enought by night it was left ouside. Bears came up and sampled it; maybe they thought it was maple sugar.

The second house was also built of logs but this had an attic, a floor and a door. Some of their first neighbors were Sim Aldrich and the Houltons. Grandmother Haynes taught school in her kitchen, there being no school house. She had seven scholars. Seymor, the oldest boy would upset the benches the children used just for fun. Taxes had to be paid in silver so she saved all silver she got for teaching to use for taxes.

When my grandma was nearly 17 her father died. He was 36 years old. The following year the mother was taken, leaving Mary, my grandma, the oldest of a family of six to try to keep the family together.

My husband's grandfather, Mr. Aldrich, lived down the road and he helped her get things done - get the neighbors together and put out the crops and harvest them.

When Mary was eighteen she married Gilbert Conrad Evertts and they bought the farm where she had always lived making a home for her brothers and sisters, also for his two boys, Pete, a baby, and Frank. Their mother, Adeline Enzor, had died. Grandpa Evertt's mother's name was Christina Rhodes.

Grandpa Evertts was known for years as "Squire Evertts." He was justice of peace for 23 years. Uncle Andrew used to say when he saw a boy and girl turn in the yard with a yellow envelope, "There's going to be another wedding." The children would sometimes stand on the cellar door and peek in the window to watch. One girl fainted when the knot was tied.

The present house was built about 115 years ago. The two bedrooms at the west were a porch when the house was first built. The fireplaces are gone but the chimneys are still there.

My father bought his mother her first glass can for 25 cents and sat flat in the box of the wagon holding it in his lap all the way home to keep it from breaking. He picked huckleberries in the marsh to fill it.

Grandfather Evertts died in November 1874. The children's names were Harrison (died in infancy) Martin, Lincoln, Andrew, Joseph, Reuben, Mary Ann, Matilda (died in infancy) and Gilbert. Father was Joseph Walker Evertts. He married Eunice A. Slentz.

Grandmother had three brothers in the Civil War, Andrew and Frank came back, but one never did; he died in a southern prison camp. He had been engaged to marry my future husband's mother.

Grandma instilled in her family - good reading. We used to take The Youth's Companion. It was good clean reading.

The old homestead is just across the county line in DeKalb County. The house has never been painted outside. It is in the hands of a great grandson of grandma's. I had a part in getting the deed written. He said he would buy the farm but he needed a deed, but who knew the history? Well, we had lived on the farm and I knew grandma - and they said "get Elvie, she is the oldest." I was just glad that I could do that for grandma - help get the deed - there were no debts against the farm, so the lawyer said, and I had known grandma.

There is lots of history being lost. The old homestead is just across the county line, but I have lived in Steuben County for 35 years.

THERE HAVE BEEN Everetts in Hamilton, Ind., for many, many years, and the family homestead is located on County Road 8, a half mile east of County Road 71. Grandfather G.C. Everetts received this letter dated Feb. 16, 1860. Dear Sir; I propose to furnish materials and build a house on your plans, and in a good and workmanlike manner and of good materials for two hundred and seventy five dollars. Yours. James M Curdy. This letter is well preserved and in the keeping of Theodore Everetts, Route I, Hamilton, who said many people have lived in the old homestead. He said at least 23 births have been recorded, four Civil War veterans lived there, and a number of court cases heard and marriages performed by his grandfather, who was a Justice of the Peace for 20 years. The property is now owned by a nephew. This woodburning cook stove was used both for cooking and for heating, and is in excellent condition. Not a chip was to be found in the grey and white porcelain finish.

HISTORY OF EVERTTS FAMILY

Memories

Philander and Mary (Polly) Parsons Haynes were married in Vermont and started westward on their wedding journey. They settled for several years near Cleveland, Ohio, where Mary Celesta, was born, November 19, 1835.

They came in a covered wagon over the old wagon trail, running from Defiance to Orland which is now the Bellefountaine road and first settled on a farm across from the Eddy cemetary, where they lived until Grandmother Evertts was about four years old.

While living here there were travelers going through on the wagon trail and their little child took sick and died. They buried the child in what is now the Eddy Cemetary, because it was on a hill and sandy soil. This was the first white person to be buried there.

The old homestead of 80 acres was first owned by Timothy McClure and the family bought the farm from him and moved there in 1839, about 100 years ago. The children's names were Mary, Matilda, Andrew, Seymor, Frank and Esther, all deceased.

The first house didn't have any floor in it and they used a heavy blanket for a door. It only had one room. Grandmother Evertts could remember the Indians coming to the house and lifting the blanket at the door and trying to talk. There was an Indian village with wigwams along the east bank of the creek, near the old creek road. Grandma told about how they disappeared all at once in the night.

The second house built was also of logs but this had an attic, a floor, and a door. It stood a little east of where the stone milk house now stands. Some of their first neighbors were Sim Aldrich and the Houltons.

Grandmother Haynes taught school in her kitchen, there being no school houses, she had seven scholars. Seymor, the oldest boy would upset the benches the children used just for fun.

Taxes had to be paid in silver, so Grandmother Haynes would save all the silver she would get for teaching the neighbors' children to use for taxes.

When Grandmother Evertts was about 17 years old, her father then about 36 years old died and the following spring the mother was taken, leaving her the oldest of a family of six to try and keep the family together.

When she was eighteen she married Gilbert Conrad Evertts and they bought the farm where she had always lived, making a home for her brothers and sisters, also his two boys, Pete, who was a baby when his own mother died and Frank. GGrandfather Evertts first wife's name was Adeline Enzor.

Grandfather Evertts' mothers maiden name was Christina Rhodes of German descent, Pennsylvania. His father was a Yankee from Vermont.

HISTORY OF EVERTTS FAMILY

Memories

Philander and Mary (Polly) Parsons Haynes were married in Vermont and started westward on their wedding journey. They settled for several years near Cleveland, Ohio, where Mary Celesta, was born, November 19, 1835.

They came in a covered wagon over the old wagon trail, running from Defiance to Orland which is now the Bellefountaine road and first settled on a farm across from the Eddy cemetary, where they lived until Grandmother Evertts was about four years old.

While living here there were travelers going through on the wagon trail and their little child took sick and died. They buried the child in what is now the Eddy Cemetary, because it was on a hill and sandy soil. This was the first white person to be buried there.

The old homestead of 80 acres was first owned by Timothy McClure and the family bought the farm from him and moved there in 1839, about 100 years ago. The children's names were Mary, Matilda, Andrew, Seymor, Frank and Esther, all deceased.

The first house didn't have any floor in it and they used a heavy blanket for a door. It only had one room. Grandmother Evertts could remember the Indians coming to the house and lifting the blanket at the door and trying to talk. There was an Indian village with wigwams along the east bank of the creek, near the old creek road. Grandma told about how they disappeared all at once in the night.

The second house built was also of logs but this had an attic, a floor, and a door. It stood a little east of where the stone milk house now stands. Some of their first neighbors were Sim Aldrich and the Houltons.

Grandmother Haynes taught school in her kitchen, there being no school houses, she had seven scholars. Seymor, the oldest boy would upset the benches the children used just for fun.

Taxes had to be paid in silver, so Grandmother Haynes would save all the silver she would get for teaching the neighbors' children to use for taxes.

When Grandmother Evertts was about 17 years old, her father then about 36 years old died and the following spring the mother was taken, leaving her the oldest of a family of six to try and keep the family together.

When she was eighteen she married Gilbert Canrad Evertts and they bought the farm where she had always lived, making a home for her brothers and sisters, also his two boys, Pete, who was a baby when his own mother died and Frank. GGrandfather Evertts first wife's name was Adeline Enzor.

Grandfather Evertts' mothers maiden name was Christina Rhodes of German descent, Pennsylvania. His father was a Yankee from Vermont.

Grandfather Evertts was known for years as "Squire Evertts". He was Justice of Peace for 22 years. Uncle Andrew used to say when he saw a boy and girl turn in the yard with a yellow emvelope, "There's going to be another wedding." The children would sometimes stand on the cellar door and peek in the window to see the couples get married. One girl fainted when the knot was being tied.

The present hourse has been built about 78 years. The two bedrooms at the west were a porch when the house was first built. The old road going past the west side of the house was changed about 45 years ago.

The children's names were--Rosetti, Harrison, (died in infancy) Martin, Lincoln, Andrew, Joseph, Reuben, Mary Ann, Matilda (died in infancy), and Gilbert.

Grandmother Evertts made her own candles and spun wool yarn. When Uncle Andrew's family were here visiting long ago, she had us grandchildren all come to see her mold candles and spin yarn on the old spinning wheel after she had carded the wool.

Some of the old neighbors were the Freebys', Aldrich, Colls, Rummels, Conkeys, Leonards Haswells, Clarks, Rickleys, Garbers and Martins.

My father bought his mother her first glass can for $.25 and sat flat in the box of the wagon, holding it in his lap all the way home to keep it from breaking. He picked huckleberries in the marsh to fill it.

Grandfather Evertts died in November, 1874, My father the oldest child, was only 14 years old. Grandmother Evertts was a widow 47 years keeping the family together and the old homestead until her death, June , 1921. Uncle Gill bought the farm --now 106 acres.

Uncle Frank married Anne McClellan; Martin--Addie McCurdy; Andrew--Vinne Repp; Lincoln--Mattie Ball; Joseph--Eunice Slectz; Reuben--Allie Slentz; Mary Ann--Ray Chappell; and Gilbert--Maude Betz.

Uncle Andrew was married in October and went to Kansas to homestead in January, where he has always made his home.

Martin, Andrew, Mary Ann, and Gilbert are the only members of the family now living.

And so again we have met in a family reunion, on the old homestead, in memory of those who came as pioneers to make a home in a new country.

Richland County's School Lands

The federal land ordinance of May 20, 1785, states in part, "there shall be reserved the Lot No. 16, of every township, for the maintenance of public schools." To obtain the full benefit of the intent of this ordinance, a resolution was passed November 29, 1802 by the Ohio Constitutional Convention, requesting Congress to set aside one thirty-sixth of the land in Ohio for the support of schools. Congress agreed to the resolution provided Ohio agree not to tax Federally sold lands for 5 years after the sale. Setting aside Section 16 School Land was not a problem in Richland County. The County is part of the Ohio River Survey of the Congress Lands, which was laid out according to the Federal Rectangular Survey System of Ranges (Vertical Columns) containing blocks of surveying townships numbered northward from the Ohio River. Each surveying township contains 23,040 acres divided into 36 Sections of 640 acres each. Each of these numbered one square mile sections are often divided into 160 acre quarter sections or smaller lots containing 80 acres. The income from the rent or sale of Section 16 land was simply earmarked for the benefit of the schools within the 36 square mile surveying township. However, no land was available in the Connecticut Western Reserve and Virginia Military District of Ohio because they were not under Federal jurisdiction and the United States Military District was already reserved to honor Revolutionary War Land Bounty claims. Therefore to honor its commitment to the Virginia Military District (VMD), the Federal Government appropriated 105,600 acres in present day Ashland, Crawford, Holmes, Morrow, Richland and Ashland Counties for the benefit of schools in the VMD. Thus, Richland County, and sections removed from the parent county with the expansion of Ashland, Crawford and Morrow Counties, contain a greater amount of school land than other counties. Genealogical researchers may have missed their ancestor's land record if they only checked the Bureau of Land Management's Eastern States Land Office Patent Index because the school land deeds were issued by the State of Ohio and often were not recorded in the counties.

On February 11, 1809, the state legislature created the office of "Register," to be located at Mansfield, Ohio, to distribute Virginia Military School Lands. The first Register was Winn Winship Jr., followed by James Hedges, William Cosgrove, Mordecai Bartley, Eckles McCoy, William A. Moore, James E. Cox, Victor Gutzwiler, Jr., R.C. Smith, William Higgins, and T.Y. McCray. The Register's duties consisted of receiving annual rents on school lands and issuing certificates of purchase to those who wished to receive a deed on the sale of such lands.

Initially, school lands were leased for 7 to 15 year periods, and the tenant was required to make certain improvements on the property. In 1817, the lease period was extended to 99 years, renewable forever. Congress, by Act of February 1, 1826, empowered the State to sell the school land sections with the proceeds being deposited in a "Common School Fund." The interest only was used to support schools until 1968, when voters passed an amendment allowing the principle to be dispersed.

On March 22, 1880, the office of Register of Virginia Military School Lands, in Mansfield, was abolished. These duties were transferred to the Auditor of State, as was the administration of Section 16 school lands, which had been controlled by the township trustees until 1914. On August 1, 1985, House Bill 201 of the 116th General Assembly transferred school land duties to the State Director of Administrative Services. At that time the school lands consisted of just four short term leased farms, totaling 1,232 acres along with several small lots in Columbiana County covered by renewable 99 year leases. Since 1987, all Section 16 school lands have been under the direct jurisdiction and management of the School Districts for which they were set aside. Most of the 704,204 acres granted for school purposes in Ohio had been sold, including the 105,600 acres of Virginia Military District school lands in the Richland County area.

The Auditor of State's Land Office (PO Box 1140, Columbus OH 43216-1140) maintains an index to school land deeds issued by the State of Ohio from about 1837 to 1985. These cards are filed alphabetically by surname. The existing final certificates, lease records and record copies of the deeds from about 1837 to 1955 are preserved in the State Archives of Ohio located in the Ohio Historical Society (OHS) 1985 Velma Ave., Columbus OH 43211-2497.

The School land index cards, in the State Archives of Ohio, have recently been microfilmed by the Genealogical Society of Utah (Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints). For this book, card files made in WPA times were examined. They are filed by range, township and section. Information given includes the land description (range, township, section), county, township, date, lessee or purchaser, number of acres, amount paid, and reference to the record. Cards are stamped with the words, Certificate, Deed, or Quarterly Report. If a certificate number is given, a copy may be obtained at the OHS Library; if a deed volume and page is listed, a copy may be obtained from the OHS Library if prior to 1955; and if it is a quarterly report card, it is merely a notation of the tenant renting the school lands at the time, and the property may pass through different hands many times through the years.

> The language given in a sample final certificate, is as follows:
> No. 613, Final Certificate, Register's Office, Mansfield, Richland County, Ohio, It is hereby certified, That pursuant to ‘An Act to provide for the sale of lands granted by Congress for the use of Schools within the Virginia Military District, and to authorize the Leasees of said land to surrender their leases and take certificates of purchase,” Michael Newman of Richland County, Ohio, did, on the Twenty-fifth day of October, 1828, receive a certificate of purchase, number 377, from the Register for said District, for the East half of the North west quarter of Section number Thirty six Township number Twenty Range number Twenty of the School Lands belonging to said District, containing Eighty acres, at the rate of Two Dollars Thirty one Cents and two & a half Mills per acre, amounting in the whole for said Lot, to one hundred & Eighty five Dollars [blank] Cents and [blank] Mills, being a sum equal to the amount at which said land was appraised. For which Lot, John Graham of Richland County, Ohio, Assignee of the said Michael Newman, has made full payment, the account thereof being finally settled and closed in the books of this Office, as will appear by the following statement thereof, to wit:

> James Hedges, Register of Virginia Military School Lands.”

In our abstract of School Lands in Richland County, we have followed the same table used in the land entries, however, the information contained therein varies, because it may be taken from a certificate, a deed, or a lease report. The land location description is given, followed by the date of the certificate, or quarterly report. The entryman might refer to a purchaser or just to a tenant. The next columns are assignee, number of acres, and cash paid. Finally, instead of a final payment date, we have the date of the final certificate or the date of the deed, if given. In many cases, we have added the certificate number, or deed volume and page, so that the original record may be tracked in the State Archives of Ohio at the Ohio Historical Society, Columbus.

We purposely did not mix the Eastern States Land Entries and Ohio School Land Entries so that the reader might be more aware of the differences in these two types of land distributions. The sources for further documentation is not the same in each case.

We hope you find your elusive ancestors in this first ever publication of Richland County school lands, a new addition to Ellsworth Morse's work on the original land entrymen.

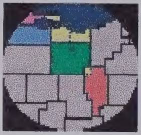
History of Huron County

Written by Huron County Chapter / OGS member Mr. Henry Timman

When Huron County was first formed in 1809 by the Ohio Legislature, it encompassed all of the original Firelands area - 500,000 acres at the western end of the Connecticut Western reserve. The reader is refered to the History of The Firelands by Williams, 1879 or the Firelands Pioneer magazine published since 1858 by the Firelands Historical Society at Norwalk.



All of the territory shown in green and yellow was in Huron County until 16 Mar 1838, when the Legislature established Erie County from the six northwestern townships of Huron County as well as some territory which is now in Sandusky (shown in light blue) and Ottawa (shown in pink) counties. The townships lost in 1838 were Danbury, Margaretta, Portland, Perkins and the majority of Groton and Oxford townships. On Mar 1840, Erie County's boundaries were changed drastically. Some territory was returned to Sandusky County, Danbury and some other land went to Ottawa County; while Milan, Huron, Florence, Berlin and Vermillion (as it was then spelled) were taken from Huron Counnty and added to Erie County.

Huron County thus remained the southern twenty townships of the original Firelands until 26 february 1846, when the Legislature formed Ashland County and took Ruggles township form Huron to add to Ashland County (shown in red). These acts of the Legislature were common in that large counties were originally formed in the days of sparse population. Then, as soon as there was sufficient population, the old counties were cut up and made smaller.

We often think of migration patterns in genealogical research such as the classic pattern of east-west, and north-south corridors such as the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia and the Susquehanna Valley in Pennsylvania. Seldom do we narrow this field down to a small geographic area such as Huron County. A study of migration patterns in a small area (even as small as a township) can sometimes give us clues as to the geographic origins of our ancestors.

It is not difficult to learn from whence settlers of a certain area came. The 1850 census gives us the states of origin for each person in a township or county, and in this county we have The History of the Fire Lands by Williams (1879) and the Firelands Pioneer magazine published periodically by the Firelands Historical Society as well as good township works such as the History of Clarksfield and History of Wakeman, both by Dr FE Weeks.

Because of the origin of the Firelands, many people believe that all of the first settlers in Huron County came from Connecticut. This is true to a small degree, but Connecticut migration dwindled down drastically after 1820. Prior to that date, the earliest residents were mainly Nutmeggers, especially in Wakeman, Clarksfield, Norwalk, Lyme and Sherman. The majority of the settlers in the other old townships came from the other New England states (especially Vermont) and New York. Many of these people left their old homes due to the "Year of No Summer" in 1816.

These acts of the Legislature were common in that large counties were originally formed in the days of sparse population. Then, as soon as there was sufficient population, the big counties were cut up and made smaller.

We often think of migration patterns on a continental scale, such as the classic pattern of east-west, and north-south corridors such as the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia and the Susquehanna Valley in Pennsylvania. Seldom do we narrow this field down to a small geographic area such as Huron County. A study of migration patterns in a small area (even as small as a township) can sometimes give us clues as to the geographic origins of our ancestors.

Many of these people left their old homes due to the "Year of No Summer" in 1816.

The southern tier of townships Richmond, New Haven, Ripley, Greenwich (and Ruggles now in Ashland County) became home to a great many Pennsylvania families who emigrated via Columbia County, Wooster and Ashland. Perhaps some of them followed General Beall's War of 1812 Trail northwest. A number of these families, especially in Richmond, were true "Pennsylvania Dutch", speaking and writing German, and spelling their names in the German fashion.

The first great foreign migration to the county were Germans who began arriving in 1828. They made distinct settlements in Bronson/Peru, Sherman/Norwich, Monroeville and Norwalk. Those in Bronson/Peru were mainly from Alsace and Baden, while the Norwalk and Monroeville settlers were from Baden. Those in Sherman and Norwich were mainly Rhenish Bavarians....although there are exceptions to these statements in every colony.

Fitchville was detached in 1828 from Greenwich and organized as a separate township, with Rundle Palmer being elected the first Justice of the Peace, and Samuel Palmer the first Clerk. The first record of an election is one held on April 2, 1832, with Zalmon Green, James Washburn, Jr., and Henry Morgan as Judges and Cyrus Everts and Silas S. Green as Clerks. Fifty-eight names were found in the Poll Book. In this election the following were elected in Fitchville Township: Trustees - A. G. Post, John S. Foot and James Washburn, Jr.; Treasurer - Abram Mead; Constables - Reuben Tower and Hiram A. Curtis; Clerk - C. Everts; Overseers of the Poor - Union White and Rundle Palmer; Fence Viewers - John D. Brink and John Bell; Supervisors - Samuel Ward, Rundle Palmer, Eben Osborn, Nelson Clark, John S. Foot, Lewis Barnes; Augustine West; Peter Eastman and Major Barrett. All elected officials had to be sworn in by the Clerk, and arrange for and post a bond in accordance with their elected office, the Treasurer posting the highest bond.

In the early days the Township Trustee meetings were held in homes, then in stores, hotels, schools, and finally in their own building. The first meetings seemed to have been held in the home of Abram Mead. The first tavern or hotel mentioned where these meetings were held was the Clinton House in 1840; Washington Hall and Exchange Hotel in 1846; Fountain House and Exchange Hotel in 1854; Washington Hall in 1855, Mansion House in 1856 and also for two meetings in 1857.

Later in 1873 a new brick school was built near the site of the present school, which also was to serve as a Town Hall for "caucuses, elections and the like."

In the New London, Ohio Public Library, is a rebound book entitled, "Fitchville Township". This is the original copy of the first book kept by the Fitchville Township Trustees concerning their meetings and the affairs of the township, and book contains some 336 pages with the first record appearing March 3, 1828 and the last in 1865.

This book is invaluable for early research of the people of Fitchville Township, It contains the first road districts and who lived within them; the way the first school districts were laid out, and the families living within them; the lists of people "warned out" of the township, the "indentured children", the officers which were elected, perhaps one of the most valuable bits of information is found in the voting "poll lists", for from these the people in the township can be traced, in part, as to the time they came to the township and when they left or died.

In order to preserve some of this early history we have taken the ten Poll Lists and made a composite listing, indicating by number which poll each person is found on.

As the country began to be more heavily populated it seemed that the interest in going to the polls wained.

September 17, 1833, a special election was held to elect a Justice of the Peace. 81 electors voted. Peter Mead had 39 votes, Lewis G. Green had 42, he being elected by a majority of three votes.

MARKS and BRANDS

The early settlers of Fitchville used a series of ear marks to indentify their various animals. These brands, or ear marks, were recorded with the township trustees. These marks were made by cutting one or both ears of the animal in a variety of combinations, with such variations as - a square crop, a slit, a hole, a half circle, a swallow fork, a halfpenny, a square fork, a half crop or gouge. During the years from April 2, 1825 until January 2, 1857, a total of 72 men recorded their ear marks for their livestock.

Fences were limited in the early days and many stray cattle were recorded in the Trustees' Records. If, after a reasonable length of time no one claimed an animal, it was sold. Thus it became imperative for farmers to mark their livestock so they could be identified. These early records of the brands now give us some indication of just how early these pioneers came into Fitchville Township, and when they may have left or died.

The following lists give the year in which a mark was recorded. If a date appears following a name, it indicates this mark or brand was transferred in that year to someone else.

1825 - Abijah Palmer - 1849; Andrew Woodruff; Absolom H. Coleman; Austin Ward; Charles Lyon; Linus Palmer; Rundle Palmer; Reuben Tower; Ebenezer Osborn; Hiram Curtiss.

1827 - Elias Denton - 1833; Amos Green; Francis Keyes - 1833; Harry Hickok; Ashbel G. Post - 1836.

1828 - Samuel H. Reed; Isaac Eaton; Jonathan Stevens - 1836; Cyrus Everts - 1833, 1829 - Uzziel Stevens; Lewis Barnes; Jabez Denton - 1835; Joseph Barker; Silas L. Green; Samuel Barker; John Barnes; Lyman Converse; James Barker - 1833; Jos. B. Brackenbury - 1833; Zebulon Brundage; Allen Johnson; Ludovicus Robbins; Ebenezer Green; Harvey Green; Peter VanSickles.

1830 - Abel F. Eaton; Samuel Ward.

1831 - Jacob Bush.

ready for my debut and can still remember the thrill and excitement of the hour. Father hitched the team to either a wagon or a sled (if we had snow) with straw in them. We bundled up and off we went to the most exciting time of our lives, to take part in or to see the wonderful Christmas program and to admire the beautiful Christmas tree.

Today, houses occupy the site of the Old Town Hall. The school programs are held in the school auditorium and the trustees meet in the Community Hall on Crescent Road, which was built by the Grange. In 1972 the Grange deeded this hall to the township and is used for all trustee meetings, a polling place on election day, for Grange meetings, Boy and Girl Scout meetings, American Legion meetings and other community activities.

SCHOOLS

The first schoolhouse in the township was a little log cabin about 16 by 18 feet, which was erected in 1824, a short distance south of the center on the lot later occupied by Union White's store. This building served the double purpose of a school and a place of worship up to 1830, at which time M. White bought it and lived in it until the summer of 1832. Samuel Palmer taught the first school here in the year 1824, his pupils being from the families of Rundle and Abijah Palmer, Charles Lyon, Abram Mead, Gilbert Martin and Joseph Washburn.

We did not know where this first school stood which was referred to by W. W. Williams in 1879, however, I think I have found the location. On the 9th of February in 1831, Union White & Co. purchased of Abram Mead and his third wife, Jane, Lot Number 6 in the Village of Clinton. This is the point of land lying between U. S.Route 250 and Fitchville River Road, and the schoolhouse stood very near this point. In the body of the deed, the description starts: "Beginning at the southeast corner of the Old School House ....".

When Bartsche Mitchell had the old Union White store building torn down in 1975, and the men were removing the old stone steps, they found ashes under them, which indicates that Mr. White had burned the old log schoolhouse.

Shortly after Fitchville was organized as a separate township, the trustees met at the home of Abram Mead on July 25, 1829 for the purpose of dividing the townshisp into school districts. They set up five school districts as shown below, and listed the families in each. From year to year many changes were made in many of the districts, and sometimes they added more districts, sometimes they combined some. On October 4, 1838, they designated the Village of Clinton as School District #8.

The earliest township election recorded is 1831. At a township election held at the house of Abram Mead in Fitchville, the following officers were elected: Trustees - Harry Hickock, David Sherwood and Zalmon Green; Treasurer - Abram Mead; Clerk - Cyrus Everts; Constables - Chauncey Crane and Joseph Barker; Overseers of the Poor - Rundle Palmer and Ashbel G. Following is a list of the men in the township who were elected to the position of Road Supervisors and the years they served. Once in a while a man was elected who refused to serve, and then there were some who once elected, didn't really work at the job of supervisor.

From time to time these districts were changed and on March 7, 1830, the Eighth and Ninth Districts were set up.

The earliest township election recorded is 1831. At a township election held at the house of Abram Mead in Fitchville, the following officers were elected: Trustees - Harry Hickock; David Sherwood and Salmon Green; Treasurer - Abram Mead; Clerk - Cyrus Everts; Constables - Chauncey Crane and Joseph Barker; Overseers of the Poor - Rundle Palmer and Ashbel K. Root; Fence Viewers - Daniel Ward and Uriel Stevens; Supervisors of Roads - William W. Watros, Lewis G. Green, Hiram A. Curtis, Samuel B. Mead, Seely Lyon, Austin Ward, Ebenezer Green, Abel F. Eaton and Andrew Woodruff.

Poll, April 4, 1839 - "Road Work. Benj. O'Dell, work on road - $4.60. I think the total payment to him through the year was, $18.50. Total expenditure for the year - $67.19, total receipts - $319.60."

Following is a list of the men in the township who were elected to the position of Road Supervisors and the years they served. Once in a while a man was elected who refused to serve, and then there were some who once elected, didn't really work at the job of supervisor.

Aaron D. Abbott, 1861; John Abbott, 1857; S. B./Sylvester B. Abbott, 1851, 1853; S.(?) Allison, 1858; Samuel Allison, 1861; William Ashton, An unusual tragedy is written on a tombstone in the Fitchville Cemetery. Jotham Curtiss and his brother-in-law, Chester Maiz/Mais were deer hunting in the fall of 1842, in the township, when Maiz accidently discharged his gun, killing Curtiss. Some have interpreted the worn tombstone to read ".....in the hands of his mother-in-law", but closer examination shows the wording to read "... in the hands of his brother-in-law."

CENTENNIAL BIOGRAPHICAL HISTORY

The first road in the county was known as the Wooster road, running from Wooster via Greentown to Mansfield, and the second road was from Mount Vernon via the McCluer settlement, and was called the state road.

James McCluer was so favorably impressed with the Clear Fork country and gave such glowing description of the same that several relatives and others joined him the same season. Upon the organization of the county in 1813 James McCluer was appointed one of the associate judges of the court of common pleas and sold his land to Robert Bell, who, in 1815, laid out a town plat of forty-eight lots, and the town was named Bellville. Judge McCluer removed to Mansfield and lived in a cabin on the northwest corner of Main and Fourth streets, the present site of the Mansfield Savings Bank. The last years of Judge McCluer's life were passed at Leesville, where he died ripe in years and in honors. The McCluer cabin at Bellville stood on the lot now owned by David Zent, south of the railroad and east of Main street and on the part of the lot he now cultivates as a garden. The block-house, built in September, 1812, stood near the present site of S. N. Ford's grain elevator.

The first death in the township was that of Stephen Dodge, in 1811. He was buried on Snake Hill, now called Beulah cemetery.

A postoffice at Bellville was established in 1824, with Isaac Hoy as postmaster.

Private schools were taught by William Spears in 1815-'16-'17. The first public school in the township was taught by Timothy Evarts in 1818, and the schoolhouse stood on the old state road, a short distance north of Honey creek.

Mrs. Oldfield, whose maiden name was Lucy Palmer, was my first teacher in the schoolhouse that was afterward built near this spot. She was an exemplary Christian lady and one of the best of educators. My first day at school seemed a long one, for I was homesick and wished for the closing hour to come that I might go home to my mother, and a similar wish is the theme of my longing to-day.

John Leedy was one of the 1810 settlers, and his descendants live mostly in the southern part of the township. Mr. Leedy's daughter Catherine married Samuel Garber, and of their children, Jehu is perhaps the most widely known, as he served two terms as county commissioner.

Lewis K. Leedy came in 1811 and was the pioneer "singing master" of his time, and it seems but a few years since he attended our pioneer meetings and joined his marvelous gift of voice with those of Joseph Fleming, William Pollock, I. N. Thompson, John Schrack, Samuel Bell, Mrs. Yingling, of Matson & Dirlam, of Mansfield. In the fall of 1878 they were admitted to the bar, and in the same year opened a law office in Shelby, when the city was an unpretentious town, its population not exceeding fifteen hundred. Under the firm name of Skiles & Skiles the brothers entered upon what has been a very successful professional career. As the years passed and their reputation grew they became known as leading lawyers of Ohio. Besides conducting a general practice they have made a specialty of railroad litigation, and by means of their ability many a man who has been injured through the railroad has been compensated. Both brothers possess marked ability, arising from thorough preparation and close and discriminating study in subsequent years. They prepare their cases with great care and precision and are thus well equipped for forensic combat. They have ever been closely associated in their professional labors and are self-made men whose advancement is due in no measure to the aid or influence of wealth or friends, but has resulted from personal worth and their skill in handling intricate problems of jurisprudence.

The brothers have also been closely associated in the advancement of many business concerns, which have contributed not only to their prosperity but also to the welfare of the city along many lines. They are stockholders in the Citizens' Bank, the Shelby Electric Company, the Shelby Water Company, the Ball-Bearing Umbrella Company, the Shelby Stove & Foundry Company, the Shelby Steel Tube Company and other organizations whose success are due in no small degree to their wise counsel.

In 1877 George M. Skiles was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Clark, and their union has been blessed by the following children: Roscoe, Blanche G., Grace A. and Glen G. Mrs. Skiles is a daughter of Samuel A. Clark and a granddaughter of Calvin Clark, a pioneer of Richland county. In politics Mr. Skiles is a stanch Republican and fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias and prominent in its circles, having for seven years been a member of the grand tribunal of the order in the state of Ohio.

SOLOMON EVARTS.

Solomon Evarts, who follows farming in Sandusky township, was born in Jefferson township, Richland county, April 19, 1829, and thus for more than three-score years and ten he has been a witness of the progress and development of this section of the state. His father, G. C. Evarts, was born in Vermont, in 1813, and was reared in Canada. The grandfather, Timothy Evarts, came to Ohio about 1817 and died on his farm south of Bellville, about of Skiles & Sutton, of Mansfield. In 1877 George M. Skiles was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Clark, and their union has been blessed with the following children: Horace, Winifred G., Grace A. and Glen C. Mrs. Skiles is a daughter of Samuel A. Clark and a granddaughter of Calvin Clark, a pioneer of Richland county. In politics Mr. Skiles is a stanch Republican and fraternally he is a member of the Knights of Pythias and prominent in its circles, having for some years been a member of the grand tribunal of the order in the state of Ohio.

SOLOMON EVARTS.

Solomon Evarts, who follows farming in Sandusky township, was born in Jefferson township, Richland county, April 19, 1849, and thus for more than three score years and ten he has been a witness of the progress and development of this section of the state. His father, G. C. Evarts, was born in Vermont in 1803, and was reared in Canada. The grandfather, Timothy Evarts, came to Ohio about 1817 and died on his farm south of Bellville, about 1846, at a very advanced age. He married Hannah Bigelow and they had a large number of sons and two daughters.

G. C. Evarts was the second eldest of the seven sons, all of whom were married and had children. His brother Reuben had twelve children, ten of whom reached mature years, and the father of our subject also had twelve children, ten of whom grew up to manhood or womanhood. His wife bore the maiden name of Catherine Walters and was born in Jefferson county, Ohio. They were married in Jefferson township, Richland county, about 1827, the bride being fifteen years of age. Their eldest child, Mary Ann, is now Mrs. Paxton, a widow, of Robinson, Kansas; Solomon is the next younger; Susan, the wife of Thomas Bull, had five children and died in 1899, at the age of sixty-eight years; Mrs. Sarah Beal had two children and died at Bellville, May 2, 1867; Gilbert, who engaged in railroading, died in Fort Wayne, Indiana, leaving three sons and two daughters; George, of Murphysboro, Illinois, has four sons and three daughters; Mrs. Rebecca Reed died in Crestline, Crawford county, Ohio, leaving four children; Mrs. Lucy Baer is living in Robinson, Kansas, and has four daughters and two sons; Matilda is the wife of H. Hiskey, of Kansas, and has two sons; and Harriet, the wife of James Stough, Bucyrus, this state, has one son and one daughter grown up. One child, Reuben, died in infancy and a daughter also died in early life. The father's death occurred in Robinson, Kansas, March 12, 1886, when he was eighty-two years of age.

Solomon Evarts was reared to farm life. He began following the plow when only nine years of age and when it got fast in the furrow he had to hitch the team to the rear of the plow to pull it loose. His educational privileges were limited, for his services were needed on the home farm and he remained upon that place, comprising one hundred and ninety-two acres, until he was twenty-five years of age. He was then married, on the 6th of October, 1853, to Lucy Ellen Coile, a daughter of David Coile, of the Shenandoah Valley, in Virginia. He was born April 25, 1811, and came to Ohio in 1830, following farming in Morrow county. He married Amanda Osborne, of Knox county, Ohio, and to them were born nine children, of whom four sons and four daughters are yet living. The mother was born in 1819 and died March 12, 1888, and the father, whose birth occurred in 1811, was called to his final rest on the 10th of June, 1900. Mr. and Mrs. Evarts have but two children: Amanda Melvina, who was born October 14, 1854, and is the wife of E. A. Ashbaugh; and John M., who was born August 10, 1857. He wedded Sarah Harris, of Springfield township, Richland county, and

For thirteen years Mr. Evarts rented land in Springfield township and in 1882 took up his abode on his present farm of eighty acres in Sandusky township. He also owns another tract of twenty-seven acres near by, and has timber upon both of these. He carries on general farming, raising crops and stock, making a specialty of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. In politics he is a stalwart Republican, and, though living in a Democratic stronghold, he has served as road supervisor and school director. He and his wife hold membership in the Methodist church in Blooming Grove. He is a man of even temper and genial disposition, possessing many admirable qualities that have gained him warm friendship.

EDWIN MANSFIELD.

Edwin Mansfield, a prominent attorney of Shelby, Ohio, was born June 9, 1861, and is a son of Martin H. and Anna (Saeger) Mansfield, the former a native of the state of New York and the latter of the state of Pennsylvania. They removed to Ashland county, Ohio, about 1842, where Mr. Mansfield was engaged in the manufacture of clover hullers. He was a member of a family of six sons and four daughters, the sons being Martin H., Cloyd, Henry and Newton, all of whom are living, and two others that died in infancy. The daughters were Mary E., who remains single; Belle, the wife of S. G. Weist; Portia, who died in 1888, at the age of twenty-two; and Myra E., the wife of E. R. Swett. The father of our subject died in 1880, at the age of fifty-eight, and the mother in 1899, at the age of seventy-four, her death occurring at Ashland, Ohio.

The school life of the subject of this sketch was passed in the Ashland public schools and at Ashland College, and afterward for some time he was in railroad service at Zanesville, Ohio, for the Zanesville & Southeastern Railroad Company, returning to Ashland in the latter part of the year 1881. Remaining there until 1882, he then removed to Shelby, Ohio, where he became the night clerk in the Junction hotel. While serving in this capacity he began the study of the law with Skiles & Skiles, and after two years thus spent was admitted to the bar in 1886. After practicing alone until 1891 he then formed a copartnership with B. F. Long, whose biographical sketch appears on another page in this work, the firm having made a specialty of municipal law.

Mr. Mansfield was married in October, 1891, to Mrs. Ada E. (Davis)

CHAPTER XLII.

BUTLER TOWNSHIP.

ORGANIZATION—TOPOGRAPHY—EARLY SETTLERS—CHURCHES—SCHOOLS—LA FAYETTE—MILLS—THE GRANGE—A WOLF HUNT.

BUTLER TOWNSHIP was formed March 5, 1849, by taking the eastern half, which had, prior to the erection of Ashland County, been a part of Clear Creek Township, and a strip two miles in width from the eastern part of Blooming Grove, and uniting them into a new township four miles in width and six miles in length. It is thus equal in size with all others in the north part of the county, having twenty-four square miles of territory.

The surface of Butler Township is flat. No other township in Richland County is so level. It is drained by the Whetstone, the head-waters of which find their sources in the northwest part of the township. In early times, it was wet and uninviting to the settlers, if that part is excepted on the Whetstone, and, consequently, it settled slowly. But since the country became opened to the sun, and the fallen timber all removed, which obstructed the drainage of the surface, it has developed into a fine agricultural district, with a rich, productive soil, well adapted for grass and stock-raising. The timber is chiefly beech, sugar, hickory, black walnut, cherry and oak, with a few sycamores lifting their long arms in the air. In its topographical features, it does not present the same variety of hill and dale as some other townships. With the exception of the Whetstone, but little running water is found within its boundaries; but good water is obtained at a convenient depth by digging.

Jacob Foulks settled in Butler Township in the year 1815, and entered land on the Whetstone. His son Ransom was born in 1816, being the first white child born in the township. The first death, that of his daughter Nancy, also took place at his house in 1818. His son, Henry Foulks, laid out the village of La Fayette in 1838, and kept the first store. The old homestead farm was sold to E. T. Kirk. Some of the descendants are yet in the neighborhood. James Kirk, son of E. T. Kirk, occupies the premises at present.

The first Justice of the Peace was Cyrus Evarts, who was Justice here before Ashland County was made. He was a resident for some time, of the township.

Robert Houston entered 160 acres of land on the Whetstone in 1818. He came from Delaware. In the year 1824, he was married to Sarah Owens, being the first marriage in the township. Their son, John Houston, is now living in La Fayette. He is running a steam saw-mill, and doing a large business. The first saw-mill put in operation in the township was on the site of this mill, by a Mr. Fairchild, in the year 1839.

Abraham Claberg came to Butler in the year 1815. His nearest neighbor was Jacob Foulks. Only two or three other families were in the township at the time. Occasionally, Indians were seen. His house stood on the banks of the Whetstone. He had two sons, Jacob and Isaac. Jacob still lives two miles north of La Fayette, and is one of the Commissioners of this county.

John Owens was born in Ireland, and emigrated to the United States in the year 1806, and settled in Pennsylvania; moved to Richland

County in the year 1814, and settled two miles below Ashland, and, after living there five years, came up to Butler Township, and entered a quarter of land on the Whetstone, two miles north of Olivesburg, in 1819, where he planted a large orchard, raising the first apples in the neighborhood. He assisted in building the first Presbyterian Church in Olivesburg; was active in organizing the first school in Butler Township. He had five sons and five daughters; Archibald was the oldest son, and still lives at La Fayette, and is nearly eighty years of age. The youngest daughter married the late Mr. Charles Anderson, and is living at La Fayette. Mr. Owens died in the year 1842, aged seventy-six. James Laughlin, one of his nearest neighbors, was associated with him in early church and school enterprises. The first school organized in the township was on Mr. Laughlin's land, and was taught by Joseph Ward, Sr., of Weller Township.

John Wolf settled in the west part of township, in 1816. The Starrs were his nearest neighbors for some time. Mrs. Starr is still living on the old farm, where she has resided about sixty-five years. Her son, Mitchel Starr, is a practicing physician. Mr. Wolf was a lifelong member of the Methodist Church. His house was, for a long time, one of the "backwoods chapels," where itinerant preachers held religious service, long before commodious churches were built. The Rev. Mr. Boardman was their first preacher. Mr. Wolf was an officer in the M. E. Church till the close of his useful and self-denying life. One of his daughters married the Rev. Jacob Fegtly, of the North Ohio Conference. The entire family removed to Iowa about the year 1857.

The first religious society at La Fayette was formed in 1842, and was composed of eight members, viz.: Joshua Ford, Elizabeth Ford, Edward T. Kirk, Mary Kirk, Samuel Robinson and wife, Mrs. George Dancer and John Freeman. For a time, they held their meetings in a log schoolhouse. In 1844, they built their first church, a frame building, at a cost of $500. The Trustees of this church were Joshua Ford and Edward T. Kirk. Edward T. Kirk and wife made a deed, and donated, in fee simple, one acre of ground for church and graveyard. The Rev. John Quigley was the Pastor, and dedicated the church; John H. Power was the Presiding Elder. In 1857, the old church edifice gave way to a more commodious building, of modern style. The contract was given to James O. Hagerman, of Weller Township, for the sum of $1,200. The Trustees were Joshua Ford, E. T. Kirk, Michael Kirk, Daniel Freeman; the Pastor, Silas Seymour.

A powerful revival followed the building of this church, and the society has continued to prosper. Only one of the original members is yet connected with the society—Mrs. E. T. Kirk. A Sunday school was organized when the new church was built, and is yet in successful operation. The present Superintendent is John Kirk.

There are seven common schools and schoolhouses, in the township, and three churches, viz., Methodist, Disciple and "Church of God."

The Disciple Church is situated in the northwest part of the township. It was built about the year 1870. Is a commodious structure, 40x50 feet in size. Its principal members are Charles Thompson, Peter Davidson, Thomas Tucker, George Garrow, Abram Crabbs, David Enzor and John Davidson. The Pastor is Rev. Mr. Cline. A successful Sabbath school is connected with the church. The Winebrenarians have a small society in the southeast part of the township.

There is no grist-mill in the township; two sawmills are in operation, owned by Morris & Sechrist and John Houston. The country is well adapted to stock-raising. The Messrs. Kirk have large stock-farms near La Fayette. A farmers' grange was organized here in 1874, and holds regular meetings. The citizens seem to take a laudable interest in guarding the morals of the community. All liquor-selling is prohibited, and other nuisances banished, as far as practicable. Not a drunkard is to be seen in the community.

No railroad at present touches the township. A tile factory, near Shenandoah, worked by Messrs. Whisler & Starr, is doing a good business.

Butler Grange was organized in April, 1874. Its officers are: Master, John Kirk; Overseer, William Garrow; Steward, J. Richardson; Assistant Steward, George Robinson; Lecturer, Henry Yockey; Chaplain, R. T. Brokaw; Secretary, D. V. Tucker; Treasurer, Cyrus Evarts; Business Agent, G. B. Barnes; Ceres, Mrs. M. Barnes; Gatekeeper, D. S. Dancer; Assistant Steward, Mrs. J. Brokaw; Flora, Mary Kirk; Pomona, Maggie Anderson; Gatekeeper, David Dancer.

The Grange owns and occupies a commodious hall in the village of La Fayette. It meets every two weeks, reads essays, collects statistics, discusses agricultural questions of interest, and keeps on hand a small stock of groceries. The Grange is said to be in a prosperous condition.

In the year 1828, a grand union wolf-hunt was organized by the citizens of this and adjoining townships. There were but few wolves, but there were at that time deer, wild turkeys, and other wild game. A central point was previously marked out in a little "neck of woods," the trees blazed conspicuously all round to form a "dead line." Marshals were appointed to manage the incoming lines, fill up vacancies, and prevent the escape of game through the lines. The "center" was near where the village of La Fayette now stands. The lines were formed about two or three miles back from the center, about 10 o'clock in the morning. Hundreds of people were on the lines in waiting, with guns, tin bugles, dogs, pitchforks, butcher-knives, etc. At a given signal, the lines advanced toward the center, every man and boy did his "level best" to make the biggest noise, and, as the advancing columns approached each other, the affrighted game, with heads aloft, would rush from side to side, seeking some avenue of escape. A number of wild turkeys rose on wing and sailed out over the lines in regular turkey triumph.

When the lines had come within sight of each other and the game was seen flying to and fro, the excitement in the crowd was indescribable. The officers lost control of the men, who commenced firing before the proper time. While in range of the opposite lines, one man had the bark of a tree knocked in his face by a passing bullet. In the center was a little knoll that protected opposite parties. A number of deer and turkeys were killed, but no wolves. The writer of these pages partook of a turkey killed by Archibald Owens on that day. After gathering up the wounded and the slain, a grand carnival was held, and, when the hunters separated for their homes, it was, no doubt, with the impression that it was the greatest and the grandest day since the days of Nimrod.

miles wide and eighteen miles long, embracing six Congressional townships, namely: Jefferson, Perry, Congress, North Blooming Grove, Troy and Washington. So rapidly this territory was settled, that a new election district seemed proper, and, September 5, 1814, the territory in question was divided, and the north half received the name of Troy. This left to Jefferson three townships, the present Jefferson, Perry and Congress; and while it retained this boundary, one election was held. Michael Shuey, Benjamin Potts and John Leedy were chosen Trustees, and William Spears, Clerk. The township was heavily in debt, so they regarded it, and the Trustees agreed to serve for nothing; and by common consent William Spears was allowed $1 for services as Clerk. On September 3, 1816, this election district was again divided, and the Jefferson Township of to-day was then organized. The Township Trustees made a final settlement with the Trustees of Perry Township October 12, 1816, and the indebtedness of the old district was $54.94, which was equally divided—Jefferson assuming one-half. The Trustees of this turned over to Perry one-half of a bond of $17 which they held against William Spears and John Zent, given for a stray horse the former purchased. The first election, after the township was reduced to six miles square, was held in April, 1818, and the following persons were elected to office: Justice of the Peace, Michael Shuey; Trustees, Samuel Devo, Barson Sweet and Enoch Ogle; Clerk, Timothy Evarts; Constables, William Casper and Benjamin Thrailkill. He was married to Margaret Davis in 1812, and moved in a small cabin he built about one and a half miles south of Bellville. He assisted in driving the Greentown Indians and served in the war a short time. From this first cabin, he built one on his own land and moved into it. He next moved southwest of Bellville three miles, then two miles south of Mt. Vernon, then near Ankneytown, Where he discontinued housekeeping. He died in Williams Co., Ohio, in November 1863. Mrs. Durbin was born in Virginia, near the Warm Springs, in 1792, and moved to Mt. Vernon when 17 years of age. At this date, March, 1880, she is alive and in the 88th year of her age. He was married Feb. 20, 1849, to Nancy Aungst; they commenced to keep house in Jefferson Township, and have lived in it to this day; Mrs. Durbin was born in the township also, on Dec. 17, 1822, and is a daughter of George Aungst, who migrated to Jefferson Township in an early day; their children are Lorenzo D., born Dec. 10, 1849; Sarah Jane, Aug. 6, 1851; George W., March 14, 1853; Samuel, Dec. 26, 1854; Joseph J., Dec. 1, 1856; James C., Jan. 28, 1859; Arabella, March 4, 1861; Aaron, April 25, 1863; Lorenzo was married to Mary Elizabeth Teeter, Dec. 23, 1875, and has two sons; George W. was married to Elizabeth Garber in 1879. Mr. Durbin has held the office of Township Trustee, and other local offices. Farming has been his main occupation through life; when young, he did some teaming to and from the lake, and of late years has given his attention largely to stock-growing. He was in the war of the rebellion as a teamster. Samuel, his third son, has been successfully teaching school for several years.

BUTLER TOWNSHIP

Butler Township was organized in the spring of 1849. It was formed by detaching ten miles of territory off the east side of Bloominggrove Township, and uniting it with the township of Clearcreek, thereby forming a township six miles in length, north and south, and four miles wide. It was named Butler in honor of Gen. Wm. G. Butler, the Democratic candidate for Vice President in 1848.

The first election was held, for township officers, on the 2nd of April 1849. There were 157 votes polled. The officers elected, were Chas. Anderson, Wm. Young and Jno. Stevenson, Trustees; Isaac Clayberg, Clerk; H.W. Wood, Treasurer; G.C. Everts, Assessor; S.E. Robinson and G.E. Everts, Constables.

The first settler in the township was Jacob Foulks, who built his cabin in 1816 upon the section now owned by E.T. Kirke, Esq. Shortly after, and during the same year, Abraham Clayberg also settled in the township. Among the early settlers may be names also John Wolph (1817), Robert and John Starr (1818), Thos. Whitelock (1819). and Robert Patterson (1820).

The first road opened in Butler Township was that between Savannah and Plymouth about the year 1825.

STARR FAMILY

Robert and John Starr came to Butler Township in 1819. They were born in Ireland, county of Tyronne, but came to America at an early age. Their Father, David was in very comfortable circumstances for a mechanic, and owned a small farm; but loving liberty better than ease, he sold out and migrated to America. He settled first at Carlyle, Pennsylvania, but subsequently removed to Mifflin County, Pennsylvania, where he died in 1803. Robert is still living. He came out in the month of May. Settlers were few and the means of living scarce. Wheat brought $1.50 a bushel and hard to find at that. Starr succeeded in getting two and a half bushels at an administrators sale on the Black Fork. He then started out to find something to do.

After traveling some three days he found a man who lived about two miles from Mt. Vernon who wanted some rails split and was willing to pay in flour, at the rate of fifty cents per hundred rails. He agreed also to keep Starr and his horse over Sunday, it being then Saturday night, at the modest rate of 12 1/2 cents a day for the horse, all payable in rail splitting. He worked three days and split seven hundred rails, and happily returned to Butler with his hard earned flour. Mr. Starr, how-

JACKSON TOWNSHIP

The first settlers in Jackson Township were Matthew and Joseph Curren. They located in section thirty six; Joseph on the south east quarter and Matthew on the southwest quarter. The first cabin in the township was built by Matthew Curren in the spring of 1816, on land now owned by Robert Cairns. Joseph built his cabin shortly after.

Several other settlers came in and settled in 1816, among them were Henry Taylor and Robert Henry. The first election in the township was held in 1822. There were six votes polled; Bennet Taylor, Giles Swan and Uriah Matson were elected trustees. The first mill in the township was built by James Carr.

CASS TOWNSHIP

The first cabin in Cass township was built by John McCart, on section twenty four, in 1816.

Among those who settled in that year and the year following may be named, John Long (sec. 11), John Morris (sec. 4), Daniel Gonsales (sec. 9), Asa Murphy (sec. 1), and Daniel Prosser (sec. 21). The first meeting house was built about the year 1827 by the Methodists at Old Salem, on section 1. The first school house was built in 1819, on section 9. The first teacher was A.D. Bodley.

JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP

The first settlement in Jefferson Township was made in the vicinity of Belleville as early as 1808 or 1809.

The first mill in the township was Herron's mill, and was built on the Clearfork about four miles up the creek from Belleville.

Belleville derived its name from Mr. Bell who owned the land upon which the village is located.

The first trader who opened a store in Belleville was William Thrift. He sold coffee for 50 cents per pound and tea for $2 and took in exchange oats at eight cents a bushel. Goods in those days had to be wagoned through the wilderness from Lake Erie.

At the Pioneer Celebration of 1869, Reuben Evarts, Esq. furnished the following list of pioneers who were then living in Jefferson Township, and who were in the county prior to the year 1820 A.D.

The following interesting account of early times in Jefferson Township was received from Lewis K. Leedy, and was written in reply to a letter of inquiry. He says:

"I shall not be able to answer the questions you ask by a considerable. You will remember that my father lived in the southwest corner of the township, on section 35. Between us and Belleville was the Chestnut Ridge, without a road or trail of any kind. On the south, was a road which my father had cut out from A.H. Roice's, near whom lived Markely and Fitting. This you must know was in Knox County, as we lived but a few miles north of the Knox County line. In this direction they were the only neighbors we had for quite a number of years. Our place for trading and attending meeting was at Mt. Vernon. I remember to have heard my father say that the first election he ever attended in Belleville was the time that Jackson, Adams, Caly and Crawford were candidates for President.

"I have no means of telling when the township was organized. The first settlement was made where Belleville now stands. We missing. No animal could be more friendly than he seemed to be, no matter what the quantity, color or quality of the hair he wears, or the number of feet he walks on. And judging from my small experience with bears and Indians, I am inclined to think they are not very dissimilar from other animals - human or dumb; their conduct toward you is governed to some extent by your conduct toward them."

NOTE - " We lived about a mile north of what is called the Old Boundary line, near the line between Knox and Richland counties. South of that line in time of the war, soldiers were drafted or volunteered. North of that line they were considered frontiersmen, and ordered to stay at home and protect the frontier. My father, against his will, stayed at home, though he sent a rifle to the block house at Mansfield and his teams to Fort Meigs with provisions." L.K.L

Bellville, O. May 5, 1873

R. Brinkerhoff, Esq:

I don't know where or by whom the first cabin was erected in Richland County. I have no definite knowledge of the Beam's mill cabin. Tradition says that Thomas McCluer and Jonathan Oldfield, with help of Indians, erected a cabin where Bellville now stands in the spring of 1808. This was undoubtedly the first cabin in the south tier of townships, and very probably the first in the county, as the wave of emigration came from the south. This is my answer to your inquiry, and if that particular point is to be definitely settled, why not publish this and let better authority respond?

Truly yours,
Reuben Evarts

Another letter to Mr. Brinkerhoff:

May 13, 1873

Believing that a little correction cast into your "Pioneer History," as you are passing from township to township, would be proper and acceptable, I offer the following for Jefferson, which you can publish or burn, as it suits your inclination:
First, Herron's mill was built where Hanewalt's mill now stands, in Perry Township. The first mill in Jefferson was built by John Zent, where Bowers' mill now stands - one half mile west of Bellville - about the year 1814.

AN UNKNOWN VERMONTER:

SYLVANUS EVARTS, GOVERNOR CHITTENDEN'S TORY BROTHER-IN-LAW

By Gwilym R. Roberts

On February 20, 1779, the Assembly of the State of Vermont joined the Governor and Council in granting to Timothy and Eli Evarts 120 acres of land in Castleton, in recompense for a debt owed by the state to their father. This would not in itself be remarkable were it not that six days later the father, Sylvanus Evarts, was proscribed as a Tory, and all of his property ordered seized for the benefit of the state. Commenting that "the sin of the father was not visited upon the children," the editor of the records of the Vermont Governor and Council in 1873 referred to this grant as a "remarkable instance of generosity".[1]

A rather important fact of which the editor apparently was unaware, and which has escaped other Vermont historians, is that Eli and Timothy Evarts were nephews of Governor Thomas Chittenden, and that Sylvanus Evarts, center of an important group of Castleton Tories, was a brother-in-law of the governor. The family histories of Thomas Chittenden and Sylvanus Evarts illustrate well the fact that social standing was no sure guide in determining loyalty during the American Revolution, and that men of apparently similar backgrounds often chose opposite sides in that struggle.

The Chittenden and Evarts families had lived near each other in East Guilford, Connecticut, for at least ninety-seven years before the day in 1749 when John, Nathaniel, and Sylvanus Evarts joined some of the Chittenden family in a move to the young town of Salisbury, in northwestern Connecticut. In the group were Thomas Chittenden, a nineteen-year-old bridegroom, and his sister Elisheba, two years his senior, who was married to Sylvanus Evarts.[2]

The two families soon became very prominent in Salisbury community life. John Evarts was the first man to represent Salisbury in the Connecticut Assembly, where he served six consecutive terms, while Thomas Chittenden was also a representative for ten sessions before he was forty years old. Sylvanus Evarts was not as prominent, but served as tithingman and highway surveyor. John Evarts and

Thomas Chittenden were in the exclusive group of eighteen men listed at more than one hundred pounds in the Salisbury Grand List of 1759; at more than seventy pounds, Sylvanus Evarts was considerably wealthier than the average Salisbury citizen.[3]

When the leading men of Salisbury decided to try to gain possession of some land in the "New Hampshire Grants", John Evarts was chosen to go to Portsmouth to apply for two townships. By redistributing the names on his list, he secured charters for three townships on Otter Creek—New Haven, Middlebury, and Salisbury. His name headed each charter, and eight other members of the Evarts family, including his two brothers, were to be found among the grantees, as were Thomas Chittenden and most of the other leading citizens of Salisbury. As in the case of most other New Hampshire grants of the early 1760's, most of the recipients used their ownership of land in the "Grants" for purposes of speculation rather than of settlement.[4]

In 1773, a year before Thomas Chittenden made the move to his "Onion River" lands which was to lead to political fame, Sylvanus Evarts decided to try another frontier town. Just as Amos Bird, the real founder of Castleton, had sold his Salisbury lands to get money for his Vermont venture ten years earlier, Sylvanus Evarts now disposed of all his Salisbury property in order to acquire the valuable real estate left in Castleton when Bird had died the previous September at the age of twenty-nine. The three hundred pounds gained from the Salisbury sale on March 8, 1773, provided exactly the amount which Evarts had agreed eight days earlier to pay for the Bird farm and residence in Castleton, together with one half of the valuable sawmill and water rights at the outlet of Lake Bomoseen, then called the "Great Pond".[5]

Before 1776, Oliver Evarts had joined his father in Castleton, to which village Sylvanus apparently had moved shortly after he purchased the Bird property. In February of 1776, Oliver Evarts went back to Salisbury to marry Nancy Landon, daughter of James Landon, J. P., who performed the ceremony. James Landon was one of the wealthiest men in Salisbury, and had represented that town in the Connecticut Assembly on many occasions. Within a few months after the wedding, Asa Landon, Oliver's new brother-in-law, moved to Castleton. A fourth member of the family group in the frontier community was Gilbert Evarts, son of Salisbury's leading citizen, Sylvanus Evarts' brother John.[6] when conditions in that area, already complicated because of the argument with the "Yorkers" over land ownership, became tremendously hazardous due to the Revolutionary War and a British invasion. In May of 1775, Zadock Remington's tavern in Castleton became the rendezvous point for the expedition for the capture of Ticonderoga planned and led by Ethan Allen, formerly part-owner of the iron "furnace" in the Furnace Pond area of Salisbury, the section in which the Evarts family had lived. The year 1776 saw the building at Skenesboro, some ten miles from Castleton, of the little fleet with which Benedict Arnold would force the postponement for a year of the British invasion from Canada, although the fleet itself would be lost in the battle of Valcour Island. The same year also saw this section of the "Grants" scourged by smallpox and other diseases caught from the remnants of the Montgomery-Arnold expedition to Canada, while those remnants were dying by the hundreds at Ticonderoga and Crown Point.

The migrants from Salisbury were barely settled in Castleton

The real days of testing and of terror for Castleton came between July 6 and July 24, 1777, with Burgoyne's invasion. On July 6, a group of Tories and Indians, led by Justus Sherwood, raided the little settlement, causing the death of Captain John Hall of Castleton and of Captain Williams of Guilford, Vermont. Ticonderoga had been evacuated early that morning, and throughout the hot July Sunday the Americans under General St. Clair had been retreating down the "Hubbardton Road", which the American Army had constructed the preceding year. A few miles behind them came the British under Fraser and the Germans under Riedesel. By nightfall, St. Clair and the main body of the American troops were in Castleton.

Early the following morning, July 7, the British attacked the unprepared American rear guard which, under Colonel Francis and Seth Warner, had remained at Hubbardton, six miles from St. Clair's troops. After a short but fierce engagement, the Americans were driven over the hills to the eastward, while St. Clair, learning of this defeat and also of the British seizure of Skenesboro, took his troops eastward to Rutland to avoid capture. On the following day, residents who remained in Castleton saw Riedesel and his Germans march through on their way to Skenesboro, and on Wednesday the British under Fraser followed the same route, stopping in Castleton for a gill of rum per man as encouragement against the difficult traveling. By the following Sunday, the Germans were back in Castleton, having bridged the Poultney river and cut a road through what is now Fair Haven on their return trip.[7]

Residents of the Castleton area who wished to preserve their loyalty to the new "United States of America" faced during the next eleven days a combination of unfavorable circumstances probably unmatched in any other section during the American Revolution. Castleton was an occupied village, with Lieutenant Colonel Breyman's corps stationed just west of the little settlement and with Riedesel's main force west of Breyman's along the Castleton River. The "rebel" army had been dispersed, and if it reassembled it would be, as General Schuyler wrote, "weak in numbers, dispirited, naked . . . destitute of provisions . . . with little ammunition, and not a single piece of cannon."[8]

Many parts of the United States faced similar problems during the Revolution, but the position of the residents of the "New Hampshire Grants" was made much more difficult by doubts as to the legality of their government and of their land ownership. The government of "Vermont", to which the settlers were asked to be loyal, consisted of only a Council of Safety acting rather irregularly under a hastily adopted constitution. The Congress of the United States seemed to be turning against their claims to ownership of land in the "Grants", while the New York Committee of Safety, with which they were asked to cooperate, contained many of the men who had taken the lead in opposing the Vermonters' land claims.[9]

On July 10, Burgoyne summoned all citizens of the area to meet in Castleton on July 15 to receive protection from Colonel Philip Skene, whose great iron works and mills over at Skenesboro had been destroyed by the retreating Americans. For those settlers who would put a bit of paper in their hats or wear their shirts outside their coats as signs of acceptance of Burgoyne's protection, there would be a profitable market for farm produce as well as protection from Burgoyne's Indian allies. Remaining loyal to the rebelling colonies meant confiscation of their produce and possible destruction of their homes—the "devastation, famine, and every concomitant horror" which Burgoyne had threatened.[10]

Under the circumstances, it is not surprising that General Schuyler reported to Washington that "a very great portion of the residents of the New Hampshire Grants" had accepted protection from Burgoyne, nor that many residents of Rutland county furnished provisions for the British.[11] Their real feelings are harder to determine; Riedesel reported that four hundred persons accepted protection at Castleton, but he felt that many of them were insincere, and really served as spies against the true loyalists. A German soldier reported that "Castle-town" was "one-third royalist and two-thirds rebel" and that

For those settlers who would put a bit of paper in their hats or wear them affixed outside their coats as signs of acceptance of Burgoyne's protection, there would be a profitable market for farm produce as well as protection from Burgoyne's Indian allies. Remaining loyal to the rebels was to mean certain confiscation of their produce and possible destruction of their homes—the "devastation, famine, and every concomitant horror" which Burgoyne had threatened.[9]

Under the circumstances, it is not surprising that General Schuyler reported to Washington that "a very great number of the inhabitants of the New Hampshire Grants" had accepted protection from Burgoyne, nor that many residents of Rutland county furnished provisions for the British.[10] Their real feelings are harder to discover. Burgoyne reported that four hundred persons accepted protection at Castleton, but he felt that many of them were insincere, and really served as spies against the true loyalists. A German officer reported that "Castletown" was "one-third royalist and two-thirds rebel" and that "very few consent to take the oath of allegiance, a number agree to neutrality, perhaps because of our proximity and their property."[12]

After the British had gone, persons who had accepted Burgoyne's protection reluctantly or insincerely were treated gently by the Vermont government, but Sylvanus Evarts and his family were not in this group. In January 1776, Oliver Evarts apparently was working closely with the "Green Mountain Boys" when he was named one of three assistant secretaries at the Dorset Convention, but in 1777 his attitude was quite different. He was later to assert that he "gave all assistance in his power to the Army under the Command of General Burgoyne," furnishing provisions, fat cattle, and forage, and his team to transport provisions, "procuring and clearing a Road through the Woods from Castleton to East Bay."[13] Sylvanus Evarts, Gilbert Evarts, and Asa Landon must have joined Oliver Evarts in enthusiastic support of the British army, for when the Vermont Court of Confiscation first met in April of 1778, these four men were in the first group of Tories whose real and personal property was declared forfeit to the state by reason of their treasonable conduct. The presiding officer of this court was Governor Thomas Chittenden, Sylvanus Evarts' brother-in-law; the clerk was Matthew Lyon, whose wife was Sylvanus Evarts' niece; a third member of the five-man board was Timothy Brownson, a former Salisbury neighbor who, like Chittenden, had secured his Otter Creek lands through the activity of Gilbert Evarts' father.[14]

It was under these circumstances that the Governor and Council and the Assembly of Vermont voted to give to Eli and Timothy Evarts 120 acres of land for a debt due to their father from the state. This land was part of the Amos Bird farm which their father forfeited, and the commissioner of sequestration also sold to Eli Evarts an adjoining plot of one hundred acres, likewise forfeited by Sylvanus. Timothy and Eli together bought other confiscated property worth seventy-two pounds.[15]

Of all the property confiscated in Castleton, the most valuable single item was Sylvanus Evarts' half of the "mill lot", with its share of the water power of the Lake Bomoseen outlet—the one stream in the area which provided dependable power throughout the summer. The disposal of this property shows something of the narrowness of the line which on some occasions distinguished the "Tories" whose land was confiscated from the "patriots" who were allowed to buy it. For sixty pounds each, James Claghorn, commissioner of sequestration, sold this mill interest to another commissioner, George Foote, Very few cared to take the oath of allegiance, a number were so neutral, perhaps because of war profiteering and their property.[illegible]

After the British had gone, persons who had accepted Burgoyne's protection voluntarily or unwillingly were treated gently by the victorious government, but Sylvanus Evarts and his family were not in the group. In January 1776, Oliver Evarts apparently was working closely with the "Green Mountain Boys" when he was named one of three arbiters, or referees, at the Dorset Convention, but in 1777 his attitude was quite different. He was later to assert that he "gave all assistance in his power to the Army under the Command of General Burgoyne," furnishing provisions, his oxen, and horses, and his team to transport provisions "providing and clearing a Road through the Woods from Castleton to Fort Ann."[illegible] Sylvanus Evarts, Gilbert Evarts, and John Linton must have joined Oliver Evarts in enthusiastic support of the British army, for when the Vermont Court of Confiscation first met on July 3 of 1778, these Castleton men were in the first group of Tories whose real and personal property was declared forfeit to the state by reason of their treasonable conduct. The presiding officers of the court were Governor Thomas Chittenden, Sylvanus Evarts' brother-in-law; the clerk was Matthew Lyon, whose wife was Sylvanus Evarts' niece; a third member of the five-man board was Timothy Brownson, Sylvanus Evarts' neighbor who, like Chittenden, had secured his Onion River lands through the activity of Gilbert Evarts' father.[illegible]

It was under these circumstances that the Governor and Council and the Assembly of Vermont voted to give to Eli and Timothy Evarts the sum of [illegible] for a lot the [illegible] from the state. This land was part of the [illegible] land, which their father had farmed and the commissioners of confiscation also sold to Eli Evarts an adjoining piece of the confiscated acres. Moreover [illegible] Timothy and Eli together bought other confiscated property where [illegible] possible.[illegible]

Of all the property confiscated in Castleton, the most valuable single item was Sylvanus Evarts' half of the "mill lot," with its share of the water power of the Castleton River rapids—the first stream in the area which provided dependable power throughout the seasons. The disposal of this property shows something of the nervousness of the time which did exist between the "Tories" whose land was confiscated from the "patriots" who were allowed to buy it. For sixty pounds each, James Claghorn, commissioner of confiscation, sold this mill interest to another commissioner, George Foote, and to Zadock Remington, each of whom thus gained one quarter of the water right.[16]

The Revolutionary record of George Foote, captured by the British during Burgoyne's invasion, could hardly be questioned, but Zadock Remington does not seem to qualify as the sort of sincere revolutionist to whom the commissioners were expected to sell Tory property. Although the expedition which captured Ticonderoga in the spring of 1775 had assembled at his tavern west of Castleton village, his Tory sympathies soon became legendary in the little community. Less than four months before he was allowed to purchase the confiscated mill lot, the Assembly of Vermont had voted that "Mr. Zadock Remington be dismist or expelled this House", apparently for his pro-British views.[17] Even when applying for remuneration for his supposed losses in the Revolution, he had to admit that he had paid a fine of sixty dollars in 1780 to avoid receiving fifteen lashes on his bare back at Castleton fort after a court martial had sentenced him for deserting a scouting party to the northward.[18]

Castleton settlers had been influenced further against the Remington family by the activities of Zadock's brother David, former surveying partner of Ira Allen. David Remington had been one of the two men who supervised the building of the "Hubbardton Road" by American soldiers in 1776, but when the British arrived in Castleton, he took charge of providing transportation for the baggage of the Hessian soldiers and of securing extra horses for Tories. His prominence among Castleton Tories is illustrated by a letter written by Philip Skene on July 10, 1777, addressed to "Mr. Remington and the other Inhabitants of the places adjacent".[19] After the British left, all of David Remington's property was confiscated, but he was later allowed to return to live in Vermont.[20]

Despite this popular suspicion of Zadock Remington and of his family, he acquired and retained half of Sylvanus Evarts' lot and water right. The last 196 acres of Evarts' land were sold to Isaac "Old Rifle" Clark, who had aroused bitter controversy by killing a Tinmouth settler who had taken protection from Burgoyne. Clark had lost a brother at Bennington; his wife was one of Governor Chittenden's daughters, and therefore a niece to Sylvanus Evarts.[21]

Three-fifths of Oliver Evarts 250-acre plot was sold to Reuben Moulton, who apparently took the oath and accepted Birtish protection reluctantly during the period of occupation. Moulton also bought fifty acres of Asa Landon's confiscated land, while Castleton selectman Perez Sturtevant secured the use of Gilbert Evarts' farm and to Zadock Remington, each of whom thus gained one quarter of the tavern right.

The Revolutionary record of George Foote, captured by the British during Burgoyne's invasion, could hardly be questioned, but Zadock Remington does not seem to qualify as the sort of sincere revolutionist to whom the commissioners were expected to sell Tory property. Even when applying for compensation for his supposed losses in the Revolution, he had to admit that he had paid a fine of sixty dollars in 1780 to avoid receiving fifteen lashes on his bare back at Castleton fort after a court martial had sentenced him for deserting a scouting party to the British.

Castleton patriots had been antagonized further against the Remington family by the activities of Zadock's brother David, former surveying partner of Ira Allen. Earlier Remington had been one of the two men who supervised the building of the "Hubbardton Road" by American soldiers in 1776, but when the British arrived in Castleton, he took charge of providing transportation for the baggage of the Hessian soldiers and of securing extra horses for Tories. His prominence among Castleton Tories is illustrated by a letter written by Philip Skene on July 19, 1777, addressed to "Mr. Remington and the other Inhabitants of the places adjacent". After the British left, all of David Remington's property was confiscated, but he was later allowed to return to live in Vermont.

Despite this popular suspicion of Zadock Remington and of his family, he acquired and retained half of Sylvanus Evans' lot and water right. The last 150 acres of Evans' land were sold to Isaac "Old Rock" Clark, who had aroused local controversy by killing a Tennessee soldier who had asked protection. Since Burgoyne, Clark had left a brother at Bennington; his wife was one of Governor Chittenden's nieces, and therefore a niece-in-law of Sylvanus Evans.

The remainder of Oliver Tharp's 150-acre plot was sold to Reuben Moulton, who apparently took the oath and accepted British protection voluntarily during the period of occupation. Moulton also bought fifty acres of Asa Lawdon's confiscated land, while Castleton selectman Peter Brownson secured the use of Gilbert Lenard's farm for twenty-two pounds rental. Other entries in the records of the confiscation commissioners report the sale of "a wooling wheele", a "Linning Wheele", a pine meat tub, and "one wooden Bole", all formerly the property of Oliver Evarts, and the sheep, corn, leather and household goods of Gilbert Evarts. George Foote and Reuben Moulton were especially active in making purchases at the latter sale, which disposed of such homely articles as two pillions, a "Hetchell", a "jugg", a trammel, some bedrope, and three chests.[22]

Once the Revolution was over, the Tories faced the prospect of starting out anew somewhere or of returning to the homes from which they had been driven. Some indication of the reception they might receive in their old homes is to be found in the records of the Castleton town meeting of April 23, 1784. Gaylord Hawkins, son of a man who had once owned eight hundred acres near the center of Castleton, had fled back to Connecticut to avoid prosecution by the Vermont Council of Safety. The town's action was brief and revealing when Hawkins returned to Castleton: "Then the moderator Desired that those who would Except [sic] of Mr. Gailard Hawkins to be an inhabitant in this town would be on the East end of the House the Inhabitants that were voters Seperated [sic] the moderator declared that it was no vote".[23]

The younger Tories generally left Castleton. Gilbert Evarts went to Salisbury, Vermont, where he still owned land granted to him some twenty years earlier; here he became the only original grantee ever to live in the township.[24] Oliver Evarts went to Canada, where in 1787 he filed with the British commissioners investigating Tory claims the required evidence of his Revolutionary losses. He states that he had joined the British when they arrived at Ticonderoga, and that after the British left Castleton he was "robbed and plundered by the rebels of all his Movable Effects, his Life threatened and obliged to flee to Canada with his family". In 1780 he had become a clerk in the Engineers' Department at St. Johns, where he was working in 1787.[25]

Oliver Evarts showed the commissioners the pass given to him by Philip Skene in July, 1777 and presented an inventory of losses which provides some interesting information as to the possessions of an upper class resident of frontier Castleton. Along with the usual farm tools, cheeses, cattle, pewter, brass, and gallons of rum, Evarts claimed the loss of two suits, one of them being of superfine broadcloth and worth more than eight pounds, two pairs of buckskin breeches and two pairs of cloth breeches, four white linen shirts worth fifteen shilfor twenty-two pounds sterl. Other entries in the records of the confiscated-estate dealers report the sale of "a wooling wheele", a "Linning Wheele", a pine plate table, and "one wooden Bole", all formerly the property of Oliver Evans, and the sheep, corn, leather and household goods of Gilbert Evans. George Foote and Reuben Mattison were especially active in making purchases at the latter sale, which disposed of such homely articles as two pillows, a "Hetchell", a "pigg", a cartwheel, some leather, and three cheeses.[9]

Once the Revolution was over, the Tories faced the prospect of starting life anew elsewhere or of returning to the homes from which they had been driven. Some indication of the reception they might receive in their old homes is to be found in the records of the Castleton town meeting of April 11, 1785. [illegible] Lee, son of a man who had once owned eight hundred acres near the center of Castleton, had fled north to Ticonderoga to avoid prosecution by the Vermont Council of Safety. The young man was loyal and traveling when [illegible] returned to Castleton. "Then the meeting Voted that those who would Except [sic] of Mr. [illegible] Lee [illegible] to be an inhabitant in this town would be on the East side of the House ... the Inhabitants that were voters Separated [sic] ... the moderator declared that it was no vote".[10]

The Vermont "Tory" generally left Castleton. Gilbert Evans went to Sandgate, Vermont, where he still owned land granted to him some twenty years earlier; there he became the only original grantee ever to live in the township. Oliver Evans went to Canada, where in 1787 he filed with the British commissioners investigating Tory claims the required evidence of his Revolutionary losses. He swore that he had joined the British when they arrived at Ticonderoga, and that after the British left Castleton he was "robbed and plundered by the rebels of all his Property. Besides this he was threatened and obliged to flee to Canada with his family". In 1786 he had become a clerk in the Engineers' Department at St. Johns, where he was working in 1797.[11]

Oliver Evans claimed the compensation for the goods given to him by Philip Skene in July 1777, and presented an inventory of losses which provides some interesting information as to the possessions of an upper-class resident of frontier Castleton. Along with the usual farm tools, about 1,500 pounds of beef, and gallons of rum, Evans claimed the loss of cloth coats, one of them being of superfine broadcloth and worth more than eight pounds, two pairs of buckskin breeches and two pairs of cloth breeches, four white linen shirts [illegible] lings each, a beaver hat worth thirty shillings, two silk handkerchiefs, and books which had cost him twenty-five dollars.[26]

Oliver Evarts claimed that he had purchased his father's sawmill interest in 1775 for seventy pounds, and presented an affadavit from his father as proof. Rejecting this claim for lack of proof of ownership and rejecting or whittling down many of Evarts' other claims of loss, the commission finally granted him one hundred eight pounds out of total asserted loss of over one thousand pounds.[27]

Asa Landon was living in Oswegatchie, Canada, in 1787, as were Justus Sherwood and many other former Vermont Tories. Although his claims of loss were much more modest than those of his brother-in-law, he received almost exactly the same amount from the British government.[28]

Eli Evarts also left Castleton immediately after the Revolution, in spite of the considerable amount of land which he had acquired there. He found a new frontier in the adjoining town of Fair Haven which, partly because of doubt that it would lie in Vermont even if the New Hampshire grants were made good, was not granted until 1779 and was first surveyed in 1780. In 1781 Eli Evarts went back to Salisbury, Connecticut, for a wife, and by 1784 they were living in a log cabin on land which he had bought from Isaac Clark, one of the two men chiefly influential in securing the Fair Haven grant. By 1793 Eli Evarts was a selectman in Fair Haven, where he apparently lived for the remainder of his life.[29]

The name of Sylvanus Evarts is not be to found among those of the Tory exiles who were recompensed by the British government for their sufferings. Fifty-six years old in 1777, he already had moved into two frontier towns and probably felt himself to be too old to face the wilderness for a third time. The story of his later years is told in a petition which Eli Evarts presented to the Vermont legislature in 1808.

In this petition, the son recounted the story of Sylvanus Evarts losing a "considerable estate" by joining the British at a time when Eli was taking "an active & decided part in favor of American independence," and of his father's return to the United States at the end of the Revolution. Eli reported that he had supported his father since that time, and that for the last fifteen years the old man had been almost helpless, unable to earn anything from his labor. The son had given bond to the town of Fair Haven to guarantee the expense of his father's support, and now claimed that he had no means in his power to "discharge that legal and moral obligation which the duty lings each, a beaver hat worth thirty shillings, two silk handkerchiefs, and books which had cost him twenty-five dollars.[29]

He claimed that Sylvanus Evarts had no other relative capable of supporting him, and that the petitioner could no longer do so without depriving his family of a "necessary and comfortable subsistence".[30]

Perhaps aware that in granting land to Eli and Timothy Evarts in 1779 the legislature had specified that this action should end any claim on the part of Sylvanus Evarts,[31] the 1808 legislature took no favorable action on Eli Evarts' petition.

Four years after this petition was filed, Zadock Remington sold one half of Sylvanus Evarts' former mill interest for two thousand dollars—a sum which would have kept the old man in comfort for many years at early nineteenth-century prices.[32]

Few man can have had family histories more similar than were those of Thomas Chittenden and Sylvanus Evarts at the period in which the two men first moved to Vermont. The decisions which Thomas Chittenden made and the leadership which he showed during the next few years brought him prosperity and repeated elections to the governorship of Vermont. The decision made by Sylvanus Evarts during that crucial July of 1777 brought him to disaster.

Vermont Place-Names by Esther Munroe Swift
The Stephen Greene Press, Brattleboro Vt 1977

1800's—and still have them. At different times all three villages have been known by different names. Hartland village often has been called Hartland Three Corners to distinguish it from Hartland Four Corners. In turn, the latter village was known for many years as Evarts. From 1909 to 1911 Hartland Four Corners' postal name was Evarts, and the railroad used the name through the 1930's. The Evarts family was well known in early Vermont. The Evarts brothers, John, Nathaniel and Sylvanus, were brothers-in-law to Governor Thomas Chittenden, and Sylvanus Evarts was married to the Governor's sister, Elisheba.

The main village of Hartland was often called Sumner village during the early years of the 19th Century because David Hubbard Sumner—who had come to Hartland from Claremont, New Hampshire—was easily the village's most important citizen: he was a captain of the Vermont militia, and from 1813 to 1833 he was the village postmaster. He developed many roads, ran a ferry across the Connecticut River, and built the Aterquechey Canal to help boats get around the falls in the Connecticut River.

Jenneville, in the southwestern part of town, got its name from the family of Samuel Jenne, who had settled in Hartland about 1770. During the 1880's several members of the family owned prosperous farms in the Jenneville neighborhood, and Samuel's great-grandson, Sebastian Jenne, operated a sawmill as well as a large sheep farm.

Martinsville was another small hamlet in the extreme southeastern corner of town, where Alonzo and Frank Martin operated large woodworking manufactories in the 1880's.

Fieldsville was another settlement that took its name from a locally prominent family. Foundryville derived its name from a forge and metalworking concern which once was that area's most important business.

Most of the topographic names come from local families: Garvin and Kent hills; Babcock, Harlow, Lulls and Shepard brooks. In addition, there are two picturesquely named streams: Alder Meadow Brook and Happy Valley Brook.

LUDLOW town (New Hampshire grant of 16 September 1761) was considerably larger when it was granted than it now is, because in 1792 about 11,000 acres were taken from the west side to make up half the town of Mount Holly.

It is not certain how Ludlow got its name. Some place-name afi-

John Evarts of Salisbury, Connecticut, representing a group of investors, had sought to acquire two parcels of land. When the grant had been completed and land examined, it was found that there was actually enough land for three towns in those two parcels. Middlebury College was founded in 1800 by Timothy Dwight, then President of Yale and son of the first white child known to have been born on Vermont soil. Its original purpose was to train young men from Vermont and neighboring states for the ministry and other learned professions of the early 19th century. In 1883, it became one the first formerly all-male schools in New England to admit women.

Middlebury enjoyed boom times when local marble quarries were active, activity which eventually fell victim to more modern quarrying techniques.The historic "Marble Works" is now a thriving restored shopping and business district.

Its central location in the Champlain Valley, the presence of Middlebury College (one of the more expensive private schools in the nation), and the historic shopping district with its shops, boutiques and eateries makes Middlebury an attractive place to linger for a while.

The Everts of Augusta Township

- By Meg A. Coulombe

In 1851, the census-taker of Augusta Township wrote that "the front of the Township is...distinguished in superiority of soil ....there are [also] some good farms in the [more northerly] concessions ....there are two streams running...through it, and... the face of the country...[is] extremely level."[1] This then was the land, although yet uncleared, that greeted my 4th great-grandfather, Oliver Everts, and his second wife and family, on their arrival in the Township as United Empire Loyalist settlers sometime between 1789 and 1791.[2]

For Oliver, the journey to Augusta had been a long one, spanning a thousand miles and some 12 to 14 years. The American Revolution had torn his well-to-do Vermont family apart. Even the family surname had divided into two spellings. Patriot supporters, like Oliver's half-brothers, Timothy and Eli, retained the old family spelling of Evarts. Oliver and his first wife and children, and his father, Sylvanus, fleeing to Canada as Loyalist refugees in 1777, changed their surname spelling to Everts.

They had been one of those old established New England families whose ancestors emigrated to Guilford, Connecticut, from England in the early 1600s[3] and whose descendants remained there for over a century. However, shortly after Oliver's birth in 1740, his mother, Martha/Hannah Hoyt died.[4] The following year, his father, with a new wife, Elisheba Chittenden, moved the family northward to the town of Salisbury, Conn. It was here that Oliver grew up.

By 1773, townships were being offered in the newly-opening region of Vermont, and Sylvanus and Elisheba moved once again, along with other members of both families. Elisheba's brother, Thomas, would later become governor of the new state. This time the couple settled in Castleton, Vermont, within easy riding distance of Sylvanus' large new forest acreage and sawmill at the outlet of Lake Bomoseen. Three years later, Oliver rejoined them with his bride, Nancy Landon,[5] daughter of Judge James Landon of Salisbury, Conn.

Then, in 1777, the fighting began and first British, then Patriot, occupation descended on Castleton. Sides were taken. Oliver and his father, Sylvanus [now again widowed], joined the Loyalists. Later that year, Oliver and Nancy, their young daughter, Milicent, and Sylvanus took what they could carry and fled to Ste. Therese, Que. They left behind the name Evarts, assuming thereafter, to write their name in Canada as Everts.

In 1778, a son, James, was born to Oliver and Nancy in Ste. Therese. James lived only eight months, and Nancy herself died the following year.[6] By 1780, the widowed Oliver, with his only surviving child, Milicent, and his father, had moved to nearby St. John's (present-day St. Jean), where Oliver worked as a clerk in the Engineers' Dept. of the British military.[7]

After the Peace had been declared, Sylvanus, now in his 60s, returned to Vermont. Timothy and Eli were now farming in Fair Haven, Vermont, not far from Castleton, and offered him a home with them.[8] Young Milicent accompanied her grandfather. Did Oliver and Sylvanus have a falling out? Contrary to naming customs of the time, none of Oliver's male descendants were ever given the first name of Sylvanus.

In May, 1786, Oliver took a second wife, an Irish lass named Honora Fleming, in Montreal.[9] The couple settled down in a house by the Richelieu River in St. John's, Que.[10] The following year, their first child, George, was born, followed by William in 1789. In the meantime, Milicent had died in Fair Haven in 1788, leaving Oliver with no issue from his previous marriage to Nancy Landon.[11]

Sometime between 1789, and 1791, Oliver, Honora, and their two young sons made the journey from St. John's, Que. to Augusta Township, Grenville County.[12] Oliver applied for land patents on the west half of lot 14 and the west half of lot 15 in concession 2, lot 15 in concession 3, and lot 15 in concession 4, giving him a parcel of 600 acres.[13] Here their third child, David, was born in 1791. His birth was followed by Mary's in 1793, and Johannah's in 1795. Two weeks after Johanna's birth, Honora died. Oliver was once more a widower, this time with five young children.[14]

However, friends and family lived nearby. His brother, Roswell, had settled on the east half of lot 15 (the lot enclosed by Oliver's two half-lots).[15] In 1796, Roswell married young Mary Dingman, the daughter of Richard Derrick Dingman, UE, of Osnabruck.[16] Oliver's former brother-in-law, Asa Landon, had also settled in Augusta Township on lot 33, concession 1.[17]

In 1797, Oliver applied to the local Land Board for a grant of an additional 1500 acres with water, on which to build a mill. His application was approved, but whether the proposed grant was actually made is unknown.[18]

Oliver continued his involvement in civic and military positions at his new residence. In 1796, as Town Clerk, he prepared a census of Augusta Township--which showed him as living alone with his five children.[19] In 1800, he was appointed Inspector/High Constable for Johnstown District, filing reports on his collection of liquor licenses from local stills and taverns--or fines for non-payment of, payment of rewards for apprehension of military deserters[20], etc. He appears to have still been holding this post in 1815. In 1813, he was also Town Warden of Augusta Township.[21]

During this period, he married a third time: to Elizabeth Losee, the daughter of Joshua Losee, Sr., of Matilda Twp. In 1805, Elizabeth gave birth to a son who was named, after his father, Oliver. Two years later, a daughter arrived and was named, in like manner, after her mother, Elizabeth. Both children of this last marriage died in their early twenties, apparently unmarried.[22]

With the breakout of the War of 1812 along the Canada-U.S. border, the Everts family, like many of their neighbours, joined military units. Oliver, Sr., although now in his 60s, participated as Quarter-Master of the First Flank Company and Provincial Cavalry of the Upper Canadian Militia. His son William served as a Sergeant-Major in the Adams Dragoons of the same militia.[23]

Oliver's brother? Roswell Everts and his wife, Mary Dingman, had eight children who survived into adulthood: Samuel, Sarah, Elisha, Linus Richard, Maria, Sylvanus Roswell, Reuben, Mary Ann. It was Roswell and Mary who carried on Sylvanus' given name in the Canadian family line. Maria married Martin Kelly, of Montague (U.S.); Mary Ann married Ebenezer Avery of Augusta.[24]

Of Oliver and Honora's five children, Johanna married late, at age 48, to Duncan McLennan of Augusta in 1843.[25] Of Mary, little is known; however, as she is omitted from the records of those receiving land grants as children of Loyalists, she probably died in childhood. David and William married two sisters, Sarah and Irene (respectively) Smyth, the daughters of John Smyth.[26] William and Irene took up residence in Elizabethtown. In 1851, when David was 61 and Sarah 55, they were living in Augusta Township with their daughter, Eliza. Next door was their son, Hiram, with his wife, and the couple's three young children, Mary, Horace, and Eliza I.[27]

George, Oliver and Honora's first-born (my 3rd-great-grandfather), married Annie Hodges, daughter of another Augusta resident, Timothy Hodges, Sr. The birth of their first child, Alivy, in 1818, was followed by that of Oliver, Jr. in 1822, Honora in 1824, James in 1826, Timothy in 1830, Almeda in 1832, and Cinthy in 1834. George's father, Oliver Everts, Sr. had died six years earlier in 1828 at age 80. He had lived a long, and very full, life.[28]

George and Annie were now farming a smaller parcel of land on part of lot 23, concession 2, north-east of the village of Maitland.[29] Most of George and Annie's children appear to have remained, unmarried, at the family home for their lifetimes. Alivy died at 11, James at 23, Honora at 29. Oliver, Timothy, and Almeda lived to 85,72, and 90, respectively.[30]

Erastus (my 2nd-great-grandfather) was, I think, the dreamer of the family. A slightly-built, gentle-looking man, his pale eyes look off into the distance in the one family photograph of him.[31] In his early 30s he married a young woman, Manerva, 14 years his junior. She died shortly after the birth of their first child, Erastus, in 1853.[32]

There were an unusual number of family deaths in 1853, suggesting that one of the many epidemic diseases of the time swept the area. In the same year that Erastus lost his wife and infant son, both of his parents (George and Annie), and his sister, Honora, also died.[33]

Erastus remarried two years later, this time to a robust kindly-looking widow.[34] Catharine Phillips, one year younger than Erastus, had been born in nearby Yonge Township, Leeds County. She already had three children by her previous husband, Reuben Soules: Reuben, Melissa, and George. To this ready-made family, Erastus and Catharine added Anna Keziah in 1858, Minnie Lois in 1860, and Bidinell a few years later. There is some evidence to suggest that Erastus, perhaps wishing a fresh start, or take advantage of a new opportunity, moved his family at some point to Matilda Township in Dundas County.[35]

Of Erastus and Catharine's three children, only Anna Keziah married. Bidinell died in his early twenties. "Min" lived to be 75, an independent-minded graceful lady, with something of her father's delicate looks, who enjoyed travelling.[36] In 1880,[37] Anna married Minard Michael Cook of Aultsville (Stormont County) who became well-known for his introduction of the Holstein-Friesian cattle breed to eastern Canada.[38]

The arrival of the 20th century found Erastus' three unmarried siblings still living at the old family farm on lot 23. Oliver and Timothy died peacefully within 5 years of each other, in 1902 and 1907. Almeda continued to live on alone at the farm, for another 15 years until her death in 1922 at age 90.[39]

Anna Keziah and her husband often travelled from Aultsville to visit "Aunt Mede," bringing their daughter, Margaret Everts Cook, with them. Margaret, my grandmother, recalled the old lady admiringly as a vigorous independent woman who, even in her 80s, still sewed her own dresses, and read the daily newspaper from cover to cover.

There is a photograph taken one summer weekend in 1914 by Margaret's husband, my grandfather, John Bilsland Atchison. Four generations of Everts descendants are posed on the front steps of the old Augusta Township farmhouse. On the bottom steps are my father and aunt as young children, John Everts William and Jean Cook Atchison; nearby is my grandmother. Seated half-way up the stairs are my great-grandparents, Anna Keziah Everts and Minard Michael Cook. And at the top, on the verandah, settled comfortable in her rocker, is great-great "Aunt Mede" Everts, her long hair drawn back into a bun, and wearing a long, smartly-styled dress that she had tailored herself.

With Almeda Everts' death in 1922, residency of this branch of Everts in Grenville County ended. Yet, the Grenville County records contain names of various other Everts. Did Hiram and Ann's children remain in the Township? And what of Roswell Everts and Mary Dingwall's descendants? Who was Roswell--brother, or half-brother, to Oliver? There are more stories to be told yet of the Everts of Grenville County.

From the foregoing it can safely be assumed that Mr. Dunn has been fairly successful in business, and, as a result of his hard work, has placed himself in easy circumstances. He owns the large block in which his business is located, running through from Merchants' Row to Evelyn street, and considerable adjoining property, besides several tenement houses and various other real estate interests; in fact, although perhaps not a wealthy man, he has a sufficient amount of this world's goods to feel that the toil and labor of the past twenty-five years have not been wholly in vain. For many years Mr. Dunn has been prominently associated with the Congregational Church as one of the prudential committee and is deeply interested in all that pertains to its welfare. He is also greatly interested in educational matters. In 1883 and 1884, while a member of the board of selectmen, he was a strong advocate of the building of a memorial hall, and in the face of much oppositon, urged the passage of the order appropriating the necessary funds. It was largely through his instrumentality that the project was finally carried through and favorably acted upon. In various other enterprises his public spirit has been manifested, and altogether he is an active and enterprising gentleman whose interests are centered in the welfare and happiness of his family and the prosperity of Rutland. His career has thus far been not a strictly eventful one, but a busy one, and as a business man and citizen he occupies a position in the front rank of Rutland merchants.

ELLIS, ZENAS CLARK, the son of Barnabas Ellis and Balinda Kidder, who removed from Wethersfield, Vt., to Fairhaven, in 1813, was born in Fairhaven, July 25, 1820. He was the sixth of a family of nine children and resided for the most part of his life on the homestead where he died September 26, 1883. He was married in September, 1847, to Sarah Bowman Dyer, a daughter of Edward and Hannah Hoxie Dyer, of Rutland, Vt., by whom he had a family of four sons. His wife died July 7, 1876, and he was married a second time December 8, 1880, but had no children by his second wife.

Mr. Ellis educated himself in the common schools. He accepted quietly and filled honorably numerous stations of trust and usefulness in the affairs of his town, county and community. Elected one of the board of listers in 1847, a selectman in 1858, and later treasurer of the town, he was repeatedly re-elected to all these positions. He was for many years an acting justice of the peace and his judgments were highly esteemed. When, in 1876, without his knowledge, his name was presented by his friends to the county convention as a candidate for the office of associate judge of the County Court, the members of the bar gave him their cordial endorsement and he was elected and held the office for two years. Hon. Hoyt H. Wheeler, since judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Vermont, presided at the Rutland County Court during most of this period.

Mr. Ellis rendered efficient and patriotic service during the war, in his offices as selectman and treasurer of the town. He was vigilant and successful in raising both money and men. He was a capable, painstaking administrator in conjunction with R. C. Colburn, of the large and complicated estate of the late Israel Davey. He was a member and consistent and steadfast supporter of the Congregational Church. He was a director in the National Bank of Poultney, and was one of the original board of directors of the First National Bank of Fairhaven and served as such director and on the executive committee of the board of organization of the bank until his death. In 1878 he was elected president of the bank and re-elected each year until his death. The following resolutions were passed by the board of directors at that time;—

WHEREAS, Our late president, Zenas C. Ellis, having since our last meeting been taken from us by death, we are reminded by his vacant chair of the loss that has fallen on us and, especially, on the institution with which he was so long connected, and over whose interests he so efficiently presided.

Therefore, Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Ellis, we have lost one whose counsels were always prudent and judicious, whose careful attention to the duties of his position excited our admiration, and whose kindness of heart, uniform gentleness of manner, integrity of purpose, and high sense of honor, had won our sincere and affectionate regard.

Resolved, That this bank in thus losing one who has been one of its board of directors since its organization, and losing its president, has lost one to whom its prosperity was ever a source of delight, and to whom it is largely indebted for its success, and whose efforts in its behalf should be held in grateful remembrance.

Resolved, That the cashier be directed to write these resolutions on the records of the bank and to transmit a copy of the same to the family of the deceased.

EVERTS, MARTIN G., second son of Gilbert and Hannah (Weeks) Everts, of Salisbury, Conn., was born in Salisbury, Vt., on the 2d day of July, 1818, his parents having removed thither at an early day. His education was obtained at the Middlebury Academy, and completed at Middlebury College. In March, 1840, he came to Rutland and began the study of law in the office of the Hon. Solomon Foot. He was admitted on the 22d of April, 1843, in Rutland County Court, and continued his studies for four years thereafter, as a partner of his former preceptor, Mr. Foot. On the 12th day of July, 1849, he was married to Frances, daughter of Dr. James Porter, of Rutland.

Few men in this county have been elected to fill so many and varied public positions as fell to the lot of Mr. Everts. He was elected town agent, selectman and moderator; served as town auditor at town meetings a great many years between 1853 and 1882. In addition to these positions of trust he was chosen representative in 1851 and 1852; State's attorney in 1853 and 1854, and in 1875 and 1876; State Senator in 1859 and 1860. He was, furthermore, municipal judge of Rutland ten years, and a member of the examining committee of the bar more than thirty years; in 1861 he received the appointment of postmaster at Rutland, which office he retained until 1870. He died on the morning of the 14th of March, 1884, from exhaustion induced by a violent bleeding from the nose two weeks previously. His manly and beautiful traits of character cannot be better described than by quoting from the proceedings of the Rutland county bar, taken on the day of his death. The following resolutions, drafted by Hon. D. E. Nicholson, Hon. W. C. Dunton and Captain J. C. Baker, committee, were adopted:—

WHEREAS, Amidst the fluctuating anxieties that have engrossed the public attention since the announcement of the serious illness of our long time professional brother, Martin G. Everts, "the thing we so greatly feared has come upon us." Therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of the honored and lamented deceased, we recognize the striking fact that the limited and professional affliction is merged in the general public sorrow.

Resolved, That as an organized constituent of that sorrowing public, the Rutland county bar most keenly feels the presence of the shadow from the extinction of so clear and steady a light.

Resolved, That the brief term of acquaintance of our youngest members with the beloved departed has warmly and firmly attached them, and that forty-one years of such association has emphasized such relation and appreciation to his few peers in the profession surviving to mourn his departure.

Resolved, That, as a lawyer, he was able and honorable; as a prosecuting officer, firm, calm and fearless; as a judge, careful, impartial and pure; as a legislator, vigilant, practical and wise; as a citizen, a universal benefactor and friend; and in every relation of life the leading and acknowledged popular favorite.

Resolved, That, after closing the dying eyes of most of his near and dear family relations, his own pitying eyes have been at length sealed by his loving neighbors and friends in the presence of the life long idol of his heart, the mother of their only child[1] that a long time since preceded the father and the now waiting and doubly afflicted mother to the appointments beyond the grave.

Resolved, That, as a token of our deeply-seated respect for the memory of the deceased, and sympathy with the stricken and widowed conjugal companion of his life, we will attend his funeral in a body, and move an adjournment of this honorable court as an indication of approval of this action of the bar thereof.

Mr. Everts was the father of three children, two daughters, one of whom and the son died in early infancy. The death of little Frances Rebecca, on the 1st of October, 1864, at the age of six years and five months, cast a shadow on the life of her father from which he never fully emerged into his former cheerfulness.

His widow still survives him, occupying the house which he built, and in which he lived until his death.

FRISBIE, HON. BARNES, was born January 23, 1815. He remained at home and worked on his father's farm until twenty-one years of age. He was then in attendance at the academy three years, and intended to go to college where he could have entered an advanced class; but, as he was then twenty-four years of age, he decided to commence at once the study of a profession, and accordingly entered the office of C. B. Harrington, an attorney in practice at Middletown, and began the study of law. He was admitted to the bar at the September term of Rutland County Court, 1842. The first year after his admission he was in company with General B. Davenport, in Brandon, Vt. He then went to Addison county and opened an office in Bristol, in that county, and there succeeded after two or three years in acquiring a good business; but after three or four years of successful practice, his health failed and he returned to his father's in Middletown. He was attacked with a dyspeptic difficulty while in Bristol, from which he has never fully recovered, and has never since leaving Bristol had a full and active practice in his profession; though he has not, by any means, been without business. He removed from Middletown to Poultney in 1863, where he has ever since re-

Excursion Into Genealogy

Immortality In Reverse

by Mary Childs Nerney

Because so many people who want to track down their ancestors are at a loss as to how to go about it, we are publishing this helpful guide to the amateur. To provide a convenient checklist of genealogical guides, the foot notes have been grouped at the end. This is the work of Miss Mary Childs Nerney. EDITOR

(VTGenWeb volunteer's note: The Vermont Historical Society Quarterly, Vol XVI, No. 2, April 1948 carries this extended article. We will select parts of it for publication and eventually have it all up for your enjoyment and further education.)

Vermont Land Records

Early land records resulting from Benning Wentworth's grants will be found in volume 26 of the New Hampshire State Papers, a list of the grantees being appended to the name of each town.

Many petitions of New York grantees are given in volume four of E.B. O'Callaghan's Documentary History of New York which contains more than 500 pages of Vermont records, many of genealogical importance. Some of the petitions constitute virtual censuses of the several towns.

Vermont land grants are indexed in volume II of the printed State Papers of Vermont and New York Charters are treated similarly in volume VII. Extensive information and names are included in volume VI, relating to the sequestration and confiscation of lands and estates during the Revolution. Petitions for land are printed and indexed in volume VII. Volume V, VI and VII are the work of Mrs. Mary Greene Nye, who has also compiled a monumental and nearly unique name and subject card index to the manuscript state papers in the Office of the Secretary of State.

Land records help to determine relationships and are useful in tracing migration. In Vermont today, land records are kept in the offices of town clerks, most of them with indexes of grantees and grantors. About 1810 one finds a land census giving approximate place of residence. These may be followed up in the land records of neighboring plots. Vermont land records with other town records were carefully inventoried by the Historical Records Survey. Mimeographed bound inventories, accompanied by an introductory historical sketch, were issued for several towns before the Survey dissolved in 1943. Copies are in the Vermont Historical Society. The manuscript inventories for other towns were deposited with the Vermont Historical Society, and constitute an invaluable central reference file from which can be discovered the type, extent and condition of the records of any town in the state. There is a guide to the use of the files, compiled by Henry H. Eddy, last Director of the Survey.

Land records, as summarized above, span from the earliest days to the present time in published and unprinted sources. In similar form other records exist that are fundamental to the validity of genealogical research: town, probate, birth, marriage, death, church and cemetery.

Warnings in Early Town Records

To follow a trail through records in their original has all the lure of the chase. One never can foresee what may turn up. To illustrate-names of entire families down to the hired man may often be found in the "warnings" of early town records. This procedure apparently was routine in Vermont when the father and husband, i.e. the bread winner, died, even if he left property. In these cases frequently subsequent records show that the "warned" continued to reside in town, a circumstance suggesting that the "warning" to leave town had no reference to the desirability of the "warned" as residents but constituted a public notice that the town would not be responsible for the support of the widow and fatherless children.

when Mr Whitfield's reasons were tendered to the church here [at Guilford] for his removal and read in public & enquiry made of every man in particular concerning his ability in paying to the ministers for the present and probability to continue according to ordinary Providence. Thomas French said he should be able to continue his present sum & said further he was willing to add 6 S. per annum.

It is probable that Mr. John Caffinge, when he left Guilford in the latter part of 1643, or beginning of 1644, got Thomas French to occupy his estate at Guilford. Mr. Caffinch sued French, April 1, 1651, at New Haven, for the use of his house, land and cattle at Guilford. Probably French took them when Mr. Caffinch left that place. II. New Haven Col. Rec.

At a court Feb. 5, Anno 1651-2. Thomas French was called and admonished for saying in a clamourous & scandalizing way "yt he nor his family were not relieved according to their need—nor yt he could get any corn in the town for pay unless he came and offered them half so much more as it was worth, but when he did so, then they had corn enough for him, otherwise not, wherefore he was forced [to] go out of the town to get corn for his family"—or words to that effect. To which he acknowledged that this was only true of particular persons. The court out of tenderness to his family pass it over, at present, with an admonition, to take more heed to his carriage reports & speeches.

At a court May 3, 1655, he had two suits with John Everts with regard to hoggs, which were eventually arranged.

At a town meeting on ye 23d of June 1665 Tho: French propounding in way of Petition to the town to have some relief on account of his daughter who was not wright in her own mind. When the town considered the request, It was put to vote & the vote passed in the negative,—That they did not see themselves engaged either to him or his & therefore did expect he shd. be returned to the place whence he came.

And at a Town Meeting August 21, 1665. The town being informed yt notwithstanding Thomas French had been denied entertainment or admittance into this town either for himself or his daughter—yet he had hired lands of Benjn. Wright to settle on,—They did agree by vote as a prevention of him yt whosoever did any longer entertain either of them should give in sufficient security that they should be no damage to the town.

These votes are now inexplicable. Thomas French had been a planter for 20 years, had owned lands in the town, and was a man of property. This Thos. French was probably another man, or else the daughter was married to another man.

A Terryer of the lands belonging to Thomas French in Guilford as followith viz. 1 Prop. R. fol. 19.

Imps. One Home lot containing three acres & a halfe, more or less so allowed ffronting up to the Green by the Pound running back to the land of William Chittenden on the west, along by the rears of the Home lots of Edward Benton, Jaiob Sheaffe & in part of Willm Chittenden on the north the Home lots of Henry Goldam on the south. About 1650 he sold this lot to Thomas Stevens, son of John Stevens, and bought the homelot of Henry Dowde in Crooked Lane, described as follows, I. Prop. R. fol. 7.

Imps. One Home lot fronting to the street on the East & rearing back to the Home lot of John Stevens, bounded on the South with the home lot of John Mepham & on the North with the Home lot of Thomas Norton [then of John Norton & William Seward, Thomas dying in 1648] allowed for 2 acres more or less.

This last lot had been sold by Henry Dowde to Samuel Blachley about 1647 who sold it to Thomas French who sold it to William Boreman about 1656. Boreman died 1661, and his representatives sold it to Nathan Bradley about 1663, and Bradley sold it to John Chittenden May 20, 1667. See I. Prop. Rec. fol. 19.

"Thomas French hath sold and alienated all his houseing and house lot which he bought of Samuel Blachley as abovesaid unto William Boreman" & I. Prop. Rec. fol. 14.

"William Boreman hath with consent of ye Court bought all Thomas French his houseing and house lot which was late Samuel Blachleys" & also same fol.

Henry Dowde & William Seward & Nathan Bradley (who had bought the whole estate of William Boreman, deceased) have sold and alienated the house & home lot containing about 2 acres unto Nathan Bradley of Guilford Jan. 18, 1663, who sold it to John Chittenden as stated above May 20, 1667.

The following entry is on the last page of I. Prop. R. fol. last Feb. 14 (55) Thomas French & William Boreman entered an alienation upon an exchange made betwixt them viz. The said French hath given & granted in exchange all his rights in the upland and meadow to be divided at Athammonassock unto the said William Boreman & his heirs etc for & in consideration of the said Boremans now home lot with all his land there adjoining to the said Thomas French & his heirs forever.

Item one Home lot bought of Samuel Blachley late the lands of Henry Dowde lying next the house lot of John Norton on the North & containing & Allowed for two acres. I. Prop. Rec. fol. 9.

In a Town meeting February 11th 1673. Thomas French desiring that his son in law John Dudley might be accepted as a planter upon Thomas French engaging to give him 20 acres of land. The Town accepted John Dudley to be a planter.

of the Mississippi to the Saint Laurence. The missionaries, friendly to the Indians, converted them, making them allies against the English. The French officials rewarded the savage depredations upon the English settlements with bounties paid for captives, alive, or for their scalps if dead.

During the earlier wars with France frightful massacres along the upper Connecticut River and in other outlying towns in the northern settlements had taken place and the horrors of these Indian atrocities were still remembered by survivors who had actually experienced them. Another war in which the same atrocities might be expected in the frontier towns created a tension of great fear, if not panic. The Indians in Sharon, cheated out of their land by Lamb, were already causing the Sharon settlers much trouble. Aware of the Indian instinct for revenge the neighboring towns were fearful of their designs. The Indian village of Shekomeko in Dutchess County had already been Christianized by the Moravians who were now making new converts of the Indians in Sharon, a missionary activity which won no favor with the orthodox Christians of Sharon. A persistent rumor, without a shadow of truth, that the Moravians were in league with the French and were inciting the Indians to insurrection increased the alarm.

A more real danger[48] was the imminence of an attack from Crown Point now held by the French and their Indian allies. How great this danger was is shown in the petition sent to the General Assembly by the Town proposing an expedition against this threatening stronghold and pledging the Town's support. Nothing came of this suggestion. The General Assembly ordered a fort[49] to be built in Salisbury. The town had already taken the precaution, as has been noted, of building the parson's house as a dependable refuge in case of attack. Also several other forts or block houses were prepared, one in present Lakeville on the north side of Lake Wononscopomuc, somewhere near the site of the present Gateway Inn, another in the vicinity of the White families along the Housatonic River. A third block house was near the old Russell house within convenient distance of the Dutchers and Vandusen families in Weataug.

It is not on record but it is quite possible that several of the young men of the town joined some company raised for the campaign against Canada. At any rate we can rest assured that Minister Lee, at his Sabbath gatherings offered fervent prayers for the Lord's protection, and spared no pains to reassure his congregation, inspire their courage and hold down unreasoning fears. Salisbury passed through this war without suffering any harm. In June, 1745, Louisburg was captured by the English and in 1748 the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle ended this war only to be resumed a decade later.

NAMES OF NEW SETTLERS AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF SALISBURY — 1744-1754

In the first ten years of Jonathan Lee's ministry to the beginning of the French and Indian War in 1754, the town expanded rapidly. The proprietors, their names changing, as their rights were exchanged or sold, were busy laying out their new allotments. Much acreage in these allotments was sold off in parcels to newcomers as settlers were rapidly coming into town.

When Lee began his ministry there may have been fifty heads of families here. In 1756 it was estimated that Salisbury township had a population of eleven hundred.

Thomas Lamb had already departed before the ordination and Thomas Newcomb left for Crom Elbow in 1747. John Smith with whom Jonathan Lee had boarded 44 weeks left for Beckman's patent in 1746. Many able men, with capital took their places and made their homes in Salisbury before the French and Indian War. Thomas Chittenden and his brother, Timothy, both of Guilford, settled here in 1750. Thomas left Salisbury later to become the first governor of Vermont. Timothy lived here and reared his family in Salisbury. The Timothy Chittenden house, built later about 1778, was on the site of the present Thelma Apartments. A portrait of Capt. Timothy is at Ingleside, the home of his descendents, the Warner sisters.

Joseph Bird[50], Jr., originally of Farmington, then of Litchfield acknowledged deeds in Canaan. In 1748, he moved to Salisbury settling on the tract of land now owned by the Shagroy-Tirvelda farm. Bird Peak above this farm bears his name.

Leonard Owen[51] in 1753 secured from Yale a lease of 150 acres on the Yale grant and with his brother, Eliphalet, became important in the iron industry. Daniel Morris and John Cobb had houses in the vicinity of the Lakeville Forge. Gideon Skinner, Andrew Morehouse, Joseph Jones, and William Spencer, Josiah Stoddard, and Benajah Williams are other names connected with this early Forge. The Lime Rock Forge, 3/4 interest in which Lamb had sold to Philip Livingston, was efficiently operated by the Austin brothers.

John, Nathaniel, Sylvanus, and Elijah Everts[52] came from Guilford and settled here in 1749. John's home was on the Mary Robbin's estate on the Millerton road and his gravestone still is, or was near the new house built in 1952 on the site of John's home.

Other Everts' gravestones were uncovered just across the road south of the horse barn on the Drummond place (formerly the Samuel Robbins homestead, now an apartment house) at the junction of the main highway (Route 42) and the Belgo Road. Capt. Nathaniel Everts, who commanded a military company in the French and Indian War bought a large tract of land on the Belgo Road covering what is now Dr. Wieler's land. Sylvanus married a sister of Governor Thomas Chittenden and settled in Vermont. Elijah died in 1754 only about six years after his arrival.

As stated earlier in this chapter, on April 22, 1743, Thomas Lamb[53] sold Nathaniel Skinner and Deacon John Hutchinson about 300 acres, being the 14th lot in the 4th division on the eastern slope of Mt. Riga stretching south and east of Lions Head. Skinner[54] took for his portion the lower half while Hutchinson retained the upper section.

John Hutchinson[55] sold his northern half to Samuel Brinsmade of Norwalk in April, 1752. Samuel Brinsmade's daughter, Ruth, married Bethel Selleck. In 1754 Samuel Brinsmade[56], in partnership with John Selleck of Norwalk bought of John Gay of Sharon 150 acres on the southeastern slope of Mt. Riga. The Sellecks were a family of the first order living in Norwalk (now Darien). Through various deals the Brinsmades and Sellecks secured the vast area covering both the land long known as the Brinsmade Farm and all of Selleck Hill. Samuel Brinsmade retained his farm purchased of Hutchinson and lived on it but, as far as I know, his sons who inherited it never lived in Salisbury. This farm was eventually acquired by the Clark family. The farm upon which William Clark lived is now owned by Mr. Spalding McCabe, the farm of his brother, Henry, is owned by the Ericsons.

The Sellecks came into possession of the hill farms west of the Riga Road now known as Selleck Hill. Bethel Selleck and his sons occupied the farms long known as the James Selleck and Warner Farms now in possession of Donald E. Hewat and Mr. A. K. Hamilton. Ezra Selleck and his sons cultivated the land which is now the present Pettee Farm.

Jonathan Lee's first cousin, Noah Strong, born in Northampton in 1702, son of Tabitha Lee Strong, after settling first in Lebanon, then in Coventry, came to Salisbury in 1748 with his three sons. He purchased land on Town Hill. His grandson, Judge Martin Strong[57], built a house, still in fine condition, standing on the Lime Rock Road not far from the cross road to Sharon. This house came into possession of the Landon family.

Noah and his wife, Desiah, had seven children. Noah's son, Adonijoh, and Adonijah's son, Judge Martin Strong, alone, of all the boys remained in Salisbury. The other boys scattered but the romance of son John begins in this period and may be related here.

According to the Strong Genealogy, a wealthy landed family in Scotland by the name of McClure[58] became involved in the Jacobite Rebellion of 1715. The father with his wife and two children, leaving his property in the hands of a trusted friend, fled to America and later sought a safe hiding place in the remote wildernesses of Salisbury. Agnes was born here April 2, 1729. The mother and father both died and the son was killed in a naval engagement. No remittances came from Scotland after the father's death. The penniless child, Agnes, was bound out to service. We wish we know in whose family she served. John fell in love with the servant girl and married her in 1759. Three children were born to John and Agnes in Salisbury. John, then 27 years old, caught the Vermont urge and, enchanted with a strip of land east of Lake Champlain, settled in Addison. Putting up a rude house he brought his wife and three children in a sleigh drawn by a pair of old mares to his new home where he lived until the Revolution broke out and John joined the militia. When Burgoyne's army swept down Lake Champlain capturing Ticonderoga the Indians raided this section. John returned to find his home in ashes with no trace of his family, who more than likely he feared were scalped or carried into captivity. Wandering in distress from place to place he found no clues to their fate. Finally one night in Dorset at an inn where, by pure chance, he stopped for food, he found his wife serving there and his children safe. Settling there he became a man of importance in the community.

In the northeast section of the town, Jabez, Silas, and Daniel Bingham[59] came with their families from Windham in 1750 and settled first somewhere on the Undermountain Road, neighbors of the Camps. Silas later removed to Great Barrington. The Binghams acquired the land between the two lakes originally a Woodbridge grant. Daniel settled on what is now the Miles Farm.

Deacon Hezekiah Camp[60] came up from West Haven in 1746 settling on the Undermountain Road on a farm later owned by the Balls. His house still standing, known as the Gillette Place, is the oldest house in Salisbury.

In the district west of Twin Lakes now called Taconic, these early years saw the beginning of the later industrial development of this section. Jacob Bacon[61] and Daniel Parke, in 1748, built a grist mill and a

The statement that President Stiles lived in this house is obviously incorrect. Francis Stiles was a very distant cousin, a descendant of a brother who settled early in the Colony, another branch of the Stiles family. The President knew his cousins and very likely called at this house in Salisbury but did not live there.

Francis[8] (b. 1748) was the son of Benjamin Stiles who had married Sarah (Nichols) Coffing, the widow of Isaac Coffing.

SAMUEL BELLOWS AND ELISHA SHELDON[9]

The richest man in Salisbury during this period was an early settler, Samuel Bellows. He had purchased rights of the proprietors and had otherwise acquired immense holdings of some 600 acres of valuable farm land, mainly in Weataug. His home was at the foot of Smith Hill.

Samuel Bellows died in 1759, leaving his wife and only daughter, Sarah, joint heirs to his large fortune. Elisha Sheldon, son of a prominent Litchfield man, married Sarah Bellows soon after her father's death. Thus Elisha Sheldon, after a deal with the widow, came into the extensive property of his father-in-law. Working his farms with hired labor, Elisha Sheldon lived the luxurious life of a gentleman farmer with a reputation for conduct not entirely blameless. He obtained some renown as a Colonel in the Revolution, but with bad debts and neglected farming he found himself seriously involved. After backing his son-in-law, Joseph Whiting, who, in 1784, had purchased the Furnace property from Richard Smith, Elisha Sheldon sold out his estate, including a slave, draft animals, and cattle and left for Vermont where he had previously bought a right in Middlebury.

[8] Francis' daughter Sally was born here in 1786. Sally married Newman Holley and died in Salisbury December 12, 1854. Francis' son Benjamin married Mary Clark. They lived in Salisbury a few years and, possibly, it was Benjamin who built the house on the knoll above the railroad, long known as a Stiles house. About 1812 Benjamin and Mary moved to the vicinity of Cooperstown. Francis' son, Thomas, born February 11, 1780, seems to have succeeded to the original Stiles house. Thomas married Augusta Landon Newell, November 26, 1829, and lived in Salisbury. He had a general store. In the town records bills are paid to him by the town for supplies to the poor. Thomas and Augusta had two children. His daughter, Sarah Elizabeth, born July 6, 1835, married Robert Hall, October 20, 1858. His son, Thomas Augustine, born August 22, 1831, was no credit to him. Thomas Augustine married an (unnamed) Irish girl and at his death he had willed her his large fortune of $80,000. Upon proof of mental incapacity, the result of long continued excesses and use of liquor, the will was set aside by the Litchfield County Court. After his death in February 24, 1873, the family name of Stiles is no longer continued in Salisbury.

THE EVERTS[10] (Spelled Evarts in the early records.)

The names of the descendants of the Everts brothers who came to Salisbury in 1749 fill pages in the Vital Records in the two volumes of the printed town records. John and Nathaniel, both raising large families, were active during this period. Nathaniel and his sons cultivated the farm south of the Belgo Road, either Capt. Nathaniel or his son, Nathaniel Jr. living in a house which forms a portion of Dr. Wieler's residence. Brother John at once became an important member of the town, running an inn now famous for its connection with Vermont history. John was a leader in the speculative buying up of New Hampshire Grants for which the inn was a land office. This story will be told in another chapter. In the meantime John was hauled before the Justice Court for selling "strong liquors in small quantities" without a license from the County Court of Litchfield. This case was referred by the Salisbury Court to the Litchfield County Court.

John Everts was the first Assemblyman sent by the town in 1757 and represented the town in the General Assembly a dozen times later. The Everts married into the Chittenden and Moore families and later, after the Revolution, members of this family welcomed the Methodist circuit riders when they came to Salisbury.

THE BRADLEYS[10*]

The Bradley family, Ariel and Ame, were settlers during these years, buying their farm on Belgo Road. The old Bradley house where they or their descendants lived is still standing. They were Methodists and later active in bringing the circuit riders to town and building the Methodist Church. They must have been a well-to-do family for one son had a home on the west side of Main Street in Lakeville opposite Walton Street, a substantial salt-box not torn down until the present century when it was very dilapidated. In it in my girlhood days an unmarried daughter, Mary Bradley, a feeble old lady, renting half of the house to an Irish family, lived in the other half alone in extreme poverty. In the one room with a kitchen stove she had a trunk full of finery, ball dresses and other remnants of the prosperity of her early days which she showed to rare visitors.

Malcolm Rudd tells a pretty story about Ariel and Ame's young son, Ariel, Jr. When a lad of nine supposedly on some errand where a small lad would be useful he was in the vicinity of Washington's encampment at White Plains. How he came to be noticed by the Commander-in-chief is not told. Washington needed information as to the enemy's position and young Ariel was requisitioned as a spy. Astride a horse with a bag of corn to be ground at a mill, he boldly entered the British lines. Of course he was halted and taken to the British camp

SALISBURY'S MIGRATION TO VERMONT — THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GRANTS

No history of Salisbury would be complete which omitted the story of the first years of the New Hampshire Grants for it is due to the efforts of four Salisbury men more than to any others that Vermont, instead of being divided between New Hampshire and New York, is now a separate state. These four Salisbury men are Ethan and Ira Allen, Thomas Chittenden, and Nathaniel Chipman. Working with them was Jonas Fay, an early settler in the Grants and, from Salisbury, Gamaliel Painter, Daniel Chipman, the Sheldons, and other men. Many capable settlers from New England colonies all rendered important service to the new state, but the above-mentioned four Salisbury men were almost wholly responsible for its existence as a separate commonwealth.

After the fall of Quebec in 1759 the fear of Indian raids instigated by the French in Canada was over. The Royal Governor of New Hampshire, Benning Wentworth, even before the Treaty of Peace at Paris in 1763 giving England possession of Canada for a generous fee, began to hand out grants of whole townships on nominal terms, reserving for himself in each township two shares. Salisbury boys who had served in the campaigns directed against Crown Point on Lake Champlain in the French and Indian War had become familiar with the fertile lands now opening up for settlement west of the Green Mountains.

Mr. John Everts, Esq. of Salisbury lost no time in putting in claims. Securing a formidable list of names of inhabitants of Salisbury and its vicinity as interested proprietors, he went with a group to Portsmouth and applied for a charter for two townships where Clarendon and Rutland now are. Finding that this land had already been granted and judging the ungranted land north of them ample for three townships, he shifted the names of the proprietors into three groups, perhaps adding a few more on his own authority, and now applied for three townships, naming them Salisbury, New Haven, and the township falling between the two, Middlebury. Surveyors having fixed the corners and the west border of these three townships, he presented the Governor with their survey and a plan of the 68 plots into which each township was to be divided and received three charters for them. The townships New Haven and Middlebury were granted November 2, 1761, the charter for Salisbury on the next day, November 3, 1761. Each township was to be six miles square and to be divided into 68 equal shares. Two of these shares were to be reserved as the Governor's private property, one for the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, one for a glebe for the Church of England, one for the first settled minister of the Gospel and one share for the benefit of schools. An annual rental of "one ear of corn[1]" was to be paid for the first ten years and after this one shilling annually for every one hundred acres.

Proprietors' meetings for each of these three townships were warned and held at stated times in Salisbury, Connecticut, usually at the home of John Everts. For each township town officers were elected. The first meetings of the proprietors of Middlebury and of Salisbury were held January 5, 1762, at the house of John Everts and the proprietors of New Haven met at the same place the next day. As the proprietors of the three towns were interlocking directorates their separate meetings took place at approximately the same date and usually in the same house. Middlebury[2] and Salisbury proprietors met March 9, 1762, at Samuel Moore's; at John Everts' on the 2nd Tuesday in March, 1763; at Joshua Porter's, adjourning to John Everts' on the 2nd Tuesday in March, 1765. The records of the New Haven proprietors are not in existence. At the first proprietors' meeting at John Everts', January 2, 1762, the following officers were elected for the Vermont township of Salisbury: Josiah Stoddard, proprietors' clerk; Elias Reed, Alex'r Gaston, Nath'l Buell, selectmen; John Everts, treasurer; S. Moore, Jr., collector. Samuel Moore was dispatched to Vermont to complete the survey and lay out plots. Difficulties which were amicably settled arose over the boundary lines which conflicted with neighboring grants.

Although repeated proprietors' meetings were held, this land, bought for pure speculation, as yet created no enthusiasm for braving the hardships of actual settlement. Public vendues for the sale of shares belonging to the proprietors were often held. In 1764 the rights of 20 proprietors of Middlebury consisting each of 365 acres went for from five dollars to six and five-sixth of a dollar, and 13 rights in Salisbury, Vermont, each sold for about the same price.

Young John Chipman, grandson of Thomas Chipman, Minister Lee's first deacon, was the first Salisbury man to venture through the wilderness in view of settlement. In May, 1766, leading a party of 15 Salisbury men up through the Berkshires with an oxcart loaded with provisions and equipment, above Bennington they came to the headwaters of the Otter Creek near Dorset. There they hewed a canoe from a log and, transferring their baggage to it, with the oxcart trailing behind, they drifted down the river while the men not needed in the canoe and the oxen made their way as best they could along the bank. When they reached Middlebury John cleared seven or eight acres on his claim, then went back to Salisbury intending to return. It was seven years later, however, before Middlebury saw him again.

A dozen or more years passed after granting the charters before the townships, granted in 1761, were actually settled by men from Salisbury. In 1774 Salisbury proprietors[4], to induce settlement, offered to actual settlers two hundred additional acres. Joshua Graves and Amos Story availed themselves of this offer, taking their families into the wilderness of the new Vermont Salisbury. Possibly E. Claghorn, Elias Kelsey, and Gilbert Everts. and a few others also took advantage of this offer.

[4] Weeks, J. M. History of Salisbury, Vermont. p. 35-36.

Amos Story was killed not long after his arrival and his widow with her young children instead of returning to her kin in Connecticut took over the clearing her husband had started and remained there through the war years when her neighbors fled south. The bravery of Widow Story and the hardships she endured, hiding with her children in a dugout on the creek during the British and Indian raids, surviving with her family through starvation and cold, became one of the Middlebury legends.

The Allens took no part in John Everts' grants of three townships. Characteristic of Ethan, his interest lay only in schemes in which he could play a leading part. In the winter of 1767-1768, on his own, he explored pretty thoroughly the western section of Vermont, crossing the Green Mountains and coming back to Salisbury down the Connecticut River. Leaving his wife and growing family in charge of his brother Heman, making his headquarters at Fay's Inn at Bennington, he spent much of his time during the next two years scouting in the Vermont wilderness, his gun furnishing food, a deerskin on the ground his bed when the hospitality of the few solitary cabins was not available. In the winters he returned to Heman's house in Salisbury.

Heman, in Salisbury, running a prosperous general store, was a very important factor in the early history of Vermont. His house, which must have been ample, with living rooms on the floor above the store, provided a home for all the Allen family. Ira lived with him after the Cornwall home was broken up, and his widowed mother, Mary Baker Allen, died here. Ethan left his wife and children with Heman while he made his annual long excursions to the Grants. Levi, dealing in furs in partnership with his brother, was there occasionally. Heman's fortune supplied the capital for his brother's ventures in Vermont.

Ira, when eighteen years old, in 1769, assisted his brother in a very profitable hog venture. Three hundred fifty hogs were purchased and in October, driven by Heman and Ira to the Hatfield Equivalent (near the Connecticut River) to fatten on beech nuts, part of the way being through the unmarked forest. About the first of January 150 of these hogs were driven to Albany to be sold. The remainder, left behind were fed on corn, unsheltered, until April, when they again were left to fatten on the beech nuts until June, when they were marketed in Albany. Ira[5] stayed with the pigs through the winter and "attended to the business through the whole."

Driving hogs through an uncharted wilderness where he had to cut a stout stick to keep the twigs from slashing his face prepared him for his ventures in Vermont. The next year, 1770, he sold his share in his father's estate for 48 pounds. With this money in hand, like his brother Ethan, he trekked noth and, viewing Castleton and Hubbarton, purchased some rights in Poultney. Four years earlier, in May, John den, John Bishop, and John Caffinge, in trust for the body of planters, all the lands lying within the aforesaid limits of Rutawoo and Agicomock rivers." The 3d article specifies the payment. Signed by the sachem squaw, "her mark," Henry Whitefield, in the name of the rest. Witnesses—John Higginson, Robert Newman.

According to the agreement, the Indians shortly after left the place. The tradition is, that they removed to the westward, where Branford and East Haven now are.

The planters made another purchase (some time after) of Uncas, sachem of the Mohegan Indians, which consisted of the tract lying between Agicomock river and Tuxispaug, (a pond contiguous to the meeting-house in Madison,) from which it appears, that the East river was the western limit of Uncas' jurisdiction. The remaining part of the town, to Hammonassett river, Mr. Fenwick, of Saybrook, gave the town, on condition that they would accommodate Mr. Whitefield (who was his particular friend) with land in the town agreeable to his mind. There were some small purchases made of particular Indians, within the limits of the township, who claimed a right to particular parts.

As soon as the first purchase was made, the planters, before winter, removed to New Haven, and settled on their lands; and in remembrance of the country of their nativity, to which they were bound by ten thousand dear recollections, they called the town Guilford.

The names of all the first planters are not known. The first list of names recorded is as late as the year 1650. The forty-six persons following are enrolled as first planters:

It is evident that this list does not embrace all the original names: for instance, Mr. Caffinge, one of the committee who made the first purchase from the Indians, is not mentioned.* It is also evident that all of the list were not original purchasers. Hubbard and Fowler were two of the first planters of Milford. Hubbard, before he went to Milford, lived at Wethersfield. Highland Boreman, Benton, and Betts, were also from Wethersfield.

It was agreed between the planters, "that all and every one should pay his proportionable part or share towards all the charges and expenses for purchasing, settling, surveying, and carrying on the necessary public affairs of the plantation, and that all divisions of the land should be made in exact proportion to the sums they advanced and expended."

The lands were left in the hands of the six purchasers, in trust, until such time as the church should be established, into whose hands they might commit the fee of the land, to be properly distributed and divided among the planters. They chose four of their principal planters, to whom they agreed to commit the full exercise of all civil power for administering justice and preserving peace among the planters, whose power was to continue until the church appeared in form, when it was to end. As this was an affair of so much importance, their church was fully gathered as soon as practicable; and on the 19th of April, 1643, the records say that the feoffees in trust, formally in writing, resigned the lands purchased by them to the church, and those persons to whom the civil power had been entrusted, at the same time formally resigned their authority. It was not the design of the planters thereby to make the church properly the owner of the fee; but as they were a regular visible body, who had power to act and order, so the lands were entrusted with them for the planters, who were tenants in common, according to their respective charges. The church was as the anchor of a ship, to hold all sure and steadfast.

Soon after this, the planters, who were chiefly church members, made regular divisions of the lands, according to the original agreement, each one receiving by lot such a portion as he was entitled to by the money which he had advanced for the public use. These divisions were under two restrictions: first, that no planter should put in more than £500 in stock, without permission from the freemen; secondly, that no person should sell or alien, in any manner, their share or any part of it, or purchase the share or any part of the share allotted or set off to another in the divisions of land, unless by the consent of the community. This last they strictly observed, and the effect was to prevent any from engrossing too much land, and to keep out of the plantation all persons not fully approved. Several persons were punished by fines and whipping for transgressing this agreement.

The first planters, whether gentlemen or yeomen, were almost all of them husbandmen by profession. There were but few mechanics, and no blacksmith among them, and it was with much trouble and expense that they obtained one. Before they removed to New Haven, they were for some time at a stand whether to settle in Milford or Guilford; but at length they chose the last mentioned place. As they came from Surrey and Kent, they selected for their plantation lands as near like those as could be found, viz., low, flat, moist land, such as that part of the town is near their first landing. South of the town plot, towards the sea, lies what is now called the Great Plain. This, with some of the points of land adjoining the sea, which were cleared by the Indians, were rich and fertile, and, by the skill and industry of the inhabitants, afforded quickly a comfortable subsistence for themselves and families. To these lands for many years the planters chiefly confined their labors. They indeed early made a law, that every planter should clear up annually half an acre of new land. This, in their method, was a hard piece of labor. It was all done by hand, by digging and stubbing up the trees and small growth by the roots, although they spoiled the land by it. But they knew of no other way, and for the non-performance of this town order there was a severe penalty. It was a long time before the present mode of clearing new land was practiced. The first one who attempted it was John Scranton. He cleared about an acre on a hill, by girdling the trees and burn-

* The tradition concerning him is, that he soon died, leaving no heir, or memorial of his name, but a small island in the salt meadow near the sea, yet called Caffing's Island.

Milford. Baldwin removed to Fairfield, and by virtue of this marriage occupied the dwelling and lands of Westcoat. The widow of William Hill, sr., whose husband had first been granted a home-lot on the north-east side of Dorchester street, is recorded in 1649 as living on the north-west corner of Newton square.* It was not an unusual thing for the planters to receive grants of home-lots, and also hold others purchased or exchanged.

The Purdy lot was sold to Moses Dimond May 2, 1670, at which time John Purdy, son of Francis Purdy, deceased, lived at Eastchester. The Frost lot was owned by Jacob Gray until 1886, when it was purchased by the Rev. Samuel Wakeman for his son Samuel, and deeded to him the 6th of November of that year.

Henry Whelpley sold his lot to Alexander Bryan, who resold it to Alexander Knowles 17th January, 1653. February 9, 1653, Dr. Thomas Pell purchased Nathan Gold's house and home-lot next the parsonage land. December 8, 1653, Nathan Gold purchased Richard Perry's home-lot, which was afterwards sold to Dr. William Ward. The Lewis lot was granted by the town to William Hill, sr., February 13, 1670. Jehu Burr, jr.'s, land is not recorded until 1670. After his father's death he purchased of his brother, John Burr, the home-lot on the west, next to Obediah Gilbert's, and John Burr purchased the Pinkney lot

* The author was under the impression that the Probate and Town Records of Fairfield, as many writers have hitherto stated, were carried away by Roger Ludlow, and destroyed when General Tryon sacked and burned the town in 1779. Both these statements are without foundation. The vaults of the town-house contain many volumes and files of rich historic lore, dating from 1648 to the present time.

opposite John Gray's. The Hoyt lot was sold to Andrew Ward, then to Edward Adams, next to William Hayden, and in 1666 to Francis Bradly.

The Pequonnock plat represents occupants, as follows. January 21, 1649, Ephraim Wheeler granted from the town one home-lot, consisting of three acres, more or less, bounded north-west with the high-way, north-east with land of Thomas Wheeler, jr., south-east with the land of James Bennet, and south-west with the highway. In January, 1649, James Bennet granted from the town a home-lot, consisting of 2½ acres, more or less, bounded north-west with the land of Ephraim Wheeler, north-east with the land of Thomas Wheeler, jr., south-east with the land of Thomas Wheeler, sr. In January, 1649, Thomas Wheeler, jr., granted from the town one home-lot, 2½ acres, more or less, bounded north-east with Thomas Wheeler, jr., north-west with the land of James Bennet, south-east with the land of John Evarts, and south-west with the highway. January 8, 1649, Joseph Middlebrook granted from the town one home-lot, consisting of 2½ acres, more or less, bounded north-west with the land of John Evarts, north-east with Benjamin Turney and George Starkey, south-east with Peter Johnson, and south-west with the highway. December 3, 1653. Formerly granted to Richard Roots one home-lot, 2½ acres, bounded south-west with Henry Jackson, south-east with Robert Turney, north-east with William Odell, north-west with the highway.

Richard Roots died before 1653. Michael Fry married his widow, and settled upon his home-lot. Henry Jackson purchased Thomas Wheeler, jr.'s, home-lot, who at or before 1653 had built a house at Greenlea. George Starkey was probably the same person who died in London in September, 1665, where he practiced medicine during the terrible plague which prevailed in that city.

Among the other early Pequonnock settlers was Samuel Gregory, who lived near the foot of Golden-hill, near the street which crosses the hill to Stratford. A few rods east of the military park were some three acres of peat swamp land, which was used as fuel. A stone quarry lay but a few rods north-east of this peat land; and about a mile to the north was still another quarry. West of the military green was the first burial ground of Pequonnock; but it does not appear that it was used for this purpose until some years after the settlement, when by a vote of the town the Pequonnock planters were granted a burial place. In addition to the above mentioned names the following list gives the heads of other families living in Fairfield between 1639 and 1650:

John Cable.
John Chapman.
James Beers.
Widow Rachel Brundish.

EVARTS.—In the REGISTER, ante, page 30, is the statement that James,^{5} son of Reuben^{4} Evarts, had "one son, Rev. Jeremiah.^{6}" This is an error, as Jeremiah was a lawyer by profession, not a minister; and James Evarts had, besides Jeremiah, another son and three daughters. MARY EVARTS. *

EVARTS (ante, vol. 61, pages 25-26).—The compiler states the date of the birth of James^{2} Evarts, son of John^{1} Evarts who founded the family in this country, as 1648, and states the date of his marriage to Lydia, daughter of Richard Guttridge, as 1660. This would seem to be an error. **

I have in my possession a genealogical table of the family which gives the date of James^{2} Evarts's birth as July 19, 1638, but I do not know from what source the one which I have was compiled. SHERMAN EVARTS.

Corrections and Additions to the Everett Genealogy. Contributed by Keith M. Seymour, San Francisco, California.

Edward F. Everett published a brief genealogy of the Everett family (Register, 49 [1895]: 453) and later a book, Descendants of Richard Everett of Dedham, Massachusetts (Boston, 1902). Recent research adds data and corrects some errors relating to the family of Israel Everett of Torrington, Connecticut (No. 29 in the Everett book).

The original will of this Israel Everett is on file at the Connecticut State Library. It was signed 24 February 1777 and proved 10 July 1780. In the same library is a document on which the heirs of Israel covenant among themselves for the distribution of his estate. The signers of this document, dated 29 December 1781, are the widow, Abigail, sons Samuel and Israel, daughters Abigail, Anne, and Hannah, and Eber Andrews with his wife Sarah, and Titus Andrews with his wife Eunice. All signed at Torrington except Titus and Eunice who signed at Stillwater, Albany County, New York. It is interesting to note that all the men signed their names but all the women, except Eunice, signed with their mark.

In a deed (Torrington Land Records, 4:264) dated 28 November 1785, Job Green with his wife Sarah and Titus Andrews with his wife Eunice, all of Stillwater, New York, convey land distributed to them from the estate of their father Israel Everett. Later (Torrington Land Recs., 6:48) in a deed dated 29 January 1795 Abigail Everett, Anne Everett, and Hannah Everett, all of Torrington, Connecticut, Sarah Green of Clarrendon (sic), Northland County, Vermont, and Titus Andrews with Eunice his wife, of Stillwater, convey part of the estate of Israel Everett.

These data establish that Israel Everett, Sr., died between February

"Spring Dale," situated near the village of Northampton. After thirty-three years of unremitting service in that institution, he retired therefrom in May, 1879, but continues, at the age of seventy-six, in active practice.

Joseph H. Flint, M.D., was born at Leicester, Worcester Co., Mass.; removed to Northampton prior to 1830, where, for a number of years, he followed the practice of his chosen profession. He subsequently removed to Springfield, where he died. While at Northampton he was associated professionally with Dr. Elisha Mather.[*]

Timothy J. Gridley was a pupil of the elder Dr. Smith in the medical college at New Haven; was celebrated as a surgeon, and was in practice at Amherst, in or near the year 1821.[†]

The constitution provided that any surplus funds not needed for use within the limits of the society shall be forwarded to the American Bible Society, established in New York, "to which this society shall so far be considered auxiliary."

A president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, and a board of trustees are chosen annually. The president and vice-president are trustees ex-officio. The treasurer is the only paid officer. HISTORY OF THE TOWNS OF HAMPSHIRE COUNTY.

NORTHAMPTON.

As the fertility of the soil, beauty of location, and picturesque scenery of the "great river," as Cotton Mather called the Connecticut, attracted the attention of the overcrowded settlements at the Bay in 1635, so in 1653 the fertile meadows of Nonotuck[¶] were regarded as the most inviting locality for a new plantation by the settlers at Windsor, Hartford, and Springfield, and on the 20th day of May in that year a petition was presented to the General Court by inhabitants of the above towns for leave to plant a settlement at Nonotuck. There is, however, no doubt that the real projectors and those through whose energy and influence the scheme was sustained and fostered were John Pynchon, son of William Pynchon, the founder of Roxbury and Springfield, Elizur Holyoke, son-in-law of John Pynchon, and Samuel Chapin.

The following is a copy of the original petition:

> "To the Right Worshypful Governor, and the Worshypful Magistrates, Assistants, and Deputies of this much-honored Court,—Your humble petitioners wish increase of all felicity. Your humble Petitioners being fully persuaded by your former promptness and pious endeavors to begin and settle Plantations in such places as appeared convenient within the liberty of your Jurisprudence and Patent, for the further enlarging of the territories of the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the common utility of the Common Weal, are therefore emboldened to present these few lines to your Judicious consideration, and their request therein that you would be pleased to give and grant Liberty to your Petitioners whose names are subscribed, and such as so join with them, according to your wonted clemency, power, right, and authority, from, by, and under you to plant, possess, and inhabit the place, being on Conetiquot River, above Springfield, called Nonotuck, as their own inheritance, according to their divisions by estate, and to carry on the affairs of the place by erecting a town there, to be governed according to the laws, directions, and instructions they shall receive from you. Your Petitioners having some knowledge of the place by reason of the propinquity of our habitation, to be a place desirable to erect a town in for the furtherance of the public weal, by providing corn and raising cattle, not only for their own but likewise for the good of others,—the propagating of the gospel,—the place promising in an ordinary way of God's Providence a comfortable subsistence, whereby people may live, and attend upon God in his holy ordinances without distraction. So, committing you to the Guidance of the mighty Counsellor, we rest your humble Petitioners.

This petition for the planting of Non-o-tuck was supplemented by a petition signed by John Pynchon, Elizur Holyoke, and Samuel Chapin, praying that the prayers of the above petitioners might be granted, and they state that twenty-five families at least were desirous of forming a new settlement, "many of them," to use their own words, "of considerable quality for estates and fit matter for a church when it shall please God to give opportunity that way;" and further on it is stated that "the inducement to us in these desires is not any sinister respect of our own, but that we, being so alone, by this means may have some more neighborhood and your jurisdiction."

The petition was finally granted by the General Court, May 18, 1653, and Messrs. Pynchon, Holyoke, and Chapin were chosen as commissioners to lay out the plantation of Non-o-tuck.

The next move to be made in the grand scheme which Mr. Pynchon had projected was the purchase of the lands from the Indians, and in this he followed in the footsteps of his illustrious and humane father in dealing honestly and fairly with the children of the forest. The following is a copy of the instrument that conveyed the lands of Non-o-tuck to John Pynchon and others:

"Be it known by these presents that Chickwallop, alias Wawhillowa, Nenassahalant, Nassisohee, Kiunks, Paquaharlant, Assellaquompas, & Awonusk, the wife of Wulluther, all Nonotuck, who are the chief and proper owners of all the lands on the west side of Connecticut River at Nonotuck, on the one, do give, grant, bargain, and sell unto John Pynchon, of Springfield, on the other party, to him, his heirs, and assigns, all the Grounds and Meadows, Woods and Ponds & W lying on the west side of Quonetticut River, beginning the small river (below Munham) called Sankrohonk, & So up by Quonetticut River to the little meadow called Capawonk, namely, to the little brook or Gutter on this side Capawonk, which little brook is called Masquampe, and the Grounds lying Westward from Connecticut River (within the compass aforesaid) for nine miles out into the woods, viz.: as far as Manskoonish is from Springfield,—for so it was expressed to the Indians,—all that Tract of Grounds from Sankronk river, Quonaikguck, called Munham, Pochneck, Pelowwag, Aspowounk, Luckcommuk, Assattayyagg, Hayyagg, Nayyoumhegg, Masqump, and by whatsoever other names the said Grounds are called, & all out into the woods from the great river for 9 miles within this compass. The aforesaid Indians, and in Particular Wawhollowa, Nenessahalant, & Nassachohee, being the Sachems of Nonotuck, do for themselves, & with the consent of the other Indians and owners of the Said Grounds, Sell, Give, and Grant unto John Pynchon, of Springfield, and to his assigns; for and in consideration of one hundred fathom of Wampam by Sale & for Ten coats (beside some small gifts) in hand paid to the said Sachems & owners, all the land aforesaid as* these presents have bargained, Granted & Sold to the said Pynchon all and singular the said lands free from all Incumbrances of Indians, provided the Said Pynchon Shall plow up, or cause to be plowed up, for the said Indians Sixteen acres of land on the Easterly side of Quonetticut river, which is to be done sometime next Summer, 1654; and in the meantime, viz., the next spring 1654, the Indians have liberty to plant their present cornfields, but after that time they are wholly to leave that west side of the river, & not to plant, or molest the English there.

"All the said premises the said Pynchon & his assigns Shall have & enjoy absolutely & clearly forever,† all Incumbrances from any Indians or their Cornfields. Witness of this these presents the said Indians have subscribed their marks this twenty-fourth day of September, 1653.

* Omissions in deed.

† This grant was witnessed by Elizur Holyoke, Henry Burt, Thomas Cooper, Thos. Stebbins, and two Indians.

The two great steps had now already been taken, and on Oct. 3, 1653, not two weeks after the purchase was made, the proprietors met at Springfield to confer concerning the future plantation and the regulation thereof. Among other things, it was agreed that of the petitioners all should be "resident there, and dwell, themselves and their families, there by the spring next ensuing the date hereof." It was also agreed that any person failing to do this should "lose his money paid for the purchase, with the charges." At this meeting it seems the whole number of petitioners did not appear, and ten new persons were substituted.

It is evident that the object of the above meeting was to permanently secure the settlement of the place in the following year, and at a meeting of the proprietors, held at Springfield, Nov. 15, 1653, it was announced that the petition had been granted, and the following order was made:

"It is ordered and agreed that all such persons as shall go up to Nalwottoge the next spring ensuing the date hereof, there to dwell the next winter, for the furthering and promoting the planting of the said place, it is agreed that every single man shall receive four acres of meadow besides the rest of his division, and every head of a family shall receive five acres beside the rest of their division."

In that early day it was considered an "inalienable right" of the "good men" of the town to designate who should be admitted into the plantation. At a meeting of the progenitors of the settlement, held at Springfield in 1653, a committee of five was appointed "to receive in such inhabitants as they shall judge fit for the carrying on the designs of the company, and to accommodate them according to the former rule, which is a quarter to twenty families, being in estimation eight hundred acres,"—that is, that the first twenty families were to have forty acres each.

Among the early regulations of the plantations were these: that there must be a residence of four years before any settler should have a right to either sell or let his lands, and in case he should remove from the town before the expiration of four years his lands should be declared forfeited.

In the spring of 1654, Pynchon, Holyoke, and Chapin, in furtherance of this plan, proceeded to lay out the plantation of Non-o-tuck, as shown by the following record in the old town-book of Northampton:

"A true copy of the bounds of the plantation which the Committee appointed by the Honored General Court laid out to the Planters of Nonotuck.

"Whereas, we whose names are underwritten were appointed by the General Court of the Massachusetts to lay out the land at Nonotuck for two plantations, for the present we have only appointed the bounds of one of them, to which we allow the great Meadow on the west side of Conecticote River, as also a little meadow, called by the Indians (Capawonke), which lieth about two miles above the great Meadow, the bounds of which plantation is to extend from the (south side) of the little meadow, called Capawonke, to the great falls, to Springfield ward; and westward is to extend nine miles into the woods, from the river of Conecticote, lying . . . east the foresaid meadows; and (the same) to belong to the planters and such as shall come to plant with them, who, according (to the) liberty granted from the Court, have made choice thereof for themselves and their successors, not molesting the Indians (nor) depriving them of their just right and property without allowance to their satisfaction.

"By us, "John Pynchon,
"Elizur Holyoke,
"Samuel Chapin.

"Springfield, 9th May, 1654."

In this connection the following record also appears, under date of Oct. 18, 1654:

"Nonotuck Plantation.

"To the Honored General Court of the Massachusetts: We whose names are underwritten being appointed to divide the lands at Nonotuck into two plantations, we accordingly have granted to them that now first appear to remove thither to plant themselves on the west side of the River Conecticott, as thay desired, and have laid out their bounds, viz., from the little meadow above thire plantation—which meadow is called Capawonke or Mattomett—down to the head of the falls which are below them, reserving the lands on the east side of said river for another Plantation, when God, by his Providence, shall so dispose thereof, and still remain your humble servants,

"John Pynchon,
"Elizur Holyoke,
"Samuel Chapin.

"The Court approves of this return."

We have now presented to the reader in detail the various petitions, orders, etc., that gave a “local habitation and a name” to Non-o-tuck, and next in order is to mention the names of those sturdy pioneers who left the rude comforts and conveniences of the plantations in this valley, that had been settled more than a decade, and had already taken upon them many of the attributes of the Eastern home, for an abode in the wilds of Non-o-tuck. It required no prophetic eye to discern that the rich intervales of this section must soon become the site of a flourishing settlement, and it is not surprising that the project of John Pynchon met with a hearty response, and that the people were anxious to rear their homes in the fertile valley of the Connecticut, on Non-o-tuck, within the shadows of those grand upheavals of creation, Mounts Tom and Holyoke.

Among the first of those courageous pioneers who located at Non-o-tuck, erecting the standard of home in the midst of a dense, uninviting wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts and the treacherous savages, were Thomas Judd, John King, Joseph Parsons, Thomas Bascom, Isaac Shelden, John Strong, Thos. Ford, Edward Elmore, Aaron Cook, John Hillyer, William Hulburt, Thomas Woodford, Samuel Wright, Robt. Bartlett, John Lyman, James Bridgman, Thomas Root, Alexander Edwards, Wm. Miller, David Burt, Samuel Allen, William Hannum, William Hulburt, Nathaniel Phelps, and John Stebbins.

The healthful climate and fertility of the soil of the “Plantation of Non-o-tuck,” as the place was called, soon attracted the attention of others, and the years 1658 to 1662 witnessed an influx of sturdy yeomen from the adjoining settlements of Windsor, Hartford, and Springfield. Among them are mentioned the names of Edward Baker, John Searle, Eleazer Mather, Alexander Alvord, Wm. Clark, Henry Woodward, Enos Kingsley, Aaron Cook, John Strong, Medad Pomeroy, Jonathan Hunt, and John Taylor. Soon after came Israel Rusk, Preserved Clapp, Caleb Pomeroy, Solomon Stoddard, Robert Danks, Samuel Judd, and Thomas Judd.

It is a somewhat singular fact that of the twenty-four petitioners for the settlement of Non-o-tuck only eight settled here, viz., Edward Elmore, William Miller, Thomas Root, William Clark, William Holton, Robert Bartlett, John Webb, and William Janes.

The home-lots of the first settlers were located in the vicinity of what is now known as Market, Pleasant, King, and Hawley Streets. As the plantation increased, settlements were next made west of the “old church,” and later south of Mill River.

The pioneers evidently gave but little attention to the laying out of streets, and it has been said that they were laid out by the cows, the inhabitants building wherever these animals made a path.

The causes which drove the fugitives from their native country to Plymouth Rock were still fresh in their minds, and the settlement had hardly been effected ere a movement was made toward the erection of a house of worship. It was placed under the control of the town, the town voting for the selection of a minister, his wages, etc.* The first meeting-house was contracted to be built by five of the settlers, and to be completed by the middle of April, 1655.

March 13, 1657, the town employed an agent “to obtain a minister, and to devise means to prevent the excess of liquors and cider from coming to town.” This commission alone clearly portrays the character of the pioneers of Northampton. They were religious and temperate, firm in the right, and with a strength of character that rendered them conspicuous. They left their impress upon the following generations, and the “New England traits of character” have ever been synonyms with honesty, uprightness, sobriety, and Christianity.

During the first four years the expenses of the plantation must have been very light, as the first record of a tax voted was under date of March 29, 1658, when they voted a tax of thirty pounds to pay the town's debts; this doubtless covered the period from the date of settlement to that time. At that meeting it was also voted that a ferry-boat be built for the common use of the people.

“January 4, 1658, “The Town voted to pay Mr. Mather twenty-five pounds for half a year, in good and merchantable pay in wheat, in this place.” They also granted eighty acres of land for the ministry.

December 20, 1658, “The Town voted one hundred pounds to build a minister's house.”

It is quite certain that hospitality was not reckoned as one of the virtues of the good people of Northampton in 1672, as the town records for that year disclosed the following order:

> “4th (1) '72, '73. Whereas a great deal of trouble, detriment, and change have been brought upon this Town by reason of receiving into the same Foreigners and Strangers, we do, therefore, by this order, and by this it is ordered, that whosoever in this town shall bring into it or receive into his family a foreigner or Stranger, or any man from abroad, or entertain him in his house above Ten days without Liberty from the Selectmen, shall forfeit to the Town Ten Shillings for every week so entertaining him. By the Selectmen, David Wilton, William Clark, Wm. Holton, Henry Woodward, and Medad Pomeroy.”

Feb. 8, 1657, it was voted that three men should be chosen “to end small causes. They shall first choose one, and he that hath most votes by Papers Shall Stand for one and for the rest in order.” It seems, however, there were but two chosen, William Holton and Thomas Bascom.

In 1658 thirty pounds were levied to pay the town debts.

In 1661 it was voted that the mill be free, and “that the Town will build a new boat.”

It seems in those early days there was a penalty for being absent from town-meetings, as under date of Feb. 9, 1658, it was ordered that whosoever he be that absents himself from the town-meeting, after having been warned by the townsmen, shall forfeit the sum of 12*d*. A fine of 1*d*. was also ordered “if they be not at the beginning of the meeting when it is orderly begun.”

Some trouble was evidently experienced in the town-meetings, as the following order appears on the town-book:

> “Northampton, 19th of 12th mo., 1660. At a meeting of the Selectmen, considering that might be for the well ordering of town-meetings, and finding by experience that Tumults and many speaking at one time in Such a Tumultuous manner that it hinders the work in hand, and is dishonorable to God and grievous to many persons, do therefore order whilst any common business is in hand, or under consideration and debate, every man shall apply himself to the common work, and not to be more speakers than one at a time, lovingly and moderately, upon the Penalty of 12*d* for every such offence, to be levied by distress. We intend not to hinder any man to give his advice in any matter one at a time.”

On the 31st of the 10th month “it was voted and agreed that the town rates for this present year wheat shall go for 3*s*. 6*d*. per bushel.”

“Cornelius, the Irishman,” was dealt with as follows:

> “17th day, 9th mo., 1663. At a legal Town-meeting there was then granted to Cornelius, the Irishman, three acres of land, upon condition he build upon it & make improvements of it within one year; yet not so as to make him Capable of Acting in any Town affairs no more than he had before it was granted to him.'

The price of grain for the year 1664 was fixed as follows: wheat 3*s*. and 4*d*; “pease,” 3*s*. per bushel; and Indian corn at 2*s*. and 3*d*. per bushel, “till they see cause to alter it.”

> “2 April, 1664, Capt. Cooke brought a wolf's head to my house, & I cut off his ears, according to law.
> “Per me. David Wilton.”

“Capt. Cooke” was evidently a wolf-hunter, as the records show that within a few months he killed twelve of these animals, all of whose “ears were cut off” by David Wilton, “according to law.”

The sport of “horse-racing” was not in much favor with the “goodmen” of the parish away back in 1664, as it voted in that year “that if any shall run races with their horses or mares in any Street in this Town shall for every such offense pay 2*s*. 6*d*., the one-half to the town the other half to its Informer.”

We desire not this, that y^{e} Town, by granting this o^{r} desire, should be brought into any snare or inconvenience hereafter, but for o^{r} own benefite & Comfort & our Posteritys after us. y^e Record of my Great Grandfather and Grandfather might be found either at Great Torrington or Tiverton, & by y^t means it might be known whether we & Samuel Parsons are descended from one Stock. My great Grandfather Marshfield came from Exeter, and brought my Grandfather when he was ab^t 4 years old. My Grandfather Marshfield's name, I think was Samuel, and my great Grandfather's name Josiah; They came over about the same time with my great Grandfather Parsons and his family. I should be glad if the history of the families could be traced back as far as those y^t first came over, for it might be of service to some of their Descendants.

My love to my children and grand children & am your careful Father

Benjamin Parsons, the grandfather of the Rev. Jonathan Parsons, married Sarah Vore, October 6, 1653, the daughter of Richard Vore of Windsor, Conn., and died in Springfield, Mass., August 24, 1689. [See Gen. Reg., Vol. I., for July, p. 269.]

Samuel Marshfield (the maternal grandfather of the Rev. Jona. Parsons) was the son of Thomas Marshfield, who is mentioned in 1640 as an owner of lands in Windsor, Conn., but removed from Windsor about 1642. His son, Samuel Marshfield, married, March 18, 1651, Hester Wright, the daughter of Deacon Samuel Wright, who settled in Springfield, Dec. 12, 1639, and had children: Sarah, d. May, 1653; Mary, b. June 10, 1653; Thomas, b. Sept. 6, 1654; Sarah, b. Feb. 2, 1656; Samuel, b. Aug. 20, 1661, m. Joseph Bedortha, July 24, 1634.

Hester, the wife of Samuel Marshfield, died at Springfield, April 3, 1664, in childbed, leaving a daughter, Abilene, b. April 2, 1664, who m. Thomas Gilbert, Aug. 15, 1686. And on the 28th Dec., 1664, Samuel Marshfield m. for his 2d wife, Mrs. Catherine Gilbert (the widow of Thomas Gilbert), by whom he had four children, viz.:

Chapin

Mrs. Catherine Gilbert, the 2d wife of Samuel Marshfield, was the daughter of Deacon Samuel Chapin, who removed from Braintree to Springfield before the year 1643. She m., in 1646, Nathaniel Bliss of Springfield, son of Thomas Bliss of Hartford, by whom she had four children. She became a widow; and, July 3, 1655, m. Thomas Gilbert, who removed from Windsor to Springfield about 1655, Jan. 30, by whom she had four children, and again became a widow; and in 1664 m. Samuel Marshfield for her 3d husband, by whom she had four children, as above mentioned.

Samuel Marshfield frequently represented the town of Springfield as a deputy to the General Court, and held many important offices. He died at Springfield about 1692. His son, Josiah Marshfield, on the 23d Dec., 1692, presented an inventory of his estate before the Hon. John Pynchon, Esq., Judge of the Probate of Wills, which is recorded at Northampton, Mass., Vol. III., p. 3.

There was just one local touch of witchcraft which at this time was settling like a black cloud on the eastern shores of the colony. Mary Randolph, of Northampton, was put under bonds to appear and answer the charge of being a witch; but this is the last that was heard of her case. There are occasional references to slaves. One, known as "Jack," escaped from Wethersfield, was caught and lodged in the Springfield jail in 1680.

Nathaniel Burt, of the board of selectmen of 1678, resigned in July because he was not a freeman, and his brother, Jonathan Burt, was chosen in his place. The record as to this matter begins: "It was pprounded y^{r} being some scruple made concerning the Selectmen's Acts, because the Major part of y^{m} are not freemen according to order, whether y^{e} Town would not rectify y^{e} same."

The General Court, in obedience to the royal proclamation of April 27, 1678, ordering all subjects to take the oath of allegiance, directed the various magistrates to administer it forthwith; accordingly John Pynchon performed that duty to the following inhabitants of Springfield on December 3, 1678, and January 1, 1679: —

In order to avoid disputes about land titles a vote was passed in January, 1685, that "al former grants of Land wthin this Township longe meddowe," and, foreseeing that that part of the town was destined to grow in importance, a request was lodged for a permit to surrender the planting-grounds upon the river-bank, and to take lands back upon the next plantation. This request was granted in 1648. Three years after, lands were apportioned at Pecowsic and Mill river as follows: —

Robert Ashley's section was given on condition that he keep an ordinary, but it was to be surrendered in case he failed in this respect.

The fact that John Pynchon was becoming an extensive trader and business man was probably due to the encouragement of his father, who felt that he himself was not destined to spend his closing days in Springfield. The son was pushed forward in both public and private affairs, and soon gained the confidence of the community. In the winter of 1650 we find that, "It is agreed by the Towne that if M^{r}. John Pynchon will make a chamber over the meeting-house and board it: he shall have the use of it entirely to himself for Ten years," when the town could secure it by paying the expense of building it. A year later a dispute arose between John Pynchon and the town over this chamber. The young man used the chamber for storing corn; many feared that the grain would come down upon their heads, and he was limited to 400 bushels at one time, unless he "underprop y^{e} floor." The town finally bought the chamber outright.

There is not a line of manuscript of this period extant that can be pointed to as evidence that the course of Mr. Moxon's teachings was not in full accord with the orthodox views of the times, and yet it is more than probable that he differed with the great divines down at the Bay. One wonders what was the occasion of this action, taken Dec. 27, 1649: "It is alsoe ordered y^{t} y^{e} select Townsmen wth y^{e} Deacons shall in y^{e} behalfe of the Towne draw up & send down to y^{e} elders a letter desiring y^{m} to explaine y^{e} cleere meaninge of y^{e} voates concerninge M^{r}. Moxon's maintenance."

In 1652 John Pynchon headed a committee to bargain with Mr. Moxon for all of his Springfield real estate, which, after due deliberation and several meetings, was brought about, the agreement being that taken up, and Mr. Pynchon concluded to go ahead. Subsequently the town voted Pynchon one-twelfth part of a bushel for all the grain ground in the new mill. A few days later he was voted some land, if he would also build a saw-mill. Pynchon's slaves, "Harry" and "Roco," worked on the first mill put up at Suffield in 1672.

From the mass of orders in town-meetings, as to small matters, the following is selected as a sample: —

> Ordered that the y^e gate at the higher wharfe shall be set in repaire ag^t y^e spring of y^e yeare & y^t y^e s^d gate shall be kept in repaire and well hung fro yeare to yeare & after fences be made up in y^e spring yearely the s^d gate shall be always kept shut till all y^e fields about it be broken up. And if any person shall throw open or leave open the s^d gate fro the tyme of making up fences in y^e spring till liberty of laying y^e fields commons he shall forfeit a fine of 5s.

About 1662 the old road along the brow of the hill (Maple street), through the pines to the dingle, was laid out, and on it the house of correction was built. It was found convenient, also, to build a pound on the west side, at the "hay place," which was probably not far from the old upper ferry, opposite Cypress street.

The board of townsmen of 1654 consisted of Thomas Cooper, George Colton, Robert Ashley, Henry Burt, and Benjamin Cooley. The following year, Cooper, Ashley, and Cooley were reëlected, and Miles Morgan and John Dumbleton chosen in the place of Colton and Burt. The three members reëlected refused to serve, and they were fined 20*s.* apiece, while George Colton and Thomas and John Stebbins were chosen to fill their places. Lieutenant Cooper was evidently a brisk, outspoken man, which sometimes made it difficult to get on with him. Some years later he was appointed by the County Court to aid in laying out a highway, but the judges finally substituted another man on account of his refusal to serve

The new board of townsmen, with John Pynchon and Samuel Chapin, were constituted a commission to allot the common lands. The new plan was followed for several years, but we find that in 1663 the power to grant allotments of land was again taken from the selectmen and given to Captain Pynchon, Ensign Cooper, Benjamin Cooley, George Colton, Rowland Thomas, Miles Morgan, and Elizur Holyoke, "for the present." A brisk apportionment of lands followed.

We cannot but think that behind these short orders, changing the privilege of dividing and assigning lands from the town-meeting to the selectmen, then back to the town-meeting, then to the selectmen aided by a committee, and finally to a special land board, is an interesting chapter of our annals that is lost beyond all hope of recovery. Certain it is that, for some reason, a rebellious spirit rested upon the local waters. Men sometimes absented themselves wilfully from the town-meeting. In April, 1665, the following persons were fined for this offence: Henry Chapin, Griffith Jones, Edward Foster, William Branch, Deacon Chapin, Robert Ashley, Thomas Mirrick, Anthony Dorchester, Jonathan Burt, William Brookes, Joseph Crowfoote, John Leonard, Ensign Cooper, Benjamin Mun, John Clarke, and Nathaniel Burt.

It was in 1655 that the base of assessment of taxes was changed from the number of acres to the value of the lands. Stock was, as before, included in the ratable property. Men without any property were taxed 5*s.* per annum for the support of the ministry.

The town-organizing genius of John Pynchon showed itself in January, 1656, when he and others received power to assign lands at Woronoco (Westfield) to settlers. The final apportionment was not made, however, until 1664. Pynchon was authorized, with others, to apportion land at Squakheag (Northfield) for a plantation, in 1672.

The struggling community at Quabaug had all along been under the fostering care of Springfield. As early as 1655 Elizur Holyoke had been a member of a legislative committee to lay out four thousand acres for some Indians near Quabaug; and, ten years later, the plantation applied to Springfield to secure for them the Indian title to the lands they occupied. Lieut. Thomas Cooper performed that service, Elizur Holyoke and Samuel and Japhet Chapin witnessing the deed.

meeting-house, and their arbitrary duties often caused heart-burnings quite as intense as those resulting from assignments of land, since the rule followed was worldly condition and social importance. In the winter of 1663 Deacon Chapin and the selectmen, consisting of Thomas Cooper, Robert Ashley, John Pynchon, Benjamin Cooley, and Samuel Marshfield, distributed the seats as follows, no mention being made of Mr. Pynchon, as he probably owned a seat: —

Those of the present generation having ancestors in this congregation, and being curious to learn their social importance, can entertain themselves by studying the above list; and, if the family vanity is not flattered by ancestral assignments to "y^{e} Backer seate," let it be remembered that the good people of that day were themselves often quite as much disturbed at the way they were ranked. This trouble became so serious in 1666 that the selectmen were compelled to interfere; many having refused to sit where they were assigned, and having acted "with a high hand," it was ordered: —

Whosoever of this towneship shall not fro tyme to tyme in respect of their sitting in y^{e} meeting house submit y^{m}selves to the ordering of y^{e} Select men & Deacons or such as are impowered to seate & order psons in y^{e} meeting house: All such Persons as shall refuse or neglect to attend unto order as aforsd shall forfeite as is hereafter expressed viz: Hee or She that shall not take his or her seate ordered y^{m} from Tyme to tyme But shall on y^{e} days or Tymes of Gods Publike worship Goe into & abide in any other seate appointed for some other; Such disorderly pson or psons for y^{e} first offence shall forfeit Three shillings foure pence to y^{e} Towne Treasury, w^{ch} shall be exacted by warrant fro y^{e} Selectmen directed to y^{e} Constable to Levy y^{e} same, And if afterward Hee or Shee shall still psist in such disorder, they shall pay sixe shillings eight pence as a fine to y^{e} Towne to be exacted as aforesd; & if a 3d tyme they shall still psist in such obstinacy, such pson to pay Ten shillings to y^{e} Towne; to be exacted as aforesd; And if afterwards they shall still psist in such obstinacy, y^{e} selectmen are hereby ordered to complaine of such pson to y^{e} magistrate or county courte to deale with them as they shall Judge meete:

And whereas the Seate w^{ch} was made by y^{e} Towne at a common Town charge (formerly called the Guard seate) is now appointed by the selectmen (who only have y^{e} disposing of that Seate) for Boys to sit in; & y^{e} Selectmen having de> clared that the smaler Boys should sit there, that they may be more in sight of y^{e} congregation & having warned all men out y^{e} said seate, both maryed & other growne psons, some whereoff doe still continue to sit there, & seem as if they did it wth a high hand; It is therefore hereby ordered that noe Persons of this Towneship above y^{e} age of 15 or 16 yeares shall sit in y^{e} seate aforesd formerly called y^{e} Guard Seate, unless he be ordered to sit there to looke to y^{e} Boys, etc.

The selectmen promulgating this order were John Pynchon, George Colton, Benjamin Cooley, Samuel Marshfield, and Lawrence Bliss. This vigorous action seemed to have a sobering effect; but it did not pave the way for a permanent peace among the young people in the gallery. Some years later (1669) Miles Morgan and Jonathan Burt were stationed "up in y^{e} gallery to give a check to disorders in youth & young men In tyme of God's worship. Anthony Dorchester to sit in y^{e} guard seate for y^{e} like end."

The time had come for some more definite arrangement on the Connecticut than petty justices at the infant towns of Northampton and Hadley, and recourse to the Springfield judicial commissioners, by special orders of the General Court: "It is ordered by this Court & authority thereof," so runs the ancient record, "that henceforth Springfield, Northampton, and Hadley shall be & hereby are constituted as a county." The county ran from the Connecticut line to indefinite points, not more than thirty miles from any of the towns. This would bring the county into what is now Vermont and New Hampshire. Springfield was made the shire town, the court sitting alternately at Springfield and Northampton. The colony tax was to be paid in cattle or corn. A county government, however, had been practically in operation for two years. At the May term of the General Court, 1659, the inhabitants of Springfield had presented a petition for some form of shire government, and "Capt. John Pinchon, Left: Elitzur Holiocke, and Mr. Samuel Chapin" were chosen for one year to hold court, "Northampton to be referred to Springfeild in reference to County Courts." These courts, it was decreed, "shall in all respects have the power and priviledges of any County Courte till this Court shall see cause otherwise to determine." Thus, during the years 1660 and 1661 we had a provisional county court. Mr. Pynchon took the oath in open court at Boston, and subsequently administered it to Mr. Holyoke and Mr. Chapin.

After the formation of Hampshire county, in 1662, the county taxes collected by the constables were ordered to be delivered to the county treasurer at Springfield or at Windsor, each town to pay for transportation. In 1664 the commissioner and selectmen of all the towns were summoned before the County Court for not making out the tax assessment on time. Ensign Cooper, tax commissioner, who was specially summoned to appear, was fined 6*s.* 8*d.* for not responding. For several years the judges seemed to have the greatest difficulty in making the town and county officers do their duty. The court being somewhat of a legislative body, as we will see, found the burdens of administration of justice very severe. A Hadley man who was chosen to carry the votes for magistrate to Boston, neglected to do it, and was fined. Anthony Dorchester, of Springfield, constable, failed to make returns of warrants for jurymen in 1666, and was fined. Springfield had been previously fined 5*s.* for having a defective pound, and was subsequently before the court for not choosing a "gager for cask."

It will be remembered that Springfield was freed from paying a portion of the colony taxes when William Pynchon was magistrate. On account of special hardships at the time of the formation of the county, another attempt in that direction was made, and with what success this vote of Aug. 14, 1662, at Boston shows: —

> In refference to y^{e} order of y^{e} Gen^{l} Cort last May that y^{e} Inhabitants of these Townes on Qoonectticot should pay there corne to y^{e} countey Rates not as y^{e} court sets y^{e} price yearly but at such price as it passes among themselves: The Towne concieving it more hard for us than for other Townes in y^{e} Collony and not to be according to law, voted to send a Petition to y^{e} next Gen^{l} Court for easing y^{e} Paymt & that it may be accordinge to Law. And M^{r}. Holyyke is appointed to draw it up.

Christians." This is a fair exposé of the spirit at the bottom of Mr. Pynchon's warm polemics. The attempts both in England and this country to secure an iron-bound form of religion as handmaid to the State had set him to philosophizing. The attempt to secure liberty of conscience had the effect to drive him into more conservative lines of thought, and even led him to say: "I perceive by some godly ministers that have wrote into this country, that this is not a tyme of reformation, but of liberty of conscience. I beleeve by the tyme they see a little more of the lawlessnesse of liberty of conscience, they will change their judgmentt, & say that liberty of conscience will give liberty to Sathan to broch such horrid blasphemous oppinions as were not the like in any age."

The open winter of 1646–47 was followed by terrible floods and in the following autumn an epidemic of sickness. During the previous summer also caterpillars had appeared in such numbers, to the great damage of the wheat, that it may be called a plague. The settlers had many natural enemies. The pigeons in overwhelming flocks assaulted the crops and the wolves made free with sheep. A bounty of 10*d.* was paid for every wolf killed within five miles of the town.

The building of the meeting-house added to the solemnity of the Lord's-day observances. John Matthews, as we have intimated, was ordered to "beate the drum for the meetings for a yeares space at 10 of ye clock on the Lectures days and at 9 o clock on the Lord's days in the forenoon only, and he is to beate it fro M^r. Moxon to M^r: Stebbins house & ye meetinge to begin wthin halfe an hower after, for w^{ch} his paynes he is to have 6d. in wampam of every family in the towne or a peck of Indian corne if they have not wampam." A bell was procured a few years later, and Richard Sikes rang it and swept the house for 1*s.* a week.

In March, 1646, the town voted for "y^e remayninge 40£ due to Thomas Cooper for y^e compleatinge of y^e meeting house, 30£ of w^{ch} is to be payed into him by y^e last of this month, y^e other 10£ to rest in y^e Towns hand till an opportunity appears for p^{r}curinge glass or till y^e howse be finished."

The town-meeting usually specified the kind of property to be taxed. Thus the wolf bounty was raised from a tax upon "all sorts of cattell," which included horses. The tax for Mr. Moxon's maintenance, in 1647, had been raised upon "all lands and goods." Cooper's meeting-house debt was met by a tax upon "uplands (meddows excepted) and living stock." A special committee made out the valuation and assessment. Wheat was accepted for taxes at 3*s.* 10*d.* per bushel. Indian corn at 2*s.* 6*d.* and peas at 3*d.* per bushel. The tax for the £30 due Mr. Pynchon "for y^e purchas of y^e land of y^e Plantation of ye Indians" was rated "wholly on lands." The latter list is here given in full as it furnishes the names and landed importance of the settlers at the opening of the year 1647. There were then forty-two lot-owners and six vacant lots, some of them having been bought back by the town. We miss the names of Jehu Burr, John Cable, John Woodcock, and others of the first settlers. These men drifted to the Connecticut plantations, and were frequent parties in lawsuits for some years thereafter. The list is as follows: —

In January, 1646, Miles Morgan and George Colton were commissioned to "get a Smith for y^{e} towne," and we find that in the following September "A bargaine was driven the day above s^{d} betwixt the towne of Springfeild and ffrancis Ball for a shopp for a Smith w^{ch} is to be 12 foote wide, 16 foote in length, five foote studd betwixt Joynts, a chimney for the forge rungd, to be boarded both roof and sides, to make a doore and windows in the end wth a beam in y^{e} middst." It is difficult to tell just when Miles Morgan came to Springfield, but he had probably been a resident several years before the date of the above order. Comparatively little is known of Miles Morgan's early life. He was born in England, lived for a while at Bristol, and in 1636 came to this country when a young man, being accompanied by two brothers. The story that Miles Morgan accompanied the Roxbury pioneers to Springfield is utterly untrue. His house-lot was on the south side of Ferry lane (Cypress street), the site of Dr. Chauncey Brewer's residence. During the voyage to America young Morgan made the acquaintance, and, we may infer, won the heart, of a Miss Gilbert, who upon landing settled with her family at Beverly. After Morgan had built him a house in Springfield he pressed his suit with the Beverly maid, — not by letter, as is stated, for the simple reason that Miles could not write. The negotiations were evidently carried on by mutual friends, and Morgan, after his offer was accepted, made the journey to the east in about 1643, taking with him two neighbors and an Indian, duly armed. We are told that Miles and his three attendants walked back all the way from Beverly, while the bride and "some household stuff" were carried by the only horse at the disposal of this unique bridal party. Morgan was a butcher for many years, when his farming operations permitted.

The selectmen chosen in the autumn of 1645 were Lieutenant Smith, Richard Sikes, Samuel Chapin, Thomas Cooper, and Henry Burt. The selectmen for 1646 were Henry Smith, Elizur Holyoke, Samuel Chapin, Henry Burt, and Benjamin Cooley. That year Robert Ashley was licensed to keep the ordinary. Henry Burt's house was on south Main street, near Broad. He was a very active man, and one of his sons became the Deacon Burt of the First church, who was so much honored in later years.

A home lot twenty rods wide was assigned to Mr. Holyoke next south from that of his father-in-law, William Pynchon. It occupied the whole space from the northerly line of Worthington street to the southerly line of Bridge street. He afterward acquired, by purchase or grant from the town, large additional tracts of land on both sides of the river.

In 1662 the towns of Springfield, Northampton, and Hadley were made a county by the name of Hampshire. Springfield was made the shire town, but courts were to be held alternately at Springfield and Northampton.

In 1665 John Pynchon was made presiding judge of the court, with four associates. Holyoke was the associate from Springfield, and was also the recorder of the court.

Deacon Samuel Chapin came to Springfield, in 1642, from Roxbury, where he had owned a house and lot. On June 2, 1641, he took the freeman's oath at Boston, and so became legally a citizen of Massachusetts. It appears by the church records of Roxbury that he and his wife, Cicely Chapin, were both members of Rev. John Eliot's church in that town. His son, Japhet, was baptized there October 15, 1642.

In December, 1643, he appears by the records to have been at Springfield as one of a jury of which Holyoke was foreman, and Samuel Wright, afterward a deacon of the church, was a member. Wright and Chapin were the first deacons of the church here. Deacon Wright removed to Northampton, and died there. His descendants abound in that place and vicinity. Deacon Chapin continued to reside at Springfield, where he had a large family of sons and daughters. The northern part of the town was at one time almost peopled by his descendants.

On the 17th of September, 1862, a meeting of his descendants was held here in the old First Church, which was largely attended from all parts of the country. Stephen C. Bemis, one of the descendants, and then mayor of this city, presided. Judge Henry Chapin, of Worcester, delivered an address, and the late Dr. Holland, whose wife was a Chapin, read a poem. Other interesting addresses were delivered by other distinguished members of the family. In this way the memory of the old deacon was kept alive. And now, as if all this were not enough to perpetuate his memory, it is proposed to erect a bronze statue on Court square, in front of the church in which he once worshipped and officiated as deacon. An artist of renowned skill has been engaged to prepare this statue, and has already begun the work. When finished and erected, it will, undoubtedly, be a fit memorial in a fit place of the worthy man it is designed to represent.

While we hold in especial honor the few men who were leaders in the early settlement of this town, and who shared with William Pynchon, during the six- years of his stay here, the labor and responsibility of laying the foundations, we must not forget or overlook the names of others, who, without aspiring any post of leadership, were content, in the simple capacity of pioneer settlers, aid in building up this town in the wilderness, although it required them to pose themselves and their families to the privations and dangers of a frontier e. Of this class of early settlers, in addition to those already named, may be ntioned John Searle, Thomas Horton, Thomas Mirrick, John Leonard, Robert ley, William Warriner, Henry Burt, Rowland Stebbins, Richard Sikes, omas Cooper, James Bridgman, Alexander Edwards, Francis Ball, John rmon, Miles Morgan, Benjamin Cooley, John Matthews, George Colton, eph Parsons, John Clarke, Widow Margaret Bliss and her four sons, haniel, Lawrence, Samuel, and John, also Reice Bedortha, John Lomd, George Langton, Anthony Dorchester, John Lamb, John Dumbleton, land Thomas, Jonathan Taylor, Thomas Miller, Benjamin Munn, John ble. All these have descendants here, and their names have long been miliar to us.

We are now at the commencement of a new era in the history of this town. e quarter of a thousand years has passed since its corporate existence began the mutual agreement of the first settlers. Although weak in its infancy, it dually outgrew the discouragements of its origin. The steady courage of the nders never failed amid all the trials of its early years. When William chon, the original leader of the colonists, was compelled to abandon the n and return to England, it seemed for the time that the enterprise was almost peless, and a deep gloom spread over the minds of the people.

But a new leader came forward in the person of his son, John Pynchon, who ediately showed his capacity to take the place which his father had vacated, l carry on the work that his father had begun. And so a new impulse, ford and upward, was given to the enterprise, and the town continued steadily to w and prosper until that disastrous day in October, 1675, when the Indians, ulated by Philip, the chief of the Wampanoags, a tribe having its principal t in Bristol county and the adjacent parts of Rhode Island, suddenly laid le the pipe of peace, and with tomahawk, gun, and torch began the work of struction and slaughter.

Philip endeavored to combine all the Indians of New England in a grand conderacy against the English colonists, in the hope to expel or exterminate the onists. Failing at first to secure the coöperation of the Narragansett ans, and being hard pressed by the English and their allies, the Mohegan ans, Philip was forced from his stronghold in Bristol county and its vicinity the interior of Massachusetts among the Nipmuck Indians. IV. Elizur Holyoke and Samuel Chapin

AS already noted, a portion of the Record was kept in the hand of Elizur Holyoke. Born in Tamworth, Warwickshire, about fifteen miles northeast of Birmingham, and educated in England, in 1637 or 1638, when about twenty years old, Holyoke accompanied his father, Edward Holyoke, to New England and settled on a farm at Rumney Marsh, near Chelsea. Termed by Eliot "Mr. Pynchon's ancient friend," the older Holyoke was apparently a farmer of good estate who served as deputy for several terms during the 1640's, and in May 1650 was chosen deputy for Springfield.[1]

The first mention of Elizur Holyoke is his marriage to William Pynchon's daughter Mary on November 20, 1640, at which time he was granted lands at Springfield. His first appearance in the Record is as a juror in January 1641/2.[2] In January 1642/3 and in May 1645 he was on town committees to view and to allot lands; in September 1646 he was chosen a selectman for the ensuing year and in May 1651, constable. He was sworn a freeman April 13, 1648.[3]

Holyoke first assumed judicial duties in October 1652 when, as noted, the General Court empowered Pynchon, Holyoke, and Chapin as commissioners for the government of the inhabitants of Springfield and then continued to act under successive commissions until May 1665. After this date Holyoke, until his death on February 5, 1675/6, sat as an associate on the County Court for Hampshire.[4] He was chosen recorder for the commissioners in March 1660, and an entry in the Registry of Probate supplemental material notes that on September 25, 1660 he was "chosen and appointed Recorder for this Court and County." Apparently he was recorder for the County Court until his death. In 1665/66, he became clerk of the writs for Springfield when Chapin declined the office.[5]

During his period of judicial tenure Holyoke also held legislative office, being chosen deputy for Springfield eleven times between 1656 and 1675 (in some cases for only one session). He was elected selectman for Springfield nine times between February 1660/1 and February 1673/4.[6] In November 1656 he was chosen recorder or clerk of the town in John Pynchon's absence, in which capacity he served during the period 1661–76. Between 1663 and 1673 Holyoke was frequently chosen to carry up to shire meetings the sealed votes of the freemen of Springfield for nomination of assistants and choice of county treasurer and associates on the County Court. Once he was chosen moderator of a town meeting.[7]

In a number of instances Holyoke was commissioned by the General Court to act with others in matters relating to the settlement and pacification of the western frontier of the colony. Several on which he served with John Pynchon have been noted. In October 1663 Holyoke and David Wilton were authorized to lay out the bounds of a grant of lands to Major General Dennison near Northampton and Hadley. In May 1664 he and two others were designated to settle a grant of lands to Indians near Quabaug. In October 1669 he was one of seven empowered to determine what lands at Hadley belonged to the several ministers, and four years later one of three directed to report on a petition of the inhabitants of Swampfield.[8]

Holyoke, like John Pynchon, was on a number of ad hoc committees concerned with various Springfield town matters. He served on several committees concerned with the settlement of Woronoco, and on one charged with laying out lands granted Westfield by the General Court. In February 1661/2 Holyoke, Pynchon, and Timothy Cooper constituted a committee to consider settling the towns of western Massachusetts into a county. He was also on committees to dispose of town lands, to examine the accounts of the selectmen, to make rates, and to obtain a minister for the town. During 1656–57 he sometimes filled in for the minister on the Sabbath.[9] Other scattered committees on which Holyoke served dealt with such matters as a new meeting house, a claim against the town, poor relief, the location and maintenance of highways, and treating with the Indians. As town recorder he might be charged with drafting petitions to the General Court on matters such as inequitable county rates and imposts.[10]

Although Holyoke was commissioned an ensign in 1653, a lieutenant in 1657, and later appears as captain in the records, he played no important role in King Philip's War or in earlier defensive measures.[11]

Holyoke's income was derived largely from farming his substantial land holdings in and around Springfield, but he also owned lands near Lynn and Reading received from his father. Through his wife he had an interest in a sawmill which in March 1663/4 was conveyed to John Pynchon in settlement of a debt. Judging from the fact that he was chosen recorder for several bodies and from the manner in which the duties of such offices were performed, he must have been a person of some education and intellectual accomplishments. His father, in leaving all his books and manuscripts to Elizur, significantly noted that "he onely cann make use of them." [12]

The last of the four persons prominent in the early administration of justice at Springfield is Samuel Chapin, better known to posterity as Deacon Chapin. Baptized in October 1598 in the parish church of Poignton, Devonshire, he married in February 1623/4 and probably came to New England in 1635 with his father and family. At Roxbury, where he settled and engaged in agricultural pursuits, he was a member of the church and became a freeman on June 2, 1641.[13]

Chapin first appears in the Springfield records in January 1642/3 when he, with Holyoke, Henry Smith, and three others, was authorized to lay out lands on the west side of the River. He may have been elected a Deacon soon after his arrival but is not designated as such in the town records until 1649/50. In May 1645 he and Holyoke were on a committee to apportion planting grounds to each home lot and on another to make allotments of lands. He was one of the first selectmen chosen in 1644 and continued in that capacity until October 1652, when he resigned to become a commissioner. In 1661 and in 1664 he was again chosen a selectman. Chapin, along with John Pynchon and Holyoke, continued to act as a commissioner under successive commissions until May 1665. While Chapin attended the first few sessions of the County Court for Hampshire, he was never elected an associate.[14]

The first reference to Chapin found in the Record is on December 21, 1643, as a juror in Merick v. Ashley. On February 13, 1643/4 he was sworn constable in the place of John Leonard who was removed for swearing to a lie in the evidence he gave on review of the above action. He apparently continued in the office until March 12, 1645/6 when James Bridgeman was sworn constable. In 1648 and 1649 Henry Smith and Chapin were chosen to seal up the votes of the freemen for magistrates and to send them to the deputy from Roxbury representing Springfield at the General Court.[15] As already noted he was on committees appointed by the General Court in connection with the settlement of Northampton and Hadley. In the Springfield hierarchy around 1650 Chapin probably ranked next after William Pynchon, Henry Smith, and Elizur Holyoke.

Deacon Chapin served on many ad hoc committees. In September 1652 he was on the committee which treated with the Reverend Moxon for the purchase of his house and lands; twice he was on committees concerned with securing a minister for the town; and in 1656–57 was one of several charged with administering to the spiritual needs of the town in the absence of a minister. In the period 1665–67 he was on several committees charged with poor relief. In 1659 and 1662/3 the seating arrangement in the meeting house was ordered by Chapin and the selectmen.[16] In 1661/2 he was on a committee with two others for altering certain lots; later he was on a committee charged with the distribution of town lands and a committee on highways. In August 1665 he was a commissioner for the town to join with the selectmen in making the county rate. In 1669/70 and upon two subsequent occasions Chapin and one other were charged with examining the selectmen's accounts. These were the last appointments for the Deacon who died on November 11, 1675.[17]

At Springfield, Chapin, like Holyoke, was principally engaged in farming. Nothing is known of his education or of his activities in England, but on the basis of his "educated hand" and his phraseol-

BY

CHARLES J. DEAN

THE plantation of Nonotuck, later renamed Northampton, was settled in 1654 by some 20 or 25 pioneers. This tract of land, approximately nine miles square, was deeded to John Pynchon by the Indians on September 24, 1653, the price being "100 fathums of wampam by Tale, and ten coates (Beside some small gifts)," and the plowing of 16 acres of land for growing corn. The purpose of the settlement was set forth by the petitioners to the General Court as being "for the furtherance of the public weal, by providing corn, and raising cattle," and to "live and attend upon God, in his holy ordinances without distraction."

The town was laid out by John Pynchon, Elizur Holyoke, and Samuel Chapin, of Springfield. No record whatsoever remains of the migration hither, and the accounts of the first few months of struggle are extremely fragmentary, disclosing little beyond the fact that a meeting house of "Sawen Timber" had been contracted for before the year of settlement was ended.

The earliest settlers were deprived of everything but the barest essentials. Houses were of logs; food was simple but wholesome. Besides water and milk they drank home-brewed beer and ale, then cider, but tea, coffee, and rum were later importations. Clothing was of woolen homespun and a coarsely woven linen, sturdy and warm. Wheat was in common use as currency, being acceptable for the payment of both debts and taxes. Heat and light were furnished by blazing logs upon the hearth and pine splinters. Discipline was rigid: punishment severe.

As the town grew in strength and numbers, expansion became inevitable. Farm land was taken up in more remote sections; homes were built to form isolated hamlets, but distance meant inconvenience. Church going was difficult and sometimes impossible.

In 1673 nine hundred acres were sold to Hadley, and are now part of Hatfield. Later a second section was included within Montgomery. Easthampton was set off in 1729, although it was not incorporated as a town until 1785. Southampton was incorporated in 1753, and Westhampton became independent in 1778. CHAPINVILLE CEMETERY

K-2

This cemetery is situated about three-fifths of a mile east of Chapinville church, at the intersection of the roads that lead to Twin Lakes and Cooper Hill respectively.

This yard is one-half acre in area and was deeded to the town by John Weldon on Jan. 5, 1789 (see Land Records, Vol. 8, p. 41). The consideration was forty shillings, and the purchase was made pursuant to a town vote, passed Dec. 1, 1788. At that time the dwelling house of William Bement stood near the enclosure.

town of Longmeadow. He served as Selectman and in other offices. He headed the petition to change the location of the home lots from the meadow near the present railroad station to the higher ground where the village now stands. The change was made on account of the high water which overflowed the homelots in the meadow and which caused much damage and inconvenience to the inhabitants. Liberty was given to make the change in 1703. He gave lands to the town for the support of schools and the church and many years after his death the town erected a memorial tablet to his memory, which still stands in the Longmeadow burying ground east of the church. He married January 15, 1662, Rebecca Sikes, daughter of Richard Sikes. Their children were:—

Nathaniel, b. January 18, 1663, m. January 21, 1691, Elizabeth Dumbleton, daughter of John Dumbleton. She died November 3, 1692, and he married Mary, daughter of Charles Ferry, January 18, 1700. DEA. SAMUEL CHAPIN.

Dea. Samuel Chapin and his wife Cicely, were at Roxbury in 1638, and his name appears in the Town Records in Springfield in 1642. From whence he came to this country it has not been ascertained, but there is no doubt that he lived in England before migrating to New England. He took a prominent part in all the affairs of the town, both religious and civil. He was a member of the first Board of Selectmen and served nine consecutive years. William Pyn-chon was the first Magistrate, or Commissioner, and when his heretical book appeared his son-in-law, Henry Smith, was appointed to that office, but it does not appear that he served, as the next year, 1652, John Pynchon, Elizur Holyoke and Samuel Chapin were appointed Commissioners, "to hear and determine all cases and offences, both civil and criminal that reach not to life, limbe and banishment." The Deacon at various times, in the absence of a minister, from the departure of Mr. Moxon to the coming of his successor, Pelatiah Glover, conducted religious services, alternating with Henry Burt and John Pynchon. He served on important committees and the General Court in 1653 appointed him and John Pynchon to lay out Northampton and its bounds, and they made the purchase of the lands from the Indians. In 1659 they were appointed to lay out Hadley on both sides of the Connecticut River, that on the west side subsequently becoming the town of Hatfield.

In 1664 he petitioned the General Court "for some land for services done," and the Court in 1669 granted him 200 acres, "as laid out four miles from Mendon, bounded as in the said platt w^{ch} is on file, provided it exceed not two hundred acres, as also that it take not in any of the meadows now granted to Mendon." His son Josiah settled in Braintree, the town adjoining Mendon, and in 1684 he with others and the Selectmen of Mendon petitioned the General Court concerning taxing unimproved lands. In answer to this petition the General Court "granted the said petitioners free from country rates for the year ensuing," meaning the Province tax.

He must have been conspicuous in all the affairs that concerned the moral, religious and secular interests of the town. He has probably a greater number of descendants living within the limits of the old County of Hampshire at the present time than any other one of the first settlers, who have reason to be proud of their distinguished ancestor.

He had seven children, four sons and three daughters, all of whom, excepting the youngest, Hannah, having been born before coming to Springfield. Their names are as follows:—

Henry, b. in 1630, m. Bethia Cooley.

Josiah, lived at Braintree.

David, m. Lydia Crump and went to Boston.

Catherine, m. Nathaniel Bliss, and afterwards Thomas Gilbert and Samuel Marshfield.

Sarah, m. Rowland Thomas.

Japhet, b. at Roxbury, October 15, 1643, m. Abelenah Cooley.

Hannah, b. December 2, 1644, m. John Hitchcock.

Deacon Samuel died November 11, 1675, and his widow Cicely, February 8, 1682.

Deacon Chapin's accounts at Pynchon's store well illustrates the general habit of the settlers and the articles used by them. These extracts are taken from the accounts of 1652 and a year or more later. He was charged with 14s for half a pound of powder, 2s 6d for 3 pounds of sugar, 8d for 500 pins, £4 7s 6d for 10 yds. of Kersey, 5s 3d for smithery work, 5s 2d for 2 yds. Scots cloth, 4s 10d for 3 1-2 pounds of soap, £12 for a parcel of wampum sent to Henry Chapin, "you are to pay for your son David £10," 2s 11d for 1-2 yd. of Green Say, 2s 6d for 1 pair of stockings, 1s 3d for 1-2 yd. of flannel, 17s 6d for 7 yds. of linen cloth, 6s 6d for one Bible, 6s for one pint bottle, 1s 10d for a quart and 1-4 of brandy, 2s for one pound of pepper, and 4 1-2d for 1 pint of vinegar.

In payment of his accounts he was credited with 8s for 4 days work of David, 9s for David's work at the mill, 4s 6d for work of oxen, 2s 6d for 3 lbs. of candles, £3 4s for 192 lbs. of beef, £11 1s, for 60 bushels of wheat, 7s for a skin of Beaver, 16s for wheat delivered by Thomas Stebbins, 17s 6d from Katherine Bliss, £15 18s for 87 bushels of wheat at y^{e} mill in June '55, 2s 6d for a qr. of veal, £1 4s 4d for stringing 194 fathoms of wampum.

There was no stated time for settling accounts and they frequently stood a year and sometimes several years before there was a balance. In most instances the difference was in favor of John Pynchon. February 17, 1654, Deacon Chapin was owing him £35 10d, August 7th, 1655, £15 14s 6d, September 29, 1656, £13 16s 2d, and to the latter he set his hand.

This entry is found in Pynchon's book: "April 16th, 1665, sold to Deacon Chapin 100 acres of land in Chickkupy Plaine next above Henry Chapins, all through the Plaine from y^{e} River to y^{e} hill, & also 4 acres of muxy meddow for w^{ch} he is to allow & pay me 16s in wheat at 3s 6d per bushel, 8s next March & y^{e} other 8s y^{e} year after, viz: March next come twelve month; also to let out to Goodman Chapin y^{e} land of Sackets at Chickkupy for w^{ch} he is to pay me 3 bushels in wheat. Let out to Goodman Chapin y^{e} plowed ground of Sackets at y^{e} Cold Spring for w^{ch} he is to pay me 10s." The whole amount for the 100 acres and the rent of land as above was £16. The locality usually designated as Chicopee Plain was on the west side of the Connecticut, opposite Chicopee.

Specimens of his handwriting, including an excellent autograph, appear in the first part of this volume. They indicate an education in penmanship superior to the majority of the early settlers.

HENRY CHAPIN.

Henry Chapin married Bethia Cooley, daughter of Benjamin Cooley, December 15, 1664. His wife died December 9, 1711, and he died August 15, 1718. He was a Deputy to the General Court in 1689, and for eleven years served as Selectman. His first service was in 1670, and his last year 1701. His children were:—

Henry, b. June 1, 1666, d. April 29, 1668.

Sarah, b. March 30, 1670, d. unmarried, November 6, 1732.

Bethiah, b. February 19, 1672.

Henry, b. March 19, 1679, m. Mary Garnzey, late of Milford.

Benjamin, b. February 27, 1781, m. Hannah Colton, daughter of Isaac Colton.

She died November 17, 1711, aged 68, and he married second, Dorothy Root of Enfield, May 31, 1711. He died February 20, 1712, aged 70. FIRST GENERATION.

I. Dea. Samuel Chapin came with his family to reside in Springfield in 1642. It would rather appear that he resided in this country considerable time, perhaps eight or ten years before he came to Springfield, and perhaps the greater part of his children were born in this country, but no record has been found of the birth of but one—the youngest, and we do not find any record of but one of his sons taking the freeman's oath. David, his son, was made a freeman in Springfield, 5th day 2d month, 1649. He is supposed to be the progenitor of all who bear the name in this country, and I have not found one of the name who could trace their lineage to any other source. In 1652, 10th of October, Samuel Chapin was appointed one of the magistrates of Springfield, and in 1654 his commission was extended indefinitely. He was also much employed in other public business—a useful and highly esteemed man. In the records of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay in New England," the name John Chapin is mentioned in connection with the building of a movable fort, March 4, 1633–4, and in July, 1634, mention is made of a meadow a part of which "John Chapin hath mown." That is all the information I have found respecting him. Whether he is a brother of Samuel or not is a matter of mere conjecture. Dea. Samuel Chapin died Nov. 11, 1675, age not known. His wife's name was Cisily, maiden name not known. Mrs. Cisily Chapin died Feb. 8, 1683, age not known. Children—

2. ^{1}Japhet, b. 1642; d. Feb. 20, 1712, ae. 70.
3. ^{2}Henry, d. Aug. 15, 1718.
4. *^{3}Catharine, d. Feb. 4, 1712.

7. ^{6}Sarah, d. Aug. 5, 1684.
8. ^{7}Hannah, b. in Springfield, Dec. 2, 1644.

It is not supposed that the children of Samuel Chapin are placed here exactly in the order of their births.

The Boston City Records show that Jane, daughter of Shem Chapin and Deborah his wife, was born Sept. 16, 1665. He might have been a son of Dea. Samuel, and died without leaving any male issue.

*Hon. Oliver B. Morris, Ex-Judge of Probate, is one of Catharine's descendants.

Japhet and Henry had families in the north part of Springfield (now Chicopee.)

David resided for a few years near the centre of the town of Springfield, and afterwards removed to Boston.

Josiah settled in Mendon, Worcester county. He was one of the original grantees of said town; it is said he was from Braintree and built the first saw-mill in Mendon.

Probably he did not reside for any great length of time in Springfield. Josiah m. Mary. Son Samuel b. Nov. 11, 1659. Spr. records, vol. III., p. 71. For further particulars, see under the head of Josiah Chapin's Descendants.

Sarah m. April 14, 1647, Rowland Thomas, and had 13 children.

Hannah m. Sept. 27, 1666, to Dea. John Hitchcock, and had 9 chil.

Deacon Samuel Chapin lived on the home lot next south of the Ministry lot in the centre of the then village of Springfield. His son Japhet owned one half of said premises, but sold his right therein (by deed bearing date November 19, 1667) to Deacon John Hitchcock, who had married said Japhet's sister Hannah.

SECOND GENERATION.

II. Japhet Chapin, of Chicopee, son of Dea. Samuel Chapin, b. 1642; m. (1) July 22, 1664, Abilenah Cooley. Mrs. Abilenah Chapin d. Nov. 17, 1710. And a small stone in the old burying ground in Springfield marks the spot where she was buried. m. (2) May 31, 1711, Dorothy Root of Enfield, Ct. He d. Feb. 20, 1712, and was buried by the side of his first wife Abilenah. Their remains and the stones which mark their resting places have (probably) been removed to the new cemetery in Springfield.

Japhet probably resided for a time in Milford, Connecticut. As the Worshipful Capt. John Pyncheon of Springfield conveyed to Japhet Chapin of Milford, in Connecticut Colony, a small strip of land near Connecticut River in Springfield, Bounds east on Deacon Chapin's land. Deed dated 16th of November, 1669.

By Deed bearing date March 9th, 1666, John Pyncheon conveyed to Samuel Chapin the greater part of the land lying in the Valley between Chicopee River and Willimansett Brook. And by Deed bearing date April 16th, 1673, Samuel conveyed the same premises to his son Japhet Chapin. The said Japhet built him a house at the upper end of Chicopee street, north-westerly of where the dwelling house of Henry Sherman now (1862) stands.

Japhet was at the great fight at Turner's falls, May 18th, 1676, and on the outside leaf of an old account book belonging to said Japhet, I find the following, supposed to be in his hand-writing. "I went out Volenteare against ingens the 17th of May, 1676 and we ingaged batel the 19th of May in the moaning before sunrise and made great Spoil upon the enemy and came off the same day with the Los of 37 men and the Captin Turner, and came home the 20th of May." Thomas Chapin, son of Japhet, was one of the original grantees of the large tract of land which was granted to the officers and soldiers and their descendants in the Falls fight. And on another leaf of the same book, I find the following, "my father was taken out of this troubelsom world the 11 day of November about eleven of the clock in the eve, 1675." After the death of Japhet Chapin, the Rev. Mr. Williams of Deerfield wrote a lengthy letter to his children, instructing them concerning the improvement which they should make of his death, and speaking of him as having been a man of great piety. This letter is now (1859) probably in the care of Mr. Dormer Chapin.

Their children found on record are as follows—

9. ^{1}Samuel, b. July 4, 1665; d. Oct. 19, 1729.
10. ^{2}Sarah, b. March 16, 1668; m. March 24, 1690, to Nathaniel Munn.
11. ^{3}Thomas, b. May 10, 1671; d. Aug. 27, 1755.
12. ^{4}John, b. May 14, 1674; d. June 1, 1759.
13. ^{5}Ebenezer, b. June 26, 1677; d. Dec. 13, 1772.
14. ^{6}Hannah, b. June 21, 1679; d. July 7, 1679.
15. ^{7}Hannah, b. July 18, 1680.
16. ^{8}David, b. Nov. 16, 1682; d. July 7, 1772.
17. ^{9}Jonathan, b. Feb. 20, 1685; d. March 1, 1686.
18. ^{10}Jonathan, b. Sept. 23, 1688; d. Feb. 23, 1761.

*Hannah was married Dec. 3, 1703, to John Sheldon of Deerfield. The town of Deerfield was attacked by the Indians about three months after her marriage, and she was taken captive with many others, and marched to Canada, and after about two years many of the captives were redeemed and returned home. I have reasons for believing that Hannah's husband went to Canada and obtained her release before the release of the other prisoners. John, son of John and Hannah Sheldon of Deerfield, born in Springfield, April 12, 1706.

* Hannah's friends felt some anxiety in regard to her settling in a frontier town, and as she was making a dress previous to her leaving the paternal home, her mother told her she must make the dress so it would do to wear into captivity.

1720–21, Obadiah Miller and Widow Dorothy Chapin of Enfield were joined in marriage. (Probably she was the widow of Japhet.)

Henry Chapin, son of Samuel and Cisily, was m. Dec. 5, 1664, to Bethia Cooley, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah Cooley of Longmeadow. He d. Aug. 15, 1718. Mrs. Bethia Chapin d. Dec. 11, 1711.

It appears that Henry Chapin did not reside in Springfield in the early part of his manhood, but took up his residence there about the year 1659. He, as well as his father, was a prominent man in town affairs, as appears by the ancient records of the town, and was a Representative to the General Court in the year 1689. Tradition says of Henry, that he was impressed on board a British man of war and served seven years, during which time he was in a severe engagement with the Dutch. He afterwards commanded a merchant ship and made several voyages between London and Boston, but at length, tired of a seafaring life, took up his residence in Boston, and afterwards in Springfield, where his father and family resided. Henry came to the northerly part of Springfield (now Chicopee) to reside, built him a house south side of Chicopee River, in what is now the village of Chicopee, on Ferry street, facing south on West street, near the large elm tree and a few feet east of the house formerly owned and occupied by William Chapin, one of his descendants. The house took fire and was burned, 1762. He also made a contract with John Pyncheon for 200 acres of land on the north side of Chicopee River. The following is said to be a copy of the contract.

March 9th, 1659. Sold to Henry Chapin 200 acres of land on ye north side of Chickkuppy River to run fro ye hills on ye east side, to the Great river on ye West, and on the south it is to be bounded by, and to join to Chickkuppy river, onley one 25 acres or thirty being by Chickkuppy river about the place which shall be judged best for a warehouse is to be taken out and excepted, out of the parcel yet so as ye 200 acres is to be made up there together. Also Henry is to have half of ye upper Island which is to be as equally divided as it can be. and also he is to have five acres of mowable meadow at the lower end of the muxy meadow. For all which he is to pay and allow me the sum of twenty pounds in Wheat at current prices at four several payments, viz., five pounds by the first of March next, which will be anno 1660, and five pounds by the first of March 1661, and another five pounds in March 1662, and ye last five pounds ye first of March 1663. All the payments to be wonder if all these little girls will ever become Brides, which remark caused quite a tittering among the juvenile portion of the females.

Reuben and Charles had large families in Salsbury. David had a family in New Hartford, Ct. Rev. Mr. Backus of Somers, who delivered a sermon at the funeral of Moses Chapin who d. Nov. 3, 1793, says in said sermon, he died in the 82d year of his age, and his father died in the 97th year of his age. He had thirteen children, eleven sons and two daughters; three of the sons are yet living. That nine out of thirteen, in one family, should exceed the age of three score and ten is very remarkable, even for this healthy climate, and has rarely been equaled since the days of the patriarchs. A little more than six years ago, five of the brothers were living in this town, their farms joined, and there was no neighbor between them. With sincere fraternal affection they lived together, pursuing the agricultural employment, for more than forty years. On the 22d of August, 1787, the oldest of that band of brothers died—the youngest, September 6th, 1791. Another breach is now made in the brotherhood.

Ebenezer had eleven sons, six of whom, viz., Ebenezer, Noah, Moses, Seth, Elias and Aaron settled on Somers mountain—their farms joined; after a time, Ebenezer went back to Enfield to take care of his father, and he died in Enfield. Ebenezer of six generations have lived on and occupied the same farm in Enfield. One of that name is still living on the same place. The other five who went to Somers lived and died there.

His place of residence was on Chicopee street, a few rods north of where the present meeting-house stands. The house which he erected was standing until within a few years. The outer door which was very thick and heavy, was filled with nails, to prevent the Indians from splitting it open with their tomahawks.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTION

Please read this special introduction before proceeding with this book.

This is the first volume of the Mary & John series devoted entirely to extensive English ancestries of "planters" who came to New England from the West Country before 1644. In volumes 14 and 16 we listed over 700 single adults and heads of households that may have come early from the West Country. Some have well documented West Country roots while others were listed because "clues" from Banks, Savage, Pope, etc. indicated they came from that region of England. Some of these clues have proved to be helpful while others have been misleading.

Our searchers in England and the U.S. are searching for the origins of all of these 700 plus "planters". Some of these searches have been relatively easy because of previously published material but most are proving to be very difficult. The over 70 families dealt with in this book were selected because we have collected significant ancestries for them.

Many of these ancestries have been taken from previous books and publications but they have also been supplemented with new material found in original English records.

This volume has been identified as Part 1 for a specific reason. As more material is found on the other names in volumes 14 and 16 we will publish more extensive ancestries. Also, most genealogical books are published only once so the errors and mistakes remain to be copied by others for eternity. It is our intention to continue to collect material on these families and publish the additional material in future volumes.

Searching for English ancestries is a very, very costly and time-consuming process and it is a very inefficient process at that. Tens of Thousand of Americans descended from the early English "planters" are searching for the same ancestries, totally unaware of what others are doing and what others have already found. Being a "clearing house" we can collect and digest material from thousands of people, combine it with our material, and then share the results with everyone. The process becomes a chain reaction because every time we publish a new volume more researchers contribute more material. Many people contribute and everyone benefits. We encourage readers of all of our volumes to contact us with documented corrections and additions. In this way the ancestries will continue to grow and become more accurate.

Hopefully other genealogists will benefit from our findings and become interested enough in certain families to write and publish their results in other books or periodicals.

The Capen Family, by Rev. Charles A. Hayden, 1929

CHAPIN, SAMUEL (1598-1675) OF SPRINGFIELD, MA

In "The Chapin Book", by Gilbert Warren Chapin, volume 1, 1924, the author traced Samuel Chapin of Springfield, MA to his parents, John Chapin and Phillipa Easton of Paignton, Devon. Five years later Howard Millar Chapin, in NER 83:351-357, presented a case that indicated John was probably bpt. 25 Sept. 1566, Totnes, Devon (4 miles W. of Paignton), son of Roger Chapyn. Samuel Chapin probably came in the summer of 1638 and in 1639 was granted land in Roxbury, MA. With him were no doubt his wife, Cicely Penny, children David, Catherine, Sarah, Josiah, Henry and possibly Samuel's father. He moved to Springfield, MA about 1642/3. The first ancestry was compiled from a study of the parish records of Paignton, Devon, by the vicar there, A. Linzee Giles, 6 Dec. 1910 and the will of Henry Penny, Cicely's father.

This Chapin family was probably descended from or related to the Chapin family just south of Totnes. There was a Petro Chapyn in the area in 1333 and a Nicholas Chopyn in 1327. In 1524 there were Robert and Christopher Chopyn at Cornworthy (3 miles SE of Totnes) and in 1525 there were Henry and Thomas Chopyn at Harberton (1 mile SW of Totnes). In 1489 there was a Stephen Chapin in Totnes and in 1570 there was a Stephen Chapin in Cornworthy who moved to Dartmouth.

CHAPIN, SAMUEL (1598-1675) OF SPRINGFIELD, MA

In "The Chapin Book", by Gilbert Warren Chapin, volume 1, 1924, the author traced Samuel Chapin of Springfield, MA to his parents, John Chapin and Phillipa Easton of Paignton, Devon. Five years later Howard Millar Chapin, in NER 83:351-357, presented a case that indicated John was probably bpt. 25 Sept. 1566, Totnes, Devon (4 miles W. of Paignton), son of Roger Chapyn. Samuel Chapin probably came in the summer of 1638 and in 1639 was granted land in Roxbury, MA. With him were no doubt his wife, Cicely Penny, children David, Catherine, Sarah, Josiah, Henry and possibly Samuel's father. He moved to Springfield, MA about 1642/3. The first ancestry was compiled from a study of the parish records of Paignton, Devon, by the vicar there, A. Lloyd Giles, 6 Dec. 1910 and the Will of Henry Penny, Cicely's father.

This Chapin family was probably descended from or related to the Chepyn family just south of Totnes. There was a Peter Chepyn in the area in 1333 and a Nicholas Chepyn in 1377. In 1524 there were Robert and Christopher Chepyn at Cornworthy (3 miles SE of Totnes) and in 1545 there were Henry and Thomas Chepyn at Harberton (1 mile SW of Totnes). In 1569 there was a Stephen Chapin in Totnes and in 1570 there was a Stephen Chapin in Cornworthy who moved to Dartmouth.

The above order of the children (which is the basis of the line numbering in this genealogy) is that given in the Orange Chapin Genealogy of 1862.

" The beginning of the Chapin family is altogether creditable. We may well be satisfied that it should start with this genuine old Puritan (Deacon Samuel Chapin) and what he did, with his fellow pioneers, to open the American Continent and on it to found a city and to establish a model Christian Republic ".

" The rolls of heraldry, even if they could show the name linked with royal or princely blood, would add nothing to the true nobility of its origin. It belongs peculiarly to this country, and the sphere of its highest dignity and honor was no doubt ordained to be here. Our chief anxiety should be to maintain and advance its true nobility by lives and deeds worthy of such a father ".

Pres. Aaron L. Chapin.

Since there are a bunch of us who share Deacon Samuel Chapin as an ancestor, here is what I have for him and his children. I descend from his daughter Catherine and her first husband Nathaniel Bliss.

Descendants of Deacon Samuel CHAPIN

1. DEACON SAMUEL3 CHAPIN (JOHN2 CHAPYN, ROGER1) was born Bef. 8 October 1598 in Paignton, Exeter, Devonshire, England (Source: Search for the Passengers of the Mary and John 1630, (publ. by Mary and John Clearing House, Burton W. Spear, ED.), Vol. 17, Part 1, page 27, Baptism date.), and died 11 November 1675 in Springfield, Hampden, Massachusetts (Source: (1) Japhet Chapin's notes, (2) Orange Chapin, The Chapin Genealogy...Descendants of Dea. Samuel Chapin, (1862)., (3) George Norbury MacKenzie, Colonial Families of the United States of America, (1966 edition), Vol. 4.). He married CICELY PENNY 9 February 1622/23 in Paignton, Exeter, Devonshire, England (Source: Search for the Passengers of the Mary and John 1630, (publ. by Mary and John Clearing House, Burton W. Spear, ED.), Vol. 17, Part 1, page 27.), daughter of HENRY PENNY and JANE UNKNOWN. She was born 21 February 1600/01 in Paignton, Exeter, Devonshire, England, and died 8 February 1681/82 in Springfield, Hampden, Massachusetts (Source: Springfield VR).

Notes for DEACON SAMUEL CHAPIN:
Sources of information on the CHAPIN family: PIONEERS OF MASSACHUSETTS by Pope, SEARCH FOR THE PASSENGERS OF THE MARY AND JOHN, 1630, Vol. 14 and 17, "West Country Planters to New England, 1620-1643", THE FIRST CENTURY OF THE HISTORY OF SPRINGFIELD by Henry Burt, THE CHAPIN GENEALOGY by Orange Chapin, COLONIAL FAMILIES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Vols. I and IV, by MacKenzie, LIFE OF SAMUEL CHAPIN OF SPRINGFIELD by Howard Chapin, A BATES-BREED ANCESTRY, and records of Derick HARTSHORN.

Some say he also lived briefly in Boston and Dorcester.
The CHAPIN name is of Welsh or French origin but the family was in England for generations before coming to America.
The Boston city records show the birth of a Jane CHAPIN, dau. of Shem and Deborah CHAPIN, born 16 Sept 1665. Shem may have been another son of Deac. Samuel, and died without leaving any sons to carry on the name.
There may have been an earlier son named Henry who died young. If so, he would have died in England, abt 1630.

[Page 9.] Blisses. First generation in Springfield.

Amongst the early inhabitants of Springfield is a family of Blisses. The name of the father of this family is not mentioned in the publick records, and it is probable that he died before they came to this town. Two of the sons first married called their eldest sons by the name of Samuel, hence it is probable that was the name of their father. The mother's name was Margaret. The children, some known to be of the same family by the records, and all supposed to belong thereto, were as follows:

Nathaniel, who died November 8, 1654; Lawrence, who died 1676; Samuel, who died March 23, 1720; John, who died Sept. 10, 1702. Thomas Gilbert dying June 5, 1662, she was again married, December 28, 1664, to Samuel Marshfield, and by him she had three children, and she died Feb. 4, 1712. The families of the sons (see pages 10 & 11). Margaret was married to Nathaniel Foot, of Colchester. Mary was married, February 27, 1670, to Nathaniel Holcomb.

HISTORY AND DESCRIPTION OF ITS CITIES AND TOWNS.

IN TWO VOLUMES.

VOL. II.

BOSTON:
C. F. JEWETT AND COMPANY.
1879.

Jan. 6, 1669, Col. Crowne was chosen "to be Returned to the General Court to gaine power to take y^e virdict of y^e Jury upon y^e death of John Lovett (killed by an unruly horse), to Marry and to give the present Constable his oath."

About this time it was ordered, "to take into this town but six more families." Upon these eight miles square there are living, to-day, more than twenty thousand people. About this time, "some disquiet" having arisen in regard to municipal affairs, a committee of three was chosen by the General Court to visit Mendon and "regulate their Prudentials."

In 1672 persons absent from town meeting, or leaving before the close, were fined 2*s*.

In 1673, Col. Crowne having removed from town, Mr. Ralph Wheelock of Medfield (fifteen miles away) was appointed by the General Court to administer oaths, and to marry persons belonging to either town.

Jan. 1, 1674, the town appointed John Thompson, Sr., "for to keepe an Ordinary and publique Hous of Intertainment." About this time the proprietors began to keep records separate from the town, in which the lands set off to the proprietors or sold to others were recorded. By a decision of the Supreme Court, a few years ago, these records were remanded from the last clerk of the proprietors to the custody of the town of Mendon. In the Colony tax to defray the expenses of King Philip's war, when there were but forty-nine towns in the Colony, the tax for "Mendham" was £6 6*s*. 2*d*.

In 1682 Josiah Chapin built the first saw-mill, upon Muddy Brook, just north from Post's Lane. Matthias Puffer built the second grist-mill, upon the site of the old one built by Benjamin Albee, which was burned by the Indians. Joseph Stevens, the first blacksmith, being dead, James Bick was to have a ten-acre lot provided he would do "the town's smithery work." But James proved a crooked stick, for he would neither do the "smithery" work, pay for his lot, or quit it. Finding Bick bent on bickering, the constable was ordered to pull down his fences. Upon this he emigrated to Rhode Island.

The usurpation of Andros having terminated in 1689, the town chose Ensign Josiah Chapin a delegate to attend a convention to provide for the government of the Colony.

In 1689 taxes could be paid in money, or in wheat at 5*s*. 6*d*., barley or barley malt at 3*s*. 6*d*., rye at 3*s*., and pease at 4*s*. per bushel.

1692. The tract of land known as the North Purchase was bought of the Indians for £3 sterling. It is now the north part of Milford.

1693, March 1. Capt. Josiah Chapin was chosen clerk of the market, and Benjamin Wheelock, Samuel Hayward and Samuel Tyler were chosen tythingmen. This was the first time these offices were filled. The train-band was to give one day's work for cutting wood and carrying it to the minister.

1694. Assessors were chosen for the first time, and the first pound and stocks were built, thus early providing the means for restraining damage feasant, whether committed by man or beast.

Sept. 5, 1726. Mention is made of a great sickness, but the only recorded deaths during its supposed prevalence were those of Ebenezer White, Benjamin Wheaton and Josiah Chapin, Esq.

June 27, 1727. Another portion of territory is taken away and incorporated by the name of Uxbridge, being the west part of the town.

April 2, 1731. The county of Worcester was incorporated, and Mendon, which had belonged first to the county of Middlesex and afterward to the county of Suffolk, since 1671, was absorbed in the new county, though much against her will.

Up to this time, 1732, all the roads remained at their original width — that of ten rods. From this period they began to sell portions of the roads to the abutters, so that, finally, the roads were brought to the width of four rods. For every ram running at large it was voted the owner should pay five shillings, or not have him, and 6*d.* a week for keeping him.

1733. Raised £100 for repair of roads, and that those who did not work out their taxes last year may do so this year, at the bridge by Samuel Thompson's mill, now Millville, in Blackstone.

June 14, 1735. The General Court ("seeing that the outlands of the several towns of Mendon, Uxbridge, Sutton and Hopkinton are completely filled with inhabitants, and by reason of their remoteness from the places of public worship,") incorporated the town of Upton.

May 18, 1737. Voted to raise £40 to let the fish up Patucket River, provided other towns will pay their proportion.

May 22, 1738. Something new under the sun! Benjamin Wheelock was chosen representative to the General Court, and "refused to serve" Ebenezer Merriam was then chosen representative to the General Court, and he didn't refuse to serve. This was nothing new under the sun.

1739. The selectmen were directed to lease the burying-yard for thirty years to some good man, provided he will enclose it with a good stone wall.

1740, May 19. Upon the question of dividing the town, the moderator directed those who were in favor of it to place themselves upon the women's side of the house, and those who were opposed upon the men's side.

1744, March 6. It was voted to erect a monument over the grave of the Rev. Grindal Rawson, late minister of Mendon.

Voted, that the Mill River Precinct have the town's old law-book during the pleasure of the town.

1746. Voted to forego a tax of £2 14*s.* 5*d.* 3*f.*, new tenor, which is, in old tenor, £10 17*s.* 11*d.*, a discount of seventy-five per cent.

1749. Raised £300, old tenor, for town charges.

1751. Voted to build a school-house, for the use of the town, near the meeting-house in the East Precinct. Its cost was £212 11*s.*, old tenor.

1753. Wages to be paid on the highway this year were, for a man, 2*s.*, and for a man and team, 5*s.* a day, old tenor.

1699. Sixteen wolves were killed this year, and "their ears cut off as the law directs." Of the first settlers up to this time, the following persons had died; viz., George Aldrich, John Sprague, John Thompson, Sr., Dea. Simon Peck, Daniel Lovett, Dea. John Warfield, Timothy Winter, Walter Cook and Jacob Aldrich.

1703. This year the names of seventy persons are found on the tax list.

1704. The Indians upon the eastern frontiers of the Colony began to commit depredations, and a general Indian war was deemed imminent. Mendon was again declared a frontier town, and one-half of the militia-men were required by law to provide themselves with "a pair of good, serviceable mogginsons and snow shoes," in anticipation of a winter campaign. The "mogginsons and snow shoes," however, were not called into service, as the Indians failed to put in an appearance. About this time an attempt was made to oust some squatters, from Rhode Island, near Shokolog Pond (now in Uxbridge). In the attempt Joseph and Robert Taft were made prisoners, and carried to Providence; but, as they charged the town but 6*s.* apiece for the campaign, it is supposed their captivity was of short duration. At this time the road leading north was known as the Marlborough Road, the one leading south as the Rehoboth Road, the one west as the Connecticut Road, and the three leading east as the Sherburne, Medfield and Wrentham roads.

In 1711 a grist-mill was built on Charles River, and was the first one within the limits of the present town of Bellingham.

In 1712 the aggregate of all taxes were £208 14*s.* 2*d.*

1714. Town lines between Mendon and Sutton, and between Mendon and Sherburne, were perambulated.

1717. Since the necrological record made in 1699, the following leading citizens had died; viz., Sergt. Abraham Staples (to perpetuate whose memory Rev. Carlton A. Staples, of Providence, R. I., and Hamilton B. Staples, Esq., of Worcester, have recently erected a substantial granite monument), Christopher Winter, Samuel Thompson, Capt. Joseph White, Benjamin Thayer, Ebenezer Read, Dea. Peter Holbrook, Samuel Hayward, Sr., and Ensign William Holbrook.

1719. Seven persons were chosen tything-men; and, by the act of March 3, 1694, they were to be fined 40*s.* each if they refused to serve. They were to carry a black staff two feet long, with one end tipped with brass.

Nov. 27, 1719. Bellingham was incorporated, enclosing portions of Mendon, Dedham and Wrentham. Named for Gov. Bellingham.

1720. The town tax for this year was £134 3*s.* 4*d.*

March 31, 1721. The General Court passed an act for the emission of fifty thousand pounds in bills of credit. These were to be loaned to the towns, should they so elect. Mendon was set down at £313 10*s.* Notwithstanding a strong protest, the town voted to accept their portion of the bills. The bills soon began to depreciate, and came down to 5*s.* 6*d.* in the pound.

Carolyn,

Enclosed is the town record I mentioned. Your copy is not any better than mine. The person who copied it did not place it correctly in copier. I had to use a magnifying glass to read it!

Do you have any info on Cyrus' children, etc. I know he did some farming because he bought 81 acres in Huron County, OH. Land record also enclosed.

Marilyn

Hi Carolyn!
Sorry I haven't replied until now, but I switched e-mail addresses and only recently got your message. I would love to get more info on Cyrus' parents. Do you use Family Tree Maker? If so what version? Maybe I could send you a disk with my info. Its not alot...mostly what Janie gave me. Did you find my web page or was it a posting?
Anyway, It's always good to find a new cousin. I live in Michigan. I try to make it down to Indiana every so often to the ACPL. I have quite a bit of family that began in Indiana. Many were in DeKalb county.
Let me know about you software or I can send you hard copies.

Thanks,
Stacey Konczal (I just got married and changed my last name from Trevino)

Dear Stacey - Its great to hear from you. Congratulations on your moving. I found you via your web site, and I have FTM 5.0. Maybe we can meet at ACPL sometime?

Cyrus' father was (surprise!) Gilbert Evarts (sometimes sp Everts) and his mother was Rebecca Chapin. The only verification of this info. comes from The Chapin Book, Vol. 1, by Gilbert Warren Chapin, and that does not give a place of birth for Cyrus. It was the fact that there was in Richland Co, Ohio, a Timothy Evarts, among whose sons were G.C., Reuben + Cyrus, that suggested to me that our Cyrus was Timothy's brother. Timothy was older and easier to trace.

Both the Evarts + Chapin lines have been traced back to England.

Gilbert was a Royalist, and after the Revolution, his land at Castleton and personal property were confiscated. He did not ~~be~~ move to Canada, as many Royalists did, but moved to Salisbury where he had ~~previously~~ been a proprietor & still owned land. I don't know how he managed to keep that land. At some time, his son Timothy had started a transportation business on the lakes, and lived in Hamilton, Ontario. Along came the war of 1812, and Timothy, who refused to take the oath of allegiance to the King, lost his property and had to run for his life, thus coming to Ohio.

I have found nothing on Christine Rhodes. I know that Pennsylvania was given as her birthplace and that Cyrus' son Gilbert believed he was born in Pennsylvania. I have 1818 as the birth year of our Gilbert, but I also have Cyrus Evarts in Addison Co, Vt in the 1820 census, with 1 male between 0-10 yrs, 1 male 26-45, + one female 18-26. He seems to have been very restless (weren't they all?), so I suppose it's possible that he went to PA, married, had a son, and moved back to Vermont.

almost their only neighbors, when panthers, wolves and catamounts were more friendly than was agreeable, often making raids on the sheep and poultry. There were other branches of the HAYMAKER family represented in the township in its earliest days; of the wives and daughters we can learn but little, but as a family they have been ever know to be honest, upright and hardy, and these traits we know are as surely handed down from the mother as the father.

In the year 1814 we find recorded the first marriage in the township, the parties being Christian CACKLER and Theresa NIGHMAN. As this was nearly ten years after the first tree had been hewn, it must have been a great event in the settlement. To be the first bride she must have felt to be quite an honor. She was a woman of strong and energetic character and lived to rear a large family of sons and daughters, several of whom are still living in or near the township.

In 1818 Joshua WOODARD with his wife (Rebecca WORDON) moved into this townshi from Ravenna. They lived for many years in the hostelry on the west side of the river known as Woodard's Tavern. It was a popular place, and a most convenient one for the traveler of those days, and as Mr. WOODARD was engaged in other enterprises, the success of the public house depended largely upon the wife and daughters, and the thrift and energy of these women made it both pleasant and profitable. It is said of her that she once made the journey to New York, her native state, on horseback, carrying a babe in he arms all the way.

Mary, (Mrs. Calvin WILLIAMS) her oldest daughter soon after marriage became a pionee in the state of Illinois, making herself very useful in this home as a friend, nurse, and eve physician when occasion demanded. She is still living in that state at the age of eighty-nine.

Lucretia WOODARD (Mrs. Geo. HOPKINS) removed years ago to Dayton, O., where she died at the age of eighty-our.

Lucy WOODARD (Mrs. Yale RUSSELL) lived in Franklin township all her life, except a few months prior to her death, which she passed with her daughter, Mrs. Lemuel REED i Jamestown, N.Y. She was a woman whose home and family were her world. The new woman had no place in her philosophy. She was capable and efficient in her sphere to the last.

Abigail WOODARD (Mrs. David LONGCOY) has lived most of her life in or near Kent. She has been the mother of nine children, some living, some dead. She has been ever a faithful, devoted mother, often taking a child through a severe illness without a physician. A few years ago she was stricken with a slow paralysis, which has rendered her nearly helpless, but which she has borne with characteristic calmness and patience. Her home is now with her son in Kent, where she is ministered unto by her daughter Miraette.

In the year 1816 there came from that historic spot, "Braddock's field," near Pittsburg, William STEWART and his wife, Susan FERGUSON. The way was toilsome, the hardships, many, and the naturally delicate woman, unable to bear the heat and burden of the day, gradually succumbed to ill health.

Origin of the Kibbe Name

.Kibbe Connections. .Site Updates. .Kibbe Queries. .Kibbe Researchers.

The following was graciously provided by Bob Kibbee.

The Kibbe/Keebye/Kebby/Kibbie/Kibbey/Kibby/Kibbee Name

The family seems to have originated in the area around Bridgewater in Somerset, England. There is one notice from the 14th century (Johannis Kebby, smith, 1329) then quite a few more until around 1600 from Somerset (Bridgewater, Broomfield, Goathurst, Charlinch), Devon (Exeter and Plymouth) and Dorset (Lydlinch), according to information from the IGI. One family moved (I'm assuming--possibly a different origin) to London around 1550 and so they begin to show up there, too. A Kebby was a Sarjeant-at-arms under Henry VII and Henry VIII. He took on several assignments of moving naval ships from one port to the other, and provisioning others. There are still Kibbys in Devon to this day (Phonebooks).

Supposedly the first North American was Edward Kibbe (name spelled various ways--Keebye on the gravestone) and his wife Mary Partridge. They sailed from Exeter in Devon and arrived in Boston sometime in the 1640s and settled in "Muddy River," now Brookline, MA. He held a moderately prominent position there. Almost all American Kibbee/Kibbe/Kibby/Kibbey/Kibbie families descend from him. There were other contemporary Kibbes, however, for whom it's difficult to account. There was a Henry in Dorchester who might have been Edward's brother, and there are pre-settlement mentions of a Louis Kibbe.

There are some serious inconsistencies between the dates on Edward's gravestone and the dates of the Exeter Edward Kibbee. The gravestone says he was 97 years old when he died in 1694, so he would have to be born in 1597. But it's clear the Exeter Edward was born in 1611. Another Edward Kibbe was christened in London in 1594, which is a lot closer. Doreen Potter Hanna suggests that people had a tendency to exaggerate their age, but fourteen years is an odd exaggeration! So I think this needs more research.

I'd have to admit that the most likely explanation of the name is that it's from something like Keadby or Kirkby or Kybby where the "-by" part is the Danish (Viking) form for "farmstead, or hamlet." Presumably the first part is a personal name, or in the case of "Kirkby/Kirby" just the word for "church". This is pervasive in Northern England: Whitby, Danby, etc. but a little out of place in Somerset--although migration from the north is certainly possible: there are Kebys in Lincolnshire in the 13th century.

The least likely derivation is from "cybby" which was a dialect word for "cudgel, or club." You see this a lot in various handbooks on surnames, but I think its just a mindless attempt to find a likely word or any available word in a medieval English dictionary that matches the sound of "Kibbe" than to find a real explanation, based on geography, known family history, etc. "Cybby" for "cudgel" seems to have been used only sporadically and mostly in Northern England.

My theory (perhaps somewhat romantic): There was a 6th century Welsh saint named Gybi (in Latin, Kibbeius) who founded several churches in Wales and the Isle of Man.

They all occur in river estuaries, or just upriver from the mouths of the rivers. These have the placenames Llangybi ("Gybi's church" in Welsh)--or some variant. There's a Llangybi on the Usk across the bay from Bridgewater, and I'm imagining someone living near the church or associated with it might have taken the name Gybby or Kybby (I think in medieval Welsh there's no distinction between the "g" and "k"). In fact, there is a Gibby family in that area of Wales--but they could have gotten that name in any number of ways--"Gibby" is a common nickname for "Walter". Not impossible that a family so named could have moved across the bay to Bridgewater in the 12th or 13th century. Another possibility is that there was a Llangybi, or the Cornish equivalent near Bridgewater on the Parret river which was destroyed when the Anglo-Saxons invaded and substituted their church for the original Cornish church. The place name might have survived locally for a while--long enough to give a family associate with it in some way a name.

Well, it's fun to speculate.

At least one family came from England much later (1900). The emigrant's name was Bon Kibbey. There may have been others.

Another family adopted the name in the 1930's. There was a lot of anti-semitism in Hollywood in the 1930's so an up and coming screenwriter named Roland Ginsburg took the name Kibbee, evidently to avoid seeming too Jewish. Ironically, he took it partly because he had a radio show called "The Kibbitzer". I'm not sure if he was influenced by Guy Kibbee, the actor (my grandfather) or even knew him. He had a lot of children and a lot of grandchildren, many still in entertainment, so there are many Kibbees not descended from Edward.

Doreen Potter Hanna's Kibbe Genealogical Notes, rev. and enl., Skowhegan, ME: Chedwato Services, 1972, is very much the primary source for researchers and can be borrowed from the NEGHS. George R. Griffiths reworked much of her data with his own for Edward Kibbe, New England Colonist, and Epraim Kibbey, Frontiersman, 1991. This is particularly valuable for descendents in the line Edward, Elisha, Edward, Jacob.

RHODES

THE EARLIEST RHODES OF BEDFORD, BLAIR, HUNTINGDON, MIFFLIN, AND SOMERSET COUNTIES OF PENNSYLVANIA

Marie Leighty Engel
Salisbury, Maryland

INTRODUCTION TO THE SIX RHODES GROUPS

We begin our chronicles of the various groups in this region of Penna. by first giving a brief explanation that separates each group. This book, will, we hope, not only serve our purpose but make it an easier task for other searchers, not predicting however that it will be the solution for unravelling all their perplexities. It is only natural that we are not able to account for every member or even every family over the years since there were just too many factors involved. No immigrant record has been searched for any group and their origins are unknown. Since our records at this time do not go back far enough in this history we do not know if there was any kinship. However, we do have a general idea from what direction each of the six groups came when they entered this particular area.

Group I - Henry Rhoads - Bedford and Somerset Cos.
Group II - Jacob Roth - Northampton Co. to Bedford Co.
Group III - Henry Rhode - Mifflin Co. to Huntingdon Co.
Group IV - George Rhodes Sr. - Maryland to Bedford-Huntingdon Cos.
Group V - Paul Rhodes Sr. - Maryland to Huntingdon Co.
Group VI - Michael Rhodes Sr. - Northumberland Co. to Huntingdon Co.

GROUP I

The Henry Rhoads family of Brothers Valley, Bedford Co. (now Somerset Co.) was the earliest of these six groups of Rhodes in this region of Penna. Their origin is unknown but perhaps they came through Maryland or the Shenadoah Valley region. An old Bible record for Henry Rhoads Jr. and his first wife Elisabeth indicates they were married in 1760 in Kentucky. Available records in Bedford Co. are sufficient in establishing this group in Penna. as early as 1767 in townships that became Somerset Co. in 1795. Part of the family returned to Kentucky after the death of Henry Rhoads Sr. in 1774. There are no indications that this group had any connection with the other five groups nor that any history has been compiled.

We also include George Rhoads of Milford Twp. and Samuel Rhoads of Philadelphia in this Group I. However their appearances were brief and there is no indication that there were any relationships. Their inclusion was merely to distinguish them from all others and George Rhodes of Group IV in particular.

GROUP II

This second group may also be eliminated from our particular Blair Co. Rhodes project. This was Jacob Rhodes (Roth) of Hopewell Township (now Liberty Twp.) Bedford County who came here in 1813 from Northampton County, Pa. The chronical of this group resulted from a great deal of research in connection with the Bergstresser history in Northampton County, and although a lengthy extract was compiled and documented, none was published. We will touch briefly on some of the work that has already been done to point out the data needed for our purpose of distinguishing this Jacob Rhodes from the other groups.

GROUP III

The third group is that of "Henry Rhodes of Hill Valley" in Huntingdon County. This group was the last of the six groups we are discussing to settle in this region of early Rhodes settlers. Henry Rhodes and his family migrated about 1814 from nearby Mifflin County. It is necessary for us to account for him since Blair County was a part of Huntingdon before 1846. Henry Rhodes and his family were settled in an area which remained as part of Huntingdon Co. after 1846. At present little is known about Henry's background in Mifflin Co. but he and his sons did put down their roots in Shirley and Cromwell Townships, Huntingdon Co. One son returned to Mifflin County later. This history has been published but we also touch on the early part of it which serves our purpose for identification of the various Rhodes.

GROUP IV

More research is desired for this next George Rhodes Sr. of Bedford Co. and his family but we feel there is sufficient evidence to show that this group was not related to Group I or Group II. It is possible perhaps that he was in some way associated with Paul Rhodes Sr. of Maryland, Group V, We can glean clues from certain data. Both of these men were taxables in 1783 in then Bedford County-Frankstown Township. When Huntingdon was formed in 1787, Woodbury Twp. of Bedford Co. was divided so that Paul Rhodes Sr. of Group V was now in Huntingdon Co.-Woodbury Twp. while George Rhodes Sr. of Group IV was across the boundary line in Bedford Co.-Woodbury Twp. Paul Rhodes' son Daniel Rhodes had adjoining land with this George Sr. in Bedford Co. and as time passed and townships were changing, the heirs of both men were now part of present Blair County.

GROUP V

Paul Rhodes Sr. and his four sons, Abraham-Jacob-Christian-Daniel, came from Maryland to Huntingdon County about 1783 and are probably the better known group of Rhodes and most written about in the Blair County histories. This Rhodes family also constitutes a large segment of our Rhodes history.

GROUP VI

This last group of Rhodes to be written about in this history pertains to several men who arrived in then Huntingdon County from Northumberland County shortly before 1810. They were all related in some way but so far there is no documented evidence that Michael Rhodes Sr. was the father. They settled in Woodbury Township in the area around Williamsburg and by 1850 only a very few were left here. Either some died or they moved elsewhere within the county, state or outside Pennsylvania. Their history also constitutes one of the larger segments of Rhodes of now Blair County.

EARLY CENSUS

The following census chart will serve as a handy reference to the Rhodes-Rhoads etc. in the earliest census of Huntingdon, Bedford and Somerset counties. It's purpose is to aid in identifying each head of a household and to compare them to the specific group they are associated with as determined in this history of the Rhodes in the south-central region of Pennsylvania.

Dear Marilyn,

Thanks for the information. I will try to answer your questions, but I hardly know where to start. I am descended from Cyrus' son Gilbert Conrad Evertts. Yes, somewhere along the line, he added another "t" to his name. There is a biography of him in the 1885 History of DeKalb County, Indiana, which you can read at the DeKalb County site: www.rootsweb.com/~indekalb/index.html. Look under "biographies" for "Everetts, Gilbert G." Some of Gilbert's great great grandchildren think the name was Everetts originally. I think the G was probably put in the book because someone couldn't read the handwriting. Gilbert was a farmer and a justice of the peace. He came to Indiana from Richland County, Ohio. It's ironic that you are descended from Timothy, because I ran into Timothy Evarts and his many sons, including a Cyrus, when I was trying to find information on my Cyrus. It was through tracing Timothy back that I found Gilbert and Rebecca Chapin Everts. And even more ironic that Timothy and his family had to hurriedly escape from Canada because he refused to take an oath of loyalty to the king. I need to add a note here that while I have always heard him referred to as "Gilbert Conrad", he appears in the Richland County, Ohio Marriage Records, 1813 to 1871, as "Gilbert Charles."

My impression of Cyrus is that he moved a lot. And my grandmother told me that Cyrus' middle initial was "N", not "M." I think I mentioned before that his wife was Christina Rhodes, and I still haven't found her. In the 1820 census, Cyrus was in Addison, Vermont. In his household, there was 1 male under 10, 1 male 26-45, and 1 female 18-26. In 1830, in Huron, Ohio, there was 1 male under 5, 1 5-10, 1 10-15, and 1 40-50; 1 female under 5, 1 5-10, and 1 20-30. In 1840, in Tioga County, Pennsylvania, there was a Cyrus Everetts with 1 male 15-20, 1 20-30, 1 50-60; 1 female 5-10, 1 10-15, and 1 40-50. I think this was him, but I can't imagine why he was there. He died in Richland County, Ohio in 1849 at the age of 66, of consumption.

An abstract of Cyrus' will: To wife Christiene, one-third entire estate. To Gilbert C. Everts, Rebecca Sally Young, Catharine Platt, and Rosalie Jane Everts, $10.00 each. To Cyrus M. Everts, remaining two-thirds estate for work done and debts paid for father. He to provide testator with the "necessities of live such as a horse to ride, wood suitable to burn at all time together with bread meat and clothing. . . and expense money."
Executors: William Young (probably Rebecca Sally's husband, don't you think?), Cyrus M. Everts.
Bondsmen: William Young, William Stair, Thomas Brink. Witnesses: Thomas Brink, William Stair.

I'm also going to type a short manuscript for you. I hope this proves helpful.

Carolyn

Comments on "ARRIVED BY WAGON" and "HISTORY OF THE EVERTTS FAMILY"

"Arrived by Wagon" appeared in the Steuben Republican on May 14, 1975, attributed to my grandmother, Elva Evertts Rensch. Much of this was drawn from her own memories and experiences, but she also drew heavily from a work by her cousin, Gertrude Evertts Campbell. "History of the Evertts Family" was prepared by Gertrude Campbell for the Evertts Reunion of 1939. Long ago, I was given a copy of this paper, and as I have never seen it published anywhere, I am including both articles, as both cousins should be appreciated for their efforts to record the past.

Gertrude Evertts Campbell was the daughter of Martin Evertts, and Elva Evertts Rensch was the daughter of Joseph Evertts.

Where Elva says, "My husband's grandfather, Mr. Aldrich . . .," she is referring to my grandfather Rensch's grandfather, David Aldrich, son of Simeon Aldrich, Sr. Both families, Haynes and Aldrich, came from Windham County, Vermont. The brother of Mary Haynes Evertts who died in the Civil War was Seymour Haynes. After his death, Phoebe Aldrich, daughter of David Aldrich, then married William Rensch, and their son, Harley Rensch, married Elva Evertts.

For those researching the Evertts family, please note that the immigrant ancestor was John EVARTS.

For those wishing more information concerning the Rev. Samuel Stone, his parents John and Sarah (Rogers) Stone, and their ancestry, I commend the following:

1. the Stephen M. Lawson webpage ("The Rogers Ancestry in England"; "The Stone Ancestry in England"; "The Stone Family in America"; and "Notes concerning John Stone of Guilford, CT"),
2. "The Great Migration Begins", pp. 1768-1773,
3. TAG 36: 33-35 (1960); "Stone of Hertford, Hertfordshire, and Hartford, CT",
4. "Memorial History of Hartford County", by J. H. Trumbull, pp 262-63,
5. "Families of Early Hartford, CT, by L. B. Barbour, pp 586-88.

Samuel's father, John, settled first at Hartford, CT and, in 1639, rem. to Guilford, where he was on of the signers of the original compact.

Samuel Stone arrived on the "Griffin" 9/4/1633, along with Rev. John Cotton and Rev. Thomas Hooker. Setling first at Cambridge, Hooker became pastor of the church, Stone the teacher. On May 31st, 1636, a majority of the congregation migrated to a site along the Conn. River which they named Hartford, after Samuel's birthplace in England. In 1637, Stone was chaplain under Capt. John Mason in the Pequot War and was present at the massacre near New London. His first wife d. in 1640, having "smoaked out her days in the darkness of melancholy." She was probably an opium addict.

Hi Carolyn,

I am researching same family. This is what I have on Cyrus;

Cyrus Everts b. 5 Feb 1783 Salisbury Twp., Addison, Vermont.
Father Gilbert Everts and spouse Rebecca Chapin. Information from
LDS. Here is info you can get from them:

LDS ordinances B: 29 Apr 1944 Ba: 7450089
E: 16 Jun 1944 SLAKE So: 027543
SP: 26 Mar 1976 WASHI

Let me know what you find. I don't know about Christine Rhodes, but would appreciate any info you have.

My gg-grandfather was Gilbert Chapin Everts and he was married to Catherine Walters. They were parents of my g-grandfather George Walter Everts.

Hope this helps. And, please keep in touch.
